Train Blaze Contained

HOPE (CP) — A fire that sent poisonous sulphur dioxide fumes billowing across the Trans-Canada Highway at two points near here Tuesday was under control about seven hours after it began, a Canadian National Railways spokesman said Tuesday night.

Al Menard said that the 200 people evacuated by RCMP from the nearby community of Flood in the wake of a fire in two of the open cars carrying sulphur had been allowed to return home by 9:30 p.m. He said the highway, closed during the height of the fire, had been re-opened.

Menard said that 84 cars of the 100-car freight train derailed about five miles west of here at 2:10 p.m. Two caught fire and for a time were burning out of control.

Menard said that the B.C. Forest Service supplied pumps to get water from the nearby Fraser River to the fire, and that the CNR hired air tankers from nearby Abbotsford to dump fire retardant on the blaze.

A total of five passes were made by three aircraft to bring the conflagration under control, Menard said.

He said that the Canadian Forces base in Chilliwack supplied heavy equipment, oxygen, and helped put sand onto the fire.

Menard said the five-member crew on the train was not injured in the derailment, and that there were no injuries fighting the fire.

"They were pretty cautious at the scene," he said, "and sulphur dioxide is easily detectable.

"When you get a whiff, you know when to back off."

Cause of the derailment was unknown. The five locomotives remained on the rail.

Menard said arrangements were being made with CP Rail to detour CNR traffic onto the CP Rail line at Mission. He said it is hoped the CNR line can be used again in two days.

An immediate investigation was launched into the cause of the crash. Damage was expected to be more than $1 million.

In a similar accident in July, 1976, 23 cars of a 93-car CNR freight train derailed in almost the same spot.

Witness Carl Augustine said that he was on a tug on the Fraser "as the trian rushed past — it seemed to be going very fast."

"It had just gone over Hunter Creek bridge when a huge cloud of smoke billowed up out of the trees," he said. "We tied the tug up, rushed through the fields and saw the wagons lying twisted and pancaked together.

"Wreckage was everywhere. Some of the wagons were completely destroyed; it must have been a violent stop.

"Flying sparks must have set the grass embankments on fire and this spread to the sulphur.

Cabinet to Decide On Land Appeals

Legislation to give the provincial cabinet powers of final appeal in Land Commission Act cases was introduced Tuesday by Environment Minister Jim Nielsen.

The amendments will mean a citizen for the first time could appeal to the cabinet for change in a B.C. Land Commission ruling.

The proposed amendments were immediately criticized by NDP environment critic Bob Skelly.

"I think they're a bloody tragedy," he said in an interview.

The amendments would undermine the appeal procedure of the commission because it would introduce a political route to any decision, he added.

The law has as its main intent the preservation of agricultural land in B.C., through an agricultural land reserve.

The minister said the change, one of several introduced, means that cabinet will have the same powers as the land commission now has.

Nielsen said that under the current law, an appellant wishing to have the classification of his land changed must first receive the approval of the land commission to have his appeal heard by the cabinet's Environmental Land Use Committee.

Such a step would be taken after the commission had already ruled on the application.

The amendments provide that within 30 days of having a request for an appeal denied by the commission, an appellant can go directly to the minister to ask that ELUC hear the appeal.

Nielsen said this procedure will soothe complaints of personal conflicts, and will give the appellant the satisfaction of dealing with an elected, rather than an appointed official.

But Skelly said:

"Some developers who were not getting their way appear to be getting their way now."

He also said the current system was widely acclaimed as one that could be free of abuse.

Other provisions contained in the Land Commission Amendment Act, 1977, call for:

—The name of the law to be changed to the "Agriculture Land Commission Act." Nielsen said this is to avoid confusion with other laws dealing with land;

—Municipalities and region-

GIBSON RAISES A FISHY FEAR

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson put the bite on the government Tuesday with a fishy question.

Will the voracious South American man-eating piranha fish one day be nipping at bathers in B.C. waters? he wanted to know.

He asked Recreation Minister Sam Bawlf to look into the situation.

The flesh-eating fish is being sold "in the thousands" in pet stores, Gibson said, and there is some chance the piranha could survive in B.C. waters if it somehow were released into them.

"Or in this House," interjected Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver-East).

Gibson said outside the House later that if the piranhas can survive in B.C. waters, out of their normal tropical element, there are a number of ways they can get there.

When they get too big for home aquariums or owners get tired of them the owners might simply flush them down a toilet or dump them into a stream, despite the fact a permit is mandatory for anyone to put fish in B.C. waters.

"After that it's only a matter of time before boy meets girl," Gibson said.

And when people go wading or swimming "heaven knows what they might nibble at."

Fishing Shut By Fraser Oil Spill

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Up to 10,000 gallons of heavy bunker oil spilled into the Fraser River Tuesday, fouling a fleet of fishboats near Steveston, coating miles of shoreline and endangering unknown numbers of fish and wildlife.

The spill also forced an emergency closure of fishing in the region where salmon fishing had been scheduled to open today.

The move by the International Pacific Salmon Commission closed the lower Gulf of Georgia near the mouth of the Fraser and part of United States fishing waters near the international border.

Angry fishermen and environmentalists are demanding to know both why the spill occured and why there was a 15-hour delay in the start of clean-up operations.

"The Gulf of Georgia now is being contaminated and there are unconfirmed reports of sightings of oil in American waters," said Lyle Freeman, federal fisheries department spokesman.

The spill into the main channel of the Fraser River is one of the largest spills in Vancouver area waters, a clean-up operations spokesman said.

Desi Sjoquist of Clean Seas Canada, a company specializing in cleaning up oil spills, said it was costing $6,000 a day to remedy the spill. He estimated the job would take a week to 10 days.

He said no more oil was leaking from a tank at the Canadian Fishing Co.

The spill is believed to have occurred late Monday when a six-inch pipeline separated from the main pipe underneath the Canadian Fishing Co. wharf.

It was reported to environmental authorities Tuesday morning, fishing company officials said.

Fishermen docked at the wharf said that small spots of oil were seen in the area Monday morning, adding to the theory that the pipe became unscrewed because of vibrations and age.

Frank Spencer, senior vice-president of Canadian Fishing Co., said he believed the spill was caused when a piece of wood jammed against an oil main under a dock and broke off a valve at high tide.

HYDRO STRIKE THREAT

Negotiations are continuing today in Vancouver in an effort to avert a strike by B.C. Hydro maintenance workers.

The 2,500 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 258, have already voted to strike and business agent Doug Cronk said they may be off the job by the end of the week if there is no settlement.

"A negotiated settlement is possible but we have to get over our hurdles this week for strike action to be avoided," Cronk said.

Money is not a major issue for the Hydro workers, who are seeking better layoff and re-hiring provisions, job protection for partly-disabled employees, pension improvements and training subsidies for steam engineers.

U.S. Skipper Sought In Bizarre Incident

By DEREK SIDENIUS

Times Staff

The FBI has joined the RCMP in the hunt for an American fishboat skipper who sailed off with a Canadian fisheries officer in a bizaare incident in the Juan de Fuca Strait.

The fisheries officer — Butch Mayor, quartermaster of the patrol boat Laurier — was forced to leap from the U.S. seiner Lucky Star when the vessel fled.

Colwood RCMP Sgt. Ed Kokoska said the fishboat, registered at Kodiak, Alaska, is believed somewhere in Washington State waters.

The vessel's unidentified skipper, who warned Mayo if he boarded he'd get a "one-way trip to the U.S.", faces a charge of illegally fishing in Canadian waters.

Also contemplated are charges of obstruction, forcible confinement and abduction.

The incident occurred last Wednesday when the Laurier spotted the seiner fishing in Canadian waters off Port Renfrew.

A spokesman for the federal fisheries service said the seiner had a net out and was "an honest mile within the Canadian boarder."

He said Mayo boarded the seiner to place the captain under arrest and take the vessel into port.

Just prior to the boarding, the seiner and the Laurier collided.

Fisheries officials said the collision occurred when Laurier captain Jack Goss manoeuvered the Laurier in front of the seiner to prevent it from escaping.

Some damage was done to the seiner along its port side.

It was reported the seiner captain felt the Laurier had deliberately rammed his vessel before Mayo stepped aboard.

The seiner, having hauled its net in "sort of jogged towards the boundary," the spokesman said.

When it crossed the line Goss decided, said the spokesman, that discretion was the better part of valor, and launched a rubber lifeboat to retrieve Mayo.

The lifeboat pulled along side the seiner but the captain refused to stop and Mayo had to jump while both boats were moving.

FBI special agent Mike Entler said in Seattle Tuesday the bureau will help the RCMP.

"We'll be co-operating to our full extent just as they (the RCMP) would do for us."

By co-operation, he said he means the FBI will track down the whereabouts of the seiner and take statements from the captain and crew.

"This sort of thing is bad for both sides," he said. "There is no excuse for it. The fishermen themselves don't like to see it happen."

CIVIL WAR IF QUE. GOES?

OTTAWA (UPI) — Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney said today Quebec's attempts to legally separate from the rest of Canada could lead to civil war.

"All very well to say that we can reach agreement in principle on separation," Blakeney told the annual meeting of the Canadian Bar Association. "It may well be that when it comes time for the specific terms, we will not have the goodwill, the wisdom, which would allow this to happen without force of arms."

Air Strike Repeat Looms in U.K.

LONDON (UPI)— British air traffic control assistants voted today to call another strike if the Civil Aviation Authority suspends any worker for taking part in a slowdown.

Heathrow airport officials reported airlines were still operating curtailed flight schedules as they did during a four-day strike that ended Tuesday, with delays of up to five hours common.

British Airways cancelled five flights to the United States.

"There are delays on all routes in and out of Heathrow," a CAA spokesman said.

A meeting of the union's disputes committee today, answering the national executive committee's call for an all-out strike "from the moment the first man is suspended," voted in favor of a walkout whenever necessary.

Airlines warned passengers flights face flight delays up to five times that long.

Million-Dollar Metric Tab Announced by Fraser

It will cost the provincial government about $1 million to get metric on the road in B.C., Highways Minister Alex Fraser said today.

In announcing the start of B.C.'s changeover to metric signs, Fraser said it will cost an estimated $710,000 to switch over the province's 25,000 highway signs.

Municipalities will have to bear their cost of changing local signs.

An additional $350,000 is earmarked for public awareness and education program to ease the province into metrication.

Fraser said he hopes both the changeover of signs and the public awareness campaign can come in a little under budget.

The minister said there are 48,000 signs on B.C.'s highways but only 25,000 will be converted to metric — including 15,000 speed limit warning signs.

All signs dealing with speeds and distances are to be changed. Fraser said a major advertising campaign, organized by the Vancouver firm of Walker, Ricks, Ehrig, is to be launched to win the public's support for metrication.

The campaign includes radio, television and newspaper ads, and distribution of about 900,000 brochures to every household in the province.

Another 500,000 brochures will be distributed to clubs, organizations, and to visitors at border crossings.

Mass Firing of Legislative Pages Rescinded

By MARK HUME

Times Staff

A temporary reprieve was given Tuesday night to 14 young legislative pages who earlier in the day were fired from their jobs with 24-hours notice.

The pages are meeting with Speaker Ed Smith, Sergeant-at-Arms A.M. Hutchinson and concerned MLAs today to discuss the process for terminating the employment of pages.

The results of the meeting may mean the pages will get to finish out the term of the current session.

A storm of controversy arose Tuesday afternoon when the pages' firing was raised in question period, but Smith poured oil on the troubled waters as the legislature adjourned for its dinner break, saying that the firing order had been rescinded for the time being.

Smith told the house "the pages will remain until we can determine the best course of action."

He said the pages had been fired by Hutchinson because the session has lasted longer then usual and with a new school term about to begin, it was a good time to change staff.

Earlier in the day Hutchinson had little to say except that the pages were being dismissed as part of a "normal rotation".

The Sergeant-at-Arms declined further comment, at one point marching tight-lipped through a circle of reporters, chin up and arms swinging. NDP house leader Bill King (NDP-Revelstoke-Slocan) said the dismissal was "absolutely inhuman — I'm appalled by it."

King said he believes the pages were fired because they were in the headlines two weeks ago with complaints that their heavy uniforms were too hot in the summer weather.

"This is retaliation agains the pages," said King, who failed in an attempt to make a statement on the matter in the house.

As the afternoon session began King asked for unanimous leave to make a statement, but it was denied with shouts of "no," coming from Premier Bill Bennett, Labor Minister Allan Williams and Mines Minister Jim Chabot.

The denial was apparently intended to keep the NDP from making any political yards out of the situation.

Bennett later rose, during question period, to ask Smith about the pages.

"I has come to my attention that there has been some uncertainty over their continued employment," said Bennett in asking Smith for an explanation.

"They were unceremoniously fired," interjected Dennis Cocke (NDP—New Westminster).

Smith said he'd only just

Filers Return

A majority of wildcatting Vancouver Island sawmill filers today obeyed an informal order from the B.C. Labor Relations Board and returned to work but some in the Victoria area apparently need more convincing.

A spokesman for the Duncan local of the International Woodworkers of America said today most members in that area, except for a few stragglers, were removing pickets and reporting for work.

The filers in the area covered by the Duncan local set up picket lines Tuesday closing about five sawmills and affecting about 1,500 workers.

The pickets began to come down Tuesday night following the LRB's verbal cease and desist order, requested by Forest Industrial Relations, which represents the companys.

Filers belonging to IWA's Victoria local did not set up pickets but about 24 of them chose to book off sick at B.C. Forest Products' sawmill on Garbally Road and at Sooke Forest Products mill.

The Sooke operation was operating today as it did Tuesday but BCFP was forced to close the sawmill Tuesday afternoon. It reopened this morning but a company spokesman said it would like close down again if the book-off continues.

A spokesman for the Victoria-area filers said they are waiting for formal word from the LRB anr from local union officials that they have to go back to work.

THE OUTCASTS by Ben Wicks

Fishing Ordered Closed After Big Fraser Spill

The main once carried bunker oil but was no longer in use, he said.

Spencer said the company has assumed responsibility for the spill and hired the cleanup crew.

RCMP investigators examined a section of six-inch pipeline that had separated from the main pipe underneath the Canadian Fishing Co. wharf and found that although the pipe was badly rusted there were no breaks and the threads of a coupling which separated were not damaged.

One investigator said he was not ruling out the possibility the pipe was intentionally unscrewed, although the size of the pipe and its location makes the sabotage theory unlikely.

Evidence of the spill's effect at low tide could be seen along two or three miles of shoreline, including grassy, mudflat areas west of Steveston.

Sjoquist toured the spill in a small aircraft Tuesday evening and said there were clumps of oil along Sturgeon Bank.

"The beach is a real mess up there — all the reeds are full of sludge and the sand has soaked up isolated slicks," he said.

Out in the gulf the black sludge had dispersed, leaving a thin film of oil on the water. The main oil slick has been confined to the dock area with the help of a 1,000-foot long canvas collar, known as a Bennett boom.

Although officials were concerned about the Reifel migratory bird sanctuary, about a mile from the spill, there were conflicting theories on the dangers the birds faced.

Ian Robertson, emergency co-ordinator of Environment Canada, said he was "extremely concerned about the effects of the spill on both the Reifel sanctuary and the commercial salmon fishery in the area.

Tom Carscadden, an environmental emergency officer with the Environmental Protection Service, a federal agency, said there is little chance of the oil getting to the Reifel sanctuary.

The cleanup crews used peat moss and large biodegradable absorbent pads to clean up.

About 20 youths were put to work under an arrangement with Canada Manpower.

Cabinet to Have Land Appeal Power

al districts wishing to apply to the commission for exclusion must first hold a public hearing into the matter;

—The cabinet to have the ability to impose conditions or restrictions on land released from the agricultural reserve. Nielsen said this condition is very similar to a type of land-use contract, adding that no such power existed previously to restrict use once land was removed;

—Persons holding several blocks of agricultural land to be allowed to consolidate their holdings without the expense of a legal survey by entering into a convenant with the land commission. Nielsen said that surveys can cost thousands of dollars, and it is often the wish of both the committee andthe land holder to have the land consolidated;

—The act to cover only agricultural land. Neilson said that the Greenbelt Act passed earlier this summer would protect the "green belt land bank land and park land" described in the Land Commission Act;

—The cabinet to have greater power to designate land as being protected by the reserve.

Nielsen also said the amendments will cut away some red tape existing in the act.

Pages Reprieved From Dismissal

heard about the matter and would look into it.

That prompted another retort from an angry Cocke who shouted: "Oh yeah, everybody's running for cover."

"Everytime he gets in trouble he tries to lie his way out of it;" added Lorne Nicolson NDP—Nelson-Creston).

Nicolson later withdrew the remark.

The exchange on the page situation ate up so much time that Smith asked leave of the house to extend question period by six minutes.

But unamimous leave was denied, with Economic Development Minster Don Phillips shouting "No." on an obvious cue from Bennett.

Rosemary Brown (NDP—Vancouver Burrard) shouted: "What are you afraid of you cowardly little man?"

Outside the house, King questioned Hutchinson in the Sergeant-at-Arms office and after a brief conversation emerged to say "it is my view it (the firing) is strictly a reaction to the earlier complaints."

King said Hutchinson told him the dismissal of the pages, who range between 12 and 15 years of age, had been a normal rotation.

"But there's never been a rotation like this in a session," said King.

King also said Hutchinson had told him that he'd consulted Smith before firing the pages.

"He agreed that the Speaker was aware the 14 pages were to be laid off immediately," said King, "and when he (Smith) told the house he wasn't, that was absolutely false."

George Cessford, the 15-year-old page who spearheaded the protest about uniforms, said the firing wasn't a surprise because rumors had been circulating.

Smith had told the house that the pages were informed several days ago that they were to be terminated, but Cessford denied that.

The inquest will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the court house in Duncan.

3.2-Cent Propane Increase

The B.C. Energy Commission has let the price of propane rise up to 3.2 cents per gallon as part of the general increase in oil-based products.

This would increase the cost of a 100 pound cylinder by 60 cents.

The price of propane has been frozen for two years by the commission.

The commission will review the propane price again in February to see if it should rise in conjunction with a 3.5 cents-per-gallon hike scheduled for gasoline.

In July, 1975, the commission intervened in the propane market in an effort to make the price comparable to heating oil.

The commission believes this balance now has been restored.

Prices for oil and natural gas, used in making propane, will next increase on Jan. 1 at the producer's level. Two months later, on March 1, retail prices will rise for gasoline and heating oil — and probably for propane as well.

All price increases are directly related to the federal government's policy of hiking the price for Canadian crude oil by $1 per barrel every six months until the price matches the cost of the world market.

An increase of $1 per barrel translates as a hike of 3.5 cents per gallon for gasoline.

Price Controls for U.S.?

Times News Services

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is considering setting voluntary standards for wage and price increases in a new effort to reduce the rate of inflation in the United States, it was learned Tuesday.

The voluntary standards may be ready within six months and the hope is they will help to reduce inflation over a period of three to four years. The underlying rate of inflation now is estimated at between 6.5 and seven per cent.

There have been no final administration decisions on whether to set standards or on what such standards should be. They probably would vary from industry to industry.

Work on the standard is scheduled to get under way within the next month. Economic policy-makers will try to develop agreed-on standards of what constitutes reasonable price behavior and reasonable wage behavior which can win public support.

A decision to develop the standards followed the conclusion by some administration officials that the anti-inflation program unveiled by Carter in April is insufficient to unwind the current inflation rate.

Meanwhile, several U.S. government statistics released Tuesday seem to confirm what many administration and private analysts have been saying for months: the economy will grow more slowly over the next few months and inflation will continue at an uncomfortable level.

The index of leading economic indicators, which is supposed to foreshadow economic conditions, declined slightly in July for the third consecutive month.

Administration economists said the 0.2 per cent decline in the commerce department index does not signal a recession, but confirms their prediction that the ebullient seven per cent growth rate of the first half of the year will not continue.

the weather

A few showers and fog patches occurred in the central Interior while other areas of the province were relatively clear overnight. Weak storm centres in the Pacific are moving southeastward and thus expected to miss the B.C. coast. A few showers or possible thundershowers will develop in the interior today and to a lesser extent on Thursday. Other areas will continue mostly sunny.

Police view rubble of Calgary home from neighbor's garden path

MAN KILLED AS EXPLOSION WRECKS 3 CALGARY HOUSES

CALGARY (CP) — An investigation continued today into an explosion Tuesday which killed one man and destroyed three houses.

Police said Ronald Arthur Plomin, 31, formerly of Kitchener, Ont., died when he was blown from his residence into the attic of a neighboring house.

Cause of the detonation at 4707 17th Ave. S.W., which caused an estimated $500,000 damage to at least 10 houses, has not been determined.

Windows were broken in houses and vehicles were peppered by debris up to seven blocks away.

A police official said it might have been a gas explosion but fire department officials said they ruled out natural gas because of the explosion's severity.

Gas company officials said all lines in the area had been checked and natural gas was not involved.

"It was a pretty horrifying sight," said the police spokesman.

"It was miraculous that nobody else was hurt. The families in the homes on either side escaped unharmed. Their whereabouts in the houses protected them from the major force of the blast."

The spokesman said Plomin, who rented the house which was levelled, had recently been released from a correctional centre.

Baby's Mother Killed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A nine-week-old baby was winning her battle for life in a Vancouver hospital Tuesday night after her mother was killed and her father badly injured in a road crash.

The crash happened as the Prince Rupert couple were on their way to Vancouver General Hospital to see their baby daughter, Anna, who has been fighting for her life in the intensive care nursery since she was born June 23, six weeks premature.

Her mother, Carol Nystedt, 22, died instantly as the car she was driving hit a large transport truck near Terrace. Her 37-year-old husband, Elvin, is in hospital with serious internal injuries. The truck driver, Leonard Hunka, was not injured.

The hospital said Anna is now fine, although she is still under intensive care.

The doctor who delivered her said it is becoming increasingly common for premature infants to survive, but they still need luck.

Nurses looking after the tiny baby were stunned by the news of her parents' accident.

The couple are understood to have travelled to the hospital regularly to see their daughter.

Police are still investigating the accident which occurred early Monday night on Highway 16, 30 miles west of Terrace.

MAGGIE REPAIR

The Princess Marguerite will change propellers tonight in Seattle after minor damage to the present one was noticed by maintenance workers.

The prop hit a submerged object, possibly a log, during the weekend. The vesel has two spare props in Seattle.

It's not anticipated the vessel will miss any sailings.

Peace Package Offered To N. Ireland by U.S.

United Press International

Britain and Ireland both praised U.S. President Jimmy Carter's concern for peace in Northern Ireland but an Irish Republican Army leader said, however that Carter had been duped and was "a British mouthpiece."

Carter Tuesday threatened prosecution of Americans who support groups involved in the violence in Northern Ireland.

He also said that if a peaceful settlement is reached the United States would join with others to encourage investments in Northern Ireland.

"I am glad to have his (Carter's) support for the establishment of a government there which will command widespread acceptance throughout both parts of the community," Prime Minister James Callaghan said Tuesday.

"I welcome, too, the president's willingness to support continued investment which will provide jobs for the long suffering people of the province."

Callaghan said the British secretary of state for Northern Ireland would visit the United States in October to try to attract new investments to the strife-torn province.

In Dublin, Irish Prime Minister Jack Lynch's government said it welcomes the U.S. commitment to "vigorously" prosecute those who support organizations involved with fighting in Northern Ireland.

But Jimmy Drumm, leader of the Provisional Sinn Fein, political wing of the Provisional Irish Republican Army, said in Belfast:

"President Carter has been duped. Regarding Ireland he has clearly shown he is not as impartial as he claims. He has become a mouthpiece for the British government."

N.B. Village Simmers Down After Battle with Bikers

PETIT ROCHER, N. B. (CP) — Seven of eight Dalton motorcycle club members were in jail by late Tuesday and the eighth was in hiding as the village calmed down after a confrontation between some members of the gang and about 300 armed and angry villagers late Monday.

Two motorcyclists who fled into the woods after a gunfight with a group of villagers gave themselves up to RCMP late Tuesday and joined five other club members in jail in nearby Bathurst, N.B.

The seven have been charged with three counts each of assault causing bodily harm and one count each of possessing an offensive weapon in connection with a barroom brawl Sunday which sent two to hospital and sparked Monday's confrontation.

The eighth member of the gang, earlier questioned and released by police, was keeping out of sight as both police and Mayor Pierre Godin warned of possible further violence if the gang—all Petit Rocher natives—returns to the village.

"Yesterday was the story of a lifetime — I've never seen anything like it," S.Sgt. Georges Gauthier of the RCMP said in an interview Tuesday.

A clubhouse, two cottages, four motorcycles and a pickup truck were burned, two cars and another motorcycle were damaged and a dog was killed in an exchange of more than 30 shots. All the damaged property belonged to the Daltons.

The only reported injuries were to two policemen who were cut slightly by flying glass when the back window of their car was shattered, possibly by a gunshot.

"The safety of the gang would be jeopardized if they were released now," Gauthier said in an interview.

"The thing is that now the other side is mad."

Five of the Daltons—those taken into custody before the confrontation—are to appear for bail hearings Friday.

The five include Mayor Godin's brother Daniel, 23, and Jacques Bertriaume, 24, the son of the man who owns the lounge where Sunday's brawl broke out, as well as Paul-Emil Aube, in his 20s, Charles Doucet, 27, and Gaston Roy, 23.

Roger Boudreau and Gerald Bergeron, described as gang leaders and both believed to be in their 20s, were to make their first court appearance today.

Mayor Godin, who said he is not close to his brother, said the community had tolerated several incidents involving the Daltons in the past partly because of fear of reprisals and partly because the eight men were members of established and respected families here.

Interference by motorcyclists at a festival in July sparked the first widespread ill will, he said, and the sight of a man who required 50 stitches to close a wound in his face after Sunday's brawl caused the confrontation with guns.

The fires were set after the club members had fled into the woods where they remained for almost 24 hours before turning themselves in.

Godin said the mood of the community has changed since the confrontation and people in the village were for the first time willing to testify against the Daltons. It appeared that residents were no longer prepared to tolerate harassment of any sort from club members, he said.

However the village was not free from fear of reprisals.

"It wouldn't surprise me if my house burned down now," Mayor Godin said.

The village has a population of about 2,000 with an additional 3,000 people living outside the village boundaries but within the surrounding parish of Petit Rocher.

30,000 Jobs to Be Lost In Oil Price Hike—NDP

OTTAWA (CP) — Oil price increases approved by the federal government "will rob the economy of 30,000 to 35,000 potential jobs" at a time of rising unemployment, Ed Broadbent, leader of the New Democratic Party, said Tuesday.

Broadbent described the higher prices as irresponsible and said they are a gift to oil companies already raking in huge profits.

Effective Tuesday, the price of gasoline and heating oil was permitted to increase by 3.2 cents-a-gallon as a result of government-negotiated increases in crude oil costs.

In addition, the anti-inflation board allowed six companies to increase prices by up to a further 1.5 cents to cover higher refining, marketing and distribution costs.

"While the wages and salaries of working Canadians are held down below the current rate of inflation by the anti-inflation program, the AIB has irresponsibly permitted already profitable oil companies increase after price increase," the party leader said.

Broadbent said in a statement that profits of Texaco Canada Ltd. are up 66 per cent this year, BP Canada Ltd. 60 per cent, Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. 20 per cent and Shell Canada Ltd. 18 per cent.

Steady increases in the price of oil over the last three or four years already have cost the Canadian economy an estimated 100,000 jobs, adding considerably to the unemployment crisis.

"There comes a point when any reasonable person expects that the government elected to represent them will begin to take their problems seriously," Broadbent said.

"With unemployment at the highest rate since the depression, with economic indicators showing that we are now in another recession, and with personal income on the decline while inflation continues to increase, we have surely reached that point."

A New Curriculum?

When Education Minister Pat McGeer first announced, with much fanfare, the creation of a core curriculum for B.C. schools, teachers and other educators predicted it would lead to virtually no changes in the subject matter taught in the schools. All the basics have been taught for years in practically every school in the province, they said firmly.

They now have been proved quite right — and by no less a document than the latest booklet on the core curriculum put out by the ministry of education itself. The booklet, aimed at teachers, does not of course, go so far as to say directly that nothing really new is going to be taught. Rather it lists no fewer than 180 "learning outcomes" (that's educators' jargon meaning what the students should have learned at various ages) in such basic areas as language arts, mathematics, science, health, and social studies.

Beside each "outcome" is listed the major subject areas where the material would be taught plus supplementary areas where it might also be worked in. And what references are the teachers referred to in just about every case? Why, the ministry's current curriculum guides, guides which have been in use for anywhere from one to nine years, guides that were prepared, in some cases, long before McGeer thought up the term core curriculum.

For example, in the part of the booklet listing "research and study skills" goals for children in grades four through seven, teachers are referred to the ministry's A Guide to Teaching the English Language Arts in the Intermediate Years, published in 1968. The booklet says: "Note — Teachers are referred to the the prescribed content in the guide, pp. 76-87." Similar notes are given for the social studies, science, health and mathematics guides, published in various years from 1971 to 1977.

In a few areas (notably some of the language arts material and high school social studies), the booklet notes that the curriculum guides are now in the process of being revised, and the new guides will deal more directly with the core curriculum's learning outcomes. However, it gives teachers few new ideas on what to teach in these areas in the interim.

Also, a few "outcomes" simply do not fit into any subject area, and in these cases teachers are given such helpful phrases as: "The development and reinforcement of the skills of inquiry, analysis and problem-solving are major responsibilities of teachers of all content fields."

The goals themselves are mostly pure motherhood. Is there anyone these days who does not think it a good idea for children to learn how to read, write, add, and solve problems? Or for them to learn about the basic relationships in the environment, the geography of their country, and how to maintain good physical and mental health?

If one had a quarrel with them, it might be only that some appear to be exceedingly difficult to teach as part of a school curriculum. Examples are "to have empathy for people," "to lead a small group and at other times accept the leadership of others" and "to identify positive aspects of themselves and relate to others positively."

Overall, the latest core curriculum booklet may give teachers something to talk about in the staff room and politicians something to talk about on the platform, but it isn't likely to give many students anything new to learn when school reopens next week.

Much Ado

The B.C. legislature these days might be compared to a manic depressive: you just don't know what's going to touch off an outburst of rage.

Tuesday it was the firing of the 14 teenagers who serve as pages — the "gofers" who get glasses of water, fetch and carry files and correspondence, pass messages for the MLAs — in the legislative assembly.

The sergeant-at-arms apparently gave the youngsters 24 hours' notice Tuesday that they were out of a job. He's singularly uncommunicative about the reason behind it, though it seems to be connected with the little revolt the pages staged two weeks ago about wearing their old-fashioned uniforms in the hot and sticky weather of August.

Though it appears the sergeant-at-arms (he carries the ceremonial mace into the legislature at the opening of each day's sitting, and is responsible for security in the legislative building) acted on his own, the opposition tore into the government as if war had been declared.

The firing of the pages was a surprise to Speaker Ed Smith and Premier Bill Bennett, and they said so in the house. The word of two honorable members of the B.C. legislature, sworn in solemn oath to carry out their duties to the best of their abilities, was not good enough for the NDP.

Bennett was accused of lying by one NDP member, although why he should lie to the legislature about such a picayune matter was not explained. Others snapped and snarled, prompting Smith to say that the legislature appeared to be "in a testy mood."

Understatement of 1977. Can nobody on the government side see that the session has gone on far too long? The heat and length of the session has affected everyone's minds down there. It's time to call a halt to the proceedings, and let MLAs work off their vile tempers with a holiday.

Let them take up elephant hunting or square off bare knuckles with sparring partners or a little recreational hard rock mining. A week or two of alligator wrestling and spleen venting combined with temper losing should put them all right again.

JAMES RESTON

A Streak of Bad Luck

WASHINGTON — Like all the rest of us, President Carter has his streaks of good and bad luck, and lately events seem to have been conspiring against his plans.

Secretary of State Cyrus Vance has come back from the Middle East with little to report but the defiance of the Israeli and Arab governments. The secretary of the treasury is telling him that business is pretty good but that businessmen still lack confidence in his administration and the future. And that's not all.

The American people have not responded to his ardent appeals for the conservation of fuel. The labor union and black leaders are complaining that he has let them down, and vice versa. The poor are protesting that his new welfare plan doesn't go far enough and the rich are muttering that it goes too far.

Meanwhile, his friend Bert Lance is in trouble over past banking practices; his wife has been in the hospital for a minor operation; his brother Billy has been threatening to leave the family peanut business in Georgia to become a full-time national comic; and one of his sons has apparently been having marital difficulties. As De Lawd said in Green Pastures, "Even bein' God ain't no bed of roses."

Coincidence

The coincidence of these not very important events reminds us of an obvious fact, often forgotten: that the men and women who come forward to lead a nation are not only public characters, but private individuals, subject to the consoling influences but also to the strains, conflicts and accidents of personal life.

How U.S. presidents have dealt with political and personal adversity is one of the endlessly engaging questions of American history. Woodrow Wilson, paralyzed at the end of a life of noble yearnings, transformed the victory of the First World War into the disaster of Versailles and the League of Nations. Franklin Roosevelt, partially paralyzed at the beginning, stuck at his desk by necessity, and somehow managed to overcome his physical infirmities, mock his critics, and preside over a revolution in the nation's foreign and domestic policies.

Lyndon Johnson was rescued by a strong wife who took him home to the ranch before Vietnam and poor health overwhelmed him, and Richard Nixon, who left so little room in life for trust or friendship, wouldn't listen or wasn't told, and stayed on. The connection between politics and character is unavoidable.

So it will be interesting to see how Jimmy Carter deals with these first few difficulties. He has been so confident that, where others failed, he would succeed; so optimistic about the essential goodness of human nature; so trustful in the fidelity and judgment of his friends, and so sure that his appeals to reason would win the co-operation of the congress, the allies, and even the communists, that this city is naturally wondering how he will respond when people tell him just to keep on passing the money and the ammunition and leave the driving to them.

Jimmy Carter has dealt with these first disappointments in his own way. He didn't pass judgment on Bert Lance or rush to his defence. He asked Mike Blumenthal at treasury for a briefing on normal and abnormal banking procedures, and told him to proceed with the Lance case without any reference to the White House.

BERT LANCE
. . . was smiling last year

He saw Lance during the crisis, and the word from the White House was that the president wouldn't discuss the controversy, whereupon he went on television and said he had confidence in Lance, but that Bert would know when to quit if necessary, and that he (Carter) wouldn't hesitate to put the integrity of his administration before everything else.

His handling of newspaper stories that his son Chip was having trouble at home (which happened to be the White House) was equally revealing. The president didn't deny that there was trouble, or that he had intervened to fix things up. He just saw to it that they got to the church on time together the next Sunday, and took the whole family off to Camp David to celebrate his wife's 50th birthday, and talk things over.

All this amiable patience, however, like the Carter grin, could be misleading. He didn't come out of the south without learning his manners, and he didn't get to be president by manners alone. The guess here is that he'd throw Bert Lance or even his own son out of Washington if he thought they had taken advantage of their positions—even if he, who knew them so well, led them into temptation by bringing them here in the first place. But he didn't mention that.

It's interesting that, even Carter's closest friends, watching these first minor personal and political tussles, don't pretend to know how he will react to persistent opposition. He listens to everybody about all these intractable problems, and confides to nobody about his intentions, until he blurts them out in a meeting with the congressional leaders or the press.

A Mystery

So he remains a bit of a mystery in Washington and elsewhere. Nobody can quite sort out the difference between his manners and his policies. He seldom, if ever, concedes that his policies were wrong, but he compromises with his opponents, tolerates his critics in the press and sticks to his promise to answer their questions publicly and regularly, even about his friends or his family.

Still it would be easy to misjudge this new president, or trifle with him as the new Israeli government seems to be doing. He seems to be watching and waiting, and compromising (and quietly on the side organizing his re-election in 1980), and is probably not too upset by these first political and personal problems. He will likely be very tough as time goes on.

Unlike many of his recent predecessors, he has a solid foundation of family and faith, and is not thrown off balance by political opponents, at home or abroad, who are less secure politically than he is. After all, if he could parlay Plains, Georgia, into the White House, think what he can do with the White House.

Bureaucracy

You Canadians are like us, griping about "that damn bureaucracy."

But without that "bloated" system, how would we get our birth certificates, social security, high school diplomas, divorce settlements, drug safety, meat inspection, standardized imported clothing, rust-resistant auto frames, colorsafe cosmetics, car licences, teacher certificates, atomic waste regulation, pornography censorship, earthquake and weather checks, liquor permits, immigration control, spy checks, mail delivery, foreign treaties, old age security, and death certificates?

And you're ready to quit now over one income tax report. — K. L. Preston, Santa Monica, California.

Radical Fools

After reading a news story recently published, sub-headed Aldermen Have Second Thoughts, I wonder if the present members of Saanich council are capable of thinking clearly. One member is now wondering "whether council had done the right thing in abrogating its responsibility" — now really!

However, I congratulate him in admitting publicly his mistake in supporting a motion that could do untold damage.

Another member who has stated in the past (as most) "we are not yes men," although his erroneous support (in my opinion) must have been greatly influenced by the chastising of a few ratepayers. Further, members who openly state non-support of a motion, and reasons why it should be defeated, then abstain from voting — well that's fence-sitting, chicken!

An over-all policy statement, a community plan for Saanich is overdue and greatly needed.

Responsibility and leadership should not falter under pressure brought about by disgusting proceedings instigated by a handful of radical fools. I am astounded that such proceedings from the floor be allowed by any committee chairman. Guess that's politics — at the local level? — Gordon G. Cowan, 4291 Caen Road.

Naturalists' Allies

Guides and resident hunters have been discussing game management in B.C. for many years now. One group of wilderness lovers that has a big interest in the subject but has not been party to the discussions is the non-hunting naturalist.

To their probable surprise, they have an ally in the guide-outfitter. At first sight it seems their aims should be different. After all, guides take non-resident sportsmen out to hunt while naturalists just want to look.

But in reality, what naturalists have been asking for in their public statements for years and what the guides have been doing for even longer are very much the same. Naturalists are concerned about the vanishing habitat of some of our rarest game and have called for strong conservation measures.

Guides for their part have been actively creating habitat. They pioneered bush-burning for instance, where the removal of brush allows grass to come through and provide feed. More importantly, guides have consistently managed their areas with maximum attention to the survival of the species contained therein. Not only do they limit their takes of scarce animals but also by culling surplus animals, starvation is avoided for the rest.

Naturalists may be interested in conservation for ethical reasons, but guides have to be interested in it because their livelihood depends on it. Whatever the reason, the two groups have more in common than they realize.

The block system of allocated areas which the guides adopted in 1961 is held in high regard by the fish and wildlife branch. This should be encouraging to the naturalist, for without the personal care and interest that outfitters give their areas, populations would be in a miserable state and probably very much smaller.

Incidentally, naturalists might care to note that many guides now offer short photographic trips into their territories. These excursions offer excellent value for money and are as comfortable a way as any to see the province's wild animals and learn their ways from a professional outdoorsman, who is also a naturalist at heart. — Northern B.C. Guides Association, Fort St. John.

Keep that top vent closed if you're driving on highway.

Safety Tip

During the recent heat wave many recreational vehicles were being driven with the roof vents open, no doubt to aid in keeping the rig cool. If the lid is partially opened, the wind rushing by will create a vacuum effect which will pull air out of the unit. But if there is a window open as well, the resulting air flow will draw in road dust and other pollutants.

When the vent lid is open to a straight up position, the vacuum created behind the lid will tend to suck these pollutants down through the vent directly into the coach. If the vent is situated near the rear of a camper or motor home and open all the way, the combination vacuums created by the upright lid and square back of the RV can result in engine exhaust, mainly carbon monoxide being pulled inside. The same situation can arise from leaving the window in the back door of a camper open.

The occupants riding in such an environment could become nauseated, suffer headaches, or even die from carbon monoxide poisoning.

Also dirt, dust and other foreign objects will get inside the rig.

The Capital Region Safety Council recommends if it is necessary to have passengers in a camper open only the side windows and keep overhead vents and rear windows closed. — Capital Region Safety Council, 1767 Island Highway.

Equal Space

Bessie Forbes promotion. When Dulcet Tones Sour was a free trip: my congratulations to the lucky winner. What an impressario Bess is, despite the fact that she neglected to mention the date, time and place of her subject's next personal appearance.

Since paying to advertise a service in the Times is an expensive business, I would suggest that it is only fair that all voice teachers in Victoria be given equal space by Forbes (with picture, of course) to enlarge upon methodology and background. There are many fine teachers of singing resident in this city, and your readers should be informed as to who they are, particularly when Forbes writes some of the best hard-sell copy in Victoria. —Mrs. H. J. Lewis, 2940 Sea View Road.

Time to Move

According to Dr. Peter Banks, if is "quite unacceptable" to the people of Victoria that the Victoria General be phased out and a new hospital built at Helmcken Road. He offers no evidence in support of this statement, which suggests that it is more than likely confined pretty much to himself. In fact, the absence of a general outcry against perhaps disgruntled downtown doctors who don't feel like driving that extra distance out to Helmcken Road — are trying to hold up the proposal.

Dr. Banks then goes on to say that tain that their hospital cannot carry the extra load of overflow emergency patients that will occur in the first stage of new hospital construction. That is simply untrue. The Royal Jubilee has given every indication to the regional hospital planning commission that it has the capacity to handle additional numbers of patients.

As for Dr. Banks' criticism that the cost of energy and transportation will rise as time goes on, that is probably correct, but higher costs will doubtless effect all hospitals in the city regardless of their locations. I would venture to say that the costs of a new facility will be, in the long run, lower than those incurred through expanding and massively upgrading the creaking Victoria General. That hospital, known to former generations of Victorians as St. Joseph's, has served us well; now it's time to move on.—S. Ridley, 3919 Olympic View.

Hospital Site

Concerning the location of the new hospital on the outskirts of the city: A prophet is not without honor save in his own country. Dr. Peter Banks stands very highly in the medical world and also has had many years in an an administrative capacity. He thus can bring local knowledge to bear on the subject and a totally impartial assessment.

For about $60,000, some years ago, a prophet from a far place advised the city that the site of the Victoria General Hospital was the best location for the new hospital. Governments seem to have a very strong penchant for doing the wrong thing, and perhaps in this case it would be wise to listen to our expert, Dr. Banks, who no doubt could command a large fee for advice given in Chicago or New York. If Dr. Banks is right (and everyone I have talked to thinks he is), the mistake of building in the wrong location will cost the taxpayer millions of dollars.

As a taxpayer, I would like to be very sure. Dr. Banks' opinion is certainly supported by the highly paid expert who was brought in at great expense. Perhaps we should take another look before we spend many millions of taxpayer's money. — M.P. Paine, 3620 Quadra.

Divisive System

In his attempts to fault our parliamentary system (vs. republic) Anthony Westell (Victoria Times, Aug. 23), sees present faults as causes whereas in fact they are largely results of various abuses and rule-changing of the parliamentary system, particularly by Trudeau and friends.

A politically-elected head of state will, by the very nature of his election, be divisive rather than unifying.

Have we forgotten — so soon! — the lessons so readily seen in the presidential-republican type of government as shown by presidents de Gaulle and Nixon.—M. C. Manning, C-1558 Beach Drive.

Hard Winter Ahead Presages Election

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — Let's start somewhat off the point.

From the 1921 campaign through to the 1974 one we've had 17 general elections in Canada. In the province of Quebec the Liberals have won a total of 924 seats in those elections, the Conservatives only 144. (The ratio of the vote for each party over the period is only about nine to five in favor of the Grits.)

One consequence of such a record is that Liberal MPs from Quebec, particularly the ministers, usually have an inordinate confidence that they will be returned to the Commons out of a general election. Such confidence has been heightened since the by-election victories of last spring. Of course, ministers like Trudeau, Lalonde, Ouellet and Fox always win their ridings at a canter.

This Quebec thrust or readiness for an election now — that is, this year, not next year — has been apparent in Ottawa for the past five months. Not only has it not eased, it gets impatient with those who plead for an excuse, a sky-hook, for something to say as to why an election now, rather than next year, for something less ignoble than simply because we can win big this year.

What has been happening within all the busy parts of the Liberal apparatus over the past few weeks is a noticeable swing of support towards the Quebeckers and an election now. The plans are on, although the word has not been given for an election on either call (and the dissolution of Parliament) sometime between September 8th and the 19th.

The trend towards the election zealots seems to be growing out of one broad perception. As The Toronto Star put it in a recent headline: "Worst winter for jobs since 1930s feared."

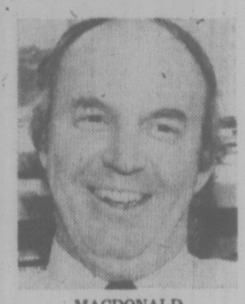
It looks like the winter of all winters of discontent is ahead, that the national "down" mood of bitterness and cynicism will deepen steadily post-Labor Day with summer vacations over and the kids back at school.

Further, there are specific beefs with the government which gall a lot of ordinary people, particularly the post office situation and memories of the air traffic controller's strike or the recent ineptness, if not mismanagement, shown by Crown corporations like Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. and Polysar. The hassles over the Mounties and security and excessive use by the force of its powers are disconcerting, probably beyond their substance, because there is such a polarization about the federal police. It goes from broad reverence to a narrower but deeply ingrained distrust.

But most of all the jobless situation deteriorates more and more (though slowly) and the assuaging of inflation has faded and faded, so much that a tendency of ministers to proclaim the success of wage and price controls last spring has become defensive, rather than triumphant. The "decontrol" phase is not engendering grand co-operation from any leadership anywhere, whether in unions or provincial governments or corporations.

From the modern time of ministers of finance through Donald Fleming to Walter Gordon to Mitchell Sharp to Edgar Benson to John Turner we've had some duckers, especially Turner, but who can recall a more reluctant, self-effacing, "soon-I'm-going-to-be-gone-from-here" one than the so called "Big Mac".

Meanwhile over at the other traditionally important economic ministry, industry, trade and commerce, Jean Chretien stews about when and how to declare for the Quebec Liberal leadership. One might reach the conclusion, based on radiated confidences this past while that Gene Whelan, John Roberts, Francis Fox and Iona Campagnola are the titans of the cabinet.



MACDONALD

Jack Horner? Who's he? Otto Lang. Ugh. Don Jamieson or Allan MacEachern? Where?

All this adds force for an election now rather than next year when the economy could be much worse.

Today Joe Clark is down abysmally. The PM is still seen seemingly as the one national hope for keeping Quebec in its place in Canada. His personal situation has never roused more sympathy and support. Agh, yes, some nobler reasons are being advanced, one of which has worth. It is that this parliament has played out, along with the ministry. Everyone needs the invigoration of chasing a new mandate.

Castro Picks Africa for Revolutionary Crusade

By HERBERT MERCHANT
Times of London

"The continent of Africa," said Cuban Premier Fidel Castro in a recent speech, "is the weakest link in the chain of imperialism".

In South Africa, he argued, it is the middle class, "that bastion of fascism", which has impeded progress. Africa has no middle class; it is therefore possible for developing African peoples, victims of capitalist-imperialism, to pass directly from tribalism to socialism.

For the past 15 years Castro has dreamed of leading a continent-wide revolution against "capitalist-imperialism". In the Sixties he sent Che Guevara on ill-starred expeditions to Africa and South America to try out the land, but these were launched without the help, or even the approval of the Soviet Union.

Now, with a green light from Moscow, Castro is clearly bursting to get on stage and play a leading role himself. Given his belief in the vulnerability of Africa to revolutionary change, and given his country's need for some of Africa's raw materials, it is easy to see why a man of his temperament should have been so active in that continent of late.

Few people, however, appreciate the full extent of the Cuban presence in Africa. It still has some 15,000 troops and 5,000 civilian in Angola; it has diplomatic relations with 31 African states; it has a resident ambassador in 15 of them and in nine it has military and scientific personnel.

These are located in Guinea, Guinea-Bissau, Equatorial Guinea, Angola and The Congo on the west coast; Mozambique, Somalia and Ethiopia on the east coast, and for good measure and good strategic reasons, in Aden just across the Straits from the Horn of Africa, currently seething with unrest.

All in all it is a remarkable record for a small island of nine million inhabitants situated on the other side of the Atlantic and totally dependent on its Soviet sponsor for economic and indeed political survival.

Castro embraces Tanzanian President Nyerere

Castro has not been shy about his own and his country's interest in Africa — but then he is not a shy person. His red-carpet tour early this year, encouraging revolt and promising moral, if not military, aid in virtually every sensitive spot in that continent, was orchestrated for all the propaganda media at his disposal.

It almost seemed that his country, lacking gunboats or cruisers, had sent its dynamic president to show the flag, to boost morale and more specifically to remind all concerned that what had happened in Angola in 1975-76 could be repeated elsewhere in 1977.

By way of a followup, it sent his younger brother Raoul, First Vice-President and Deputy C-in-C to Angola, Gen. Abrantes, First Deputy Minister of the Interior, to Libya and Mr. Malmerca, minister of foreign affairs, to Nigeria, Benin and Zambia, where he promised Cuban backing for "the African struggle against racism and neo-colonialism and reaffirmed support for the liberation struggles of the peoples of Zimbabwe, Namibia and South Africa."

So what next? We know, of course, that without Soviet moral, and above all military, support, Castro's current crusading activities can add up to little more than so much massage for his not inconsiderable ego. But there are, in fact, several good reasons why the Soviet Union should continue to support him in this particular foreign adventure.

In the first place, the Soviet Union — like any other Marxist-Leninist country — must welcome any move which will embarrass the West and bring to an end capitalist interest and influence, wherever they are still to be found; and in certain respects, Cuba is better suited to make such moves in Africa than the Soviet Union.

Clearly, for instance, direct military intervention by Cubans of African stock will often be acceptable where white Soviet troops would not. Cuban scientific, political and economic advisers might be welcome in some African states now under Chinese influence, where Soviet advisers would be considered tainted with state capitalism and neo-colonialism.

Finally, it is always agreeable for one country to promote or defend its special cause to the last drop of the blood of the soldiers of another country, especially when it has been subsidizing that country to the tune of some $2-million a day for the past 15 years.

This does not mean, however, that Cuba is operating in Africa solely under the strict direction and control of the Soviet Union, or even that the partners are in full accord in their assessments, targets and priorities. Castro has maintained a rugged independence of spirit and action in all his dealings with the Soviets. He is liable to accept their rumbles with one hand and thumb his nose at them with the other.

But there is clearly sufficient Soviet-Cuban agreement over general objectives to give cause for concern to those who remember how this unusual partnership brought the world to the brink of nuclear destruction with the missile crisis of 1962 — and racial tensions in black Africa can in their own way be as destructive as any nuclear weapon.

While there are then clearly plenty of grounds for anxiety about the intentions of the Soviet-Cuban partnership in Africa, there are, on the other hand, a reassuring number of restraints, pressures and difficulties capable of frustrating them.

To begin with there is the vastness of Africa and the diversity of its cultures. Each of the states in which Cuba has interested itself faces totally different political problems, all of them of great complexity. In the Horn of Africa, for example, it seemed ready and willing, together with the Soviet Union, to support the left wing of Ethiopia, Eritrea and Somalia, only to find that all three factions mistrust each other and resent the help each of their neighbors received.

Such considerations are perhaps unlikely of themselves to dampen Castro's vibrant enthusiasm for foreign adventure; but happily he is himself well and truly hobbled by the shortage of ready cash.

The slump in world sugar prices from 50 cents a pound in 1974-75 to 8 cents a pound in 1976 has set the Cuban economy back on its heels again. Castro himself admitted last March that it was not possible for the Cubans to ensure both a reasonable standard of living at home and finance a full-scale crusade abroad.

Whether he will now be prepared to curb his ambitions in Africa for the time being in order to boost living standards and civilian morale at home, and at the same time to foster Cuban-U.S. relations — warmer again since the advent of the Carter regime — remains to be seen. But there are indications that the Soviet Union would like him to do so.

There are indeed some who believe that he would do more for his country's image in the Third World and for the cause of world communism in general by staying in Cuba and putting his economy in order. Then, they argue, with the Cuban standard of living markedly above that of most other Latin American states, he should open wide his borders to tourists again and show them what a Cuban Marxist-Leninist state can do for its people.

This is not, I am afraid, a theory to which Castro — even at the age of 51 — is likely to subscribe. He has never been one for just staying at home and quietly cultivating his garden.

The Secret Post Office

russell baker

A Washington woman suggests that the CIA's mantle of secrecy — or is it a shroud? — may be passing to the Postal Service. At a time when the national spy agency is conducting much of its business on page 1, she points out, the mail business appears to be going underground.

Her complaint is that it's getting harder and harder not only to find a post office, but also to find anybody who will spill the beans about where the few surviving post offices are hanging out. I don't know about this, having taken an oath years ago to abstain from post offices, where, it seemed to me, the chief activity was refusing to accept things you wanted to mail because they were shaped wrong or wrapped in a manner offensive to the post office's taste.

It seems reasonable, however, that such post offices as remain would be reluctant to give away the secret of their whereabouts, for fear that if the boss finds out about them they will be closed down. At the rate the Postal Service is deteriorating, a few more years may leave us with nothing but a handful of renegade post offices which change locations night after night to stay one jump ahead of the posse.

I am not one of those who deplore the dismantling of the mail system. For years the mail has rarely brought anything except advertising letters written by machines and notices that this or that enranged creditor intended to slander me throughout the commercial community as a deadbeat. Other provisions could easily be made for collecting the rare cheque which is now delivered by the postman, and most people who want to abuse me have long since switched to the telephone.

The woman has a point, however, about the infectious nature of secrecy. The CIA may have to tell all, but its purged passion for secrecy will slither off through the fog and infect some other organization. When I lived in Washington, for example, it was impossible to get the public school system to divulge your child's I.Q. test score.

Even in those days you could get the CIA to tell you which minor republics it had subverted, but I.Q. scores of your own children were held as tightly as the latest germ-warfare formulas. There may be sound reasons for this — there always are for secrecy — but another reason that also always exists is the natural institutional passion to have secrets to keep.

Hospitals need them as desperately as the National Security Council. I once spent two weeks in a hospital in which the nurses absolutely refused to tell me what my temperature was. Although it was my temperature, these nurses treated it as if it were a vital hospital secret. A doctor tells of his father, for whom medication had been prescribed, trying unsuccessfully to persuade the nurse to tell him what was in the pills. The doctor pulled his M.D. at the nurse's station, and she squealed — no — whispered: "Aspirin."

The love of secrets, even of such triviality as this, seems to be part of the personality of institutions. It is intensely human, suggesting how strongly institutions tend to follow the human model. Children seem to be born loving secrets, and the generals, spy bosses, nurses, presidents and parents they grow up to be love them with a passion even more intense.

President Nixon's downfall can be traced to his anger at having his secrets published, which led to the formation of the famous "White House plumbers" unit, assigned to stop the leaks. President Johnson so despised the loss of secrets that he occasionally reversed decisions which had been disclosed while still in the secret stage for the satisfaction of proving the tattletale wrong. I know a man who lost an ambassadorship under Johnson because the papers reported he was to get the job at a time when Johnson still considered the appointment his personal secret.

At a less cosmic level, everybody knows someone whose social standing rests on an uncanny power to ferret out other people's secrets — marital skullduggery, imminent disaster, midnight debauchery — and then keep them secret himself, prizes to be doled out in small packets of gossip in return for cocktails, introductions, invitations. To have a secret is to have power, but it is also fun. The odd thing is that large institutions like schools, hospitals and Presidencies should have the human need for fun and a weakness for indulging it, no matter how absurd it makes them.

Understanding this, we are able to sympathize with the CIA as nosy wretches of every description frolic through that vast storehouse of secrets accumulated over 30 years. We can also understand why the post office might very well feel the temptation to keep its whereabouts a secret from common humanity. Perhaps the mysterious decline in postal service isn't really a decline at all, but an elaborate cover to conceal that the post office is going underground and taking the mail with it.

Brighter Future Seen In Forest Portfolios

Canadian Press

Continued economic expansion in the United States, although expected to be at a slower pace than in the first half of 1976, should prove beneficial to Canada's forest products industry, says Dominion Securities in a recent Industry Review.

"Continuing favorable economic activity in the United States should result in increased demand for Canada's forest products in the balance of 1977 and in 1978."

The Toronto-based investment firm says investors, after a careful study of company-performance within the industry, should consider adding to the forest-product portion within their portfolios.

"From an investment strategy point of view, the market is beginning to value expectations for 1978.

"At this stage in the recovery cycle, the probability is increased that 1978 will be a peak earnings year."

In major product areas, Canadian newsprint operating rates are forecast to remain stable in the second half of 1977 and increase next year, the newsletter says.

Canadian kraft pulp operating rates are expected to decline to 80 per cent capacity in the second half, but a rebound to the 88-per-cent level is expected in 1978.

Only in lumber prices is the outlook less favorable.

"Lumber prices are expected to continue to increase through the summer months of 1977, but are expected to lose much of this upward momentum by the fourth quarter of 1977."

The newsletter concludes that "given the fact that the stock market seems to lead economic events by some nine months, we therefore expect forest products share prices to peak in the fourth quarter of 1977 or the first quarter of 1978."

Dominion Securities advises investors to maintain their positions in MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., British Columbia Forest Products Ltd. and Domtar Ltd.

Intercoast

Intercoast Resources Corp. Ltd. of Vancouver, formerly Skaist Mines Ltd., says it has acquired all but six per cent of a 50,000-acre oil shale claim 12 miles north of Queen Charlotte City on Graham Island off British Columbia's north coast. The other six per cent is owned by the Hanovarian Syndicate, a group of Vancouver businessmen who, with Toni Holdings and Management Ltd., of Vancouver, previously owned the oil shale property. "The company has received both written and verbal assurances from the B.C. Department of Mines and Petroleum Resources that permits will be issued to the company when regulations have been formulated," said company president John Robertson. In 1975 the company, then Akaist Mines, had a permit dispute with the provincial government over oil shale leases in the Queen Charlotte Islands. The dispute was settled a year ago.

Canfor

Net earnings of Canfor Investments Ltd., increased to $6,211,000 in the six months ended June 30, from $5,533,000 a year earlier. After providing for preference share dividends, earnings were $5.99 a share, up from $5.32 last year. Results include $357,000 of extraordinary income in 1977, compared to $164,000 in 1976, representing Canfor's equity in the application against income taxes of prior years' losses in joint venture companies. Canfor's equity in the after-tax earnings of associated companies — Cornat Industries Ltd., Prince George Pulp and Paper Ltd., Intercontinental Pulp Co. Ltd. and Yorkshire Trust Co. — amounted to $5,669,000, up from $5,164,000 last year.

Integrated

Sales of Integrated Wood Products Ltd., of Kamloops, were up 2 per cent to $11.4 million in the first six months of 1977, but earnings from operations declined to $372,616 from $389,534 during the same period last year. Earnings were equal to 12 cents a share compared with 13 cents last year. Including extraordinary items, Integrated's net income was $380,275 or 13 cents a share in the latest period, down from $603,204 or 20 cents a share in the first half of 1976. Integrated president, D. L. Balison, said in the company's mid-year report that the decrease in operating earnings was partly attributable to increased costs and the start-up expenses of a new plywood plant.

Canada Tungsten

Canada Tungsten Mining Corp. Ltd. has produced one per cent participation in four Dome Petroleum oil and gas wells in the Beaufort Sea for $5 million. Tungsten president Allen Born said that Dome's geophysical studies have indicated potential oil and gas bearing structures, although the drilling program must be considered as purely exploratory. "Because of the risks of exploration in frontier areas, the company will have the benefit of accelerated tax write-offs of the exploration expenditures," Born said. Three of the wells are now being drilled.

Hunter Douglas

Hunter Douglas Canada Limited of Montreal reports sales for the first half of 1977 of $22,476,000 ($20,346,000 in 1976) and earnings of $566,000 ($235,000 in 1976 restated). The company's performance for the balance of this year will be influenced by an expected sluggish Canadian economy, an uncertain investment climate in Quebec and the dampening effects upon business due to AIB controls a spokesman said. In addition, while world aluminum prices continue to rise, the company experiences difficulty in increasing prices of its aluminum products.

Crestbrook

Crestbrook Forest Industries Ltd. of Vancouver reports net income of $786,000 in the second quarter of 1977, compared to $98,000 in the same quarter of 1976. An extraordinary tax credit of $423,000 made final net income $1,209,000 compared to a final net of $184,000 last year. Earnings were 33 cents a share before the tax credit and 65 cents a share after. Last year, second-quarter earnings were equivalent to a loss of 17 cents a share before tax credits and 12 cents a share after. Sales were $16,517,000, up from $14,882,000 a year ago. For the six-month period, net income was $1,668,000 or 73 cents a share on sales of $33,426,000. This included a $629,000 extraordinary gain. Six months' earnings last year were $1,193,000 or 37 cents a share after a $560,000 tax gain. Sales were $30,485,000. The company said income was better because of increased sales volumes and higher prices, except in plywood.

Price Co.

The Price Co. Ltd. says it is considering a three-year $26-million redevelopment plant for its paper mill in Kenogami, Que., which would include the phasing out of all newsprint production there.

A Price official said in a statement that if the plan is carried out, the mill would produce exclusively groundwood paper. It currently makes 240,000 tons of newsprint, rotogravure paper and groundwood papers annually, as well as 46,000 tons of kraft paper and 12,000 tons of paperboard.

Implementation of the plan depends on a study under way on the supply of wood fibres in the area. The plan must also meet environmental standards.

Mill manager Andre Pinault said the redevelopment plan would restore the mill's competitive position in the market. About 188 of the nearly 1,400 jobs would be eliminated as the project is carried out, Pinault noted.

Price is a subsidiary of Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd.

Toyota

The Toyota Motor Co. has announced a $443-million profit for 1976, a record for any Japanese firm.

The previous record of $375.5 million was set by Toyota in 1975.

Japan's largest car maker said it hopes to maintain this year's profit at the 1976 level, despite the appreciation of the Japanese yen and protectionism in some markets.

Exports in 1976 increased by 22 per cent following good sales in the United States and Saudi Arabia, but domestic sales fell 3.5 per cent, it said.

Toyota said it plans to increase production to 2.85 million vehicles in 1977, including 1.35 million for export. This compares with 2.61 million vehicles in 1976, of which 1.29 million were for export.

Hydro-Quebec

Hydro-Quebec has announced it has negotiated a loan of about $44.9 million in Swiss francs, bringing the provincially-owned utility close to its borrowing objective of $1.1 billion for 1977.

The new bond issue, valued at 100 million Swiss francs, is being offered by a Swiss syndicate managed by the Union de Banques Suisse, Societe de Banque Suisse and Credit Suisse.

The notes, which carry an interest rate of five per cent, will mature Sept. 21, 1992 and are being offered to the public at a price of $99.50.

With four months remaining in its fiscal year, Hydro has confirmed borrowings of close to $900 million for 1977, but this does not include a private sale of bonds in the United States worth about $200 million. Hydro officials have refused to comment on this issue.

U.S. Steel

U.S. Steel Corp's huge south Chicago works could be forced to close within the next few months because of a financial squeeze brought on by foreign competition, says a company spokesman.

The spokesman said environmental costs and higher taxes were also factors, but the primary worry was competition from imports of foreign steel.

He also noted weak demand for structural steel and other heavy products made at the south Chicago works, second largest plant of the biggest U.S. steelmaker.

He said there were no plans at present to close the plant, but U.S. Steel was looking at operations hard hit by foreign competition with a view to closing to avoid further losses.

The south Chicago works, with 6,500 employees, has been operating at about 50 per cent of capacity and is losing money, the spokesman said.

The company plans to reduce its administrative work force at all five of its Chicago-area plants by about 15 per cent, or about 1,000 white-collar jobs, by the end of this year, he added.

IMPERIAL OIL LIMITED

Richard A. Bray — Donald K. McIvor

Richard A. Bray has been elected a director and a senior vice-president of Imperial Oil Limited. Mr. Bray's election fills the vacancy on Imperial's board caused by the election of Donald K. McIvor, formerly an executive vice-president of the company, as vice-president, production, Exxon Corporation.

A native of Winnipeg, Mr. McIvor joined the company in 1950 after graduating in geology from the University of Manitoba. He became manager of the exploration research department in Calgary in 1967 and moved to Toronto in 1968 as assistant manager of the coordination and economics department. He became exploration manager in 1971, was elected a director and senior vice-president in April 1973 and became an executive vice-president in 1975.

Mr. Bray joined Exxon in 1958 after graduating in geology from the University of Oregon. He has filled management positions in various centres of Exxon U.S.A.'s exploration operations. In August, 1975, Mr. Bray moved to New York as deputy manager of the exploration division of Exxon Corporation's world-wide operations. •••

POLICEMAN DUCKS

VANCOUVER (CP) — A city policeman is alive today because he ducked at the right moment in a shot-punctuated chase after a credit union robbery.

Four or five shots were fired by the robbers from the fleeing car at the pursuing police car. The passenger in the police car, Constable Warren Smith, 26, was struck twice by bullets in the right arm.

The shooting started when the patrol car closed to within about 30 feet of the robbers. Smith saw one robber poke a handgun out the window of the fleeing car. The policeman ducked as one shot put a hole in the windshield directly in front of where he had been sitting.

Smith was operated on late Tuesday and his condition was reported as good.

The chase developed after a holdup at the Caisse Populaire credit union in which about $6,000 was taken by two masked men carrying handguns. They ordered the staff and three customers to lie face down on the floor and cleared out two tills before fleeing.

Dozens of officers, many carrying shotguns, blanketed the area and quickly found two suspects hiding in bushes. Police later found money believed to be part of the holdup loot.

Police were searching for a third man but no charges had been laid.

Gliders Try the Hang of Grouse

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — The clouds broke, finally, and the Strait of Georgia made a dazzling blue background for the urban sprawl below. But it wasn't Tuesday's atop Grouse Mountain that impressed the hang gliders.

Grouse, overlooking Vancouver, is the site of this weekend's North American hang gliding championship, and those of the 60 competitors who made practice flights raved about the air around the mountain. A non-glider had to ask why.

They talked about thermals, hot-air masses that form over Vancouver and break off like huge bubbles rising up against the mountains. They described coastals, steady sea breezes off the Pacific.

The combination of the two is what makes the drop off Grouse a good ride.

"It's a good, smooth area," said John Duthie of Invermere, B.C. "It doesn't contain any surprises that are anything but pleasant."

Gliders, harnessed beneath dacron sails and aluminum frames, can stay in the air for hours, spiralling up the centre of hot-air bubbles and drifting down the edges.

The ride is not always smooth—12 people killed in British Columbia in the last three years.

Dan Neff of North Vancouver almost became number 13 last Saturday.

Neff took a running start off Vedder Mountain east of here and rode a thermal higher than he's ever been since he graduated to high-flying from groundskimming flights about a month ago.

"When I came out of the thermal, I stalled out," said Neff, 26, from his bed in a Vancouver hospital.

Other gliders told Neff he fell about 600 feet before he hit trees that broke his fall and probably saved his life. Neff's back injury might mean a permanent disability, but he's quick to defend gliding.

"It's a tremendous sport," he said. "If my injury wasn't so serious, I'd do it again."

The Ministry of Transport is investigating the accident, but it is a difficult sport to regulate.

Gliders cost up to $1,700 but the only other thing you need is a take-off spot. Some of them have been rather remote. Imagine police trying to stop Rob Burns of Anchorage, Alaska, who made a 30-minute flight from the 20,300-foot peak of Mount McKinley last summer, or Australian Bill Flewellyn who glided over Japan's Mount Fuji in July.

Control is more likely to come from inside rather than outside.

The Hang Gliding Association of Canada has developed a rating system that it hopes will lead to standard, quality instruction, an approach they prefer to licensing.

"If you're up by yourself in a hang glider, you have as much right to do that as you do to go rock climbing or do any other dangerous sport," said Don Arney, head of the association's B.C. branch.

Arney said most fatalities were a result of bad judgment by inexperienced gliders. He said two people were killed last year in 45-mile-an-hour winds, when most gliders would consider staying home if the winds reached 20.

"That's like rock-climbing with frayed ropes. If a person exercises proper judgment and still gets killed, that's when I get concerned."

As an indication that people are beginning to realize that good training reduces the danger, Arney said the hang-gliding boom is spreading to older men, more women and "married people with a lot of responsibility who've decided it's not really so dangerous."

Competitors in the North American championships must be single males under 30 years of age. They will score points for the length of time they stay in the air to a 40-minute maximum and for the accuracy and control they show when landing as close as possible to a 10-foot bull's eye 3,350 feet below the launching platform.

The ministry of transport has given the gliders clearance and blocked off nine square miles of air space up to 18,000 feet. That might be cutting it a bit tight— the world altitude record is 19,000.

No Application by Ulster For Kennedy's Custody

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyers representing suspected Irish terrorist James Kennedy said Tuesday that the Royal Ulster Constabulary has not tried to have Kennedy extradited to its jurisdiction.

The statement was backed up by Chief Inspector Herbert Norris of the RUC.

An unidentified RUC press officer said Monday that the force had applied formally for an extradition warrant to have Kennedy delivered to RUC jurisdiction.

In denying the statement, Norris also said that the RUC had not supplied fingerprints to Canadian authorities, nor has the RUC had any contact with the RCMP regarding Kennedy.

Inspector Lew Dempsey of the RCMP had said Monday that he had not heard of any application by Ulster authorities to obtain custody of Kennedy.

Kennedy, who RCMP says is James Joseph McCann, an Irish Republican Army terrorist, was arrested May 27 and held without bail during a deportation hearing.

RCMP officials said at the hearing that fingerprints of McCann, obtained from New Scotland yard, matched Kennedy's fingerprints.

Kennedy was ordered deported July 14, but the order has been stayed pending an appeal to the immigration appeal board. Kennedy was released Friday on $5,000 bail pending the appeal.

An aide to John Taylor, Kennedy's lawyer, said Tuesday that Kennedy's birth certificate has been received from members of his family in Ireland, and it confirms Kennedy's claim that he was born in Eire in 1940, and that his name is Peter Joseph Kennedy.

The Aide said that "in Ireland, James is sometimes used in place of the name

Safer Landings

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Ministry of Transport announced in a news release this week that distance measuring equipment will be installed and begin operating late this fall at Terrace airport.

The equipment enables pilots to determine the exact distance of their aircraft from an airport. Combining this with other flight data enables pilots to pinpoint their location and maintain a safe altitude during an approach flight.

The equipment will further enhance air safety in the mountainous terrain of the Terrace area, the ministry said.

Cost of the equipment is $72,500.

Court Blocks New Local

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dick Varty of Kamloops, a teamsters' union shop steward, was granted a court injunction Tuesday to prevent a new local from being formed without a hearing from its opponents before the labor relations board.

Varty launched the British Columbia Supreme Court action against seven Local 213 executives, including Senator Ed Lawson.

In a written judgment, Mr. Justice John Bouck said that Varty opposes the formation of a local which would mean approximately 2,000 members of Local 213 would become members of the new union Local 180 and that he has collected 800 signatures from Interior members.

Varty has asked for the injunction to provide time for the labor relations board to conduct a hearing into internal sturggle in the union.

Mr. Justice Bouck said "there is doubt in my mind as to whether the general executive should have proceeded and made the order it did (splitting the union) on May 12, 1977."

The injunction is in effect until Oct. 15.

Decertify Attempt Rejected

TRAIL (CP) — The British Columbia Labor Relations Board has announced it will make an active attempt to improve relations between pro-union and anti-union employees of a credit union here.

The move was announced in a recent board decision rejecting an application by an anti-union group at the Kootenay Savings Credit Union for decertification of the International Woodworkers of America as bargaining agent for the credit union's employees.

The board said that, while it rejected the decertification application, it would send representatives "to talk to all parties at their convenience and provide such assistance and guidance as may be appropriate."

The board found that employees had engaged in "bitties over the union while at work and pledged to monitor the situation for a six-month period or until the situation improves.

Evidence at the board's hearing into the dispute showed the credit union employees had split into two factions since the union was certified there two years ago.

The board found that employeeshad engaged in "bitter and vituperative" exchanges on the subject, which lowered morale and decreased efficiency.

During that period, the employer hired a lawyer who quietly interviewed some employees in an attempt to bolster the drive for decertification. This heightened tension, the board said, and convinced the union that the employer was intimidating workers.

The board noted that the employees applying for decertification were "a majority or near-majority" of the workers at the credit union, but point out that absence of employer interference is a major criterion of granting decertification.

The lawyer's interviews constituted interference, the board said, and as a result, "the board is not satisfied that the union has ceased to represent a majority of the employees in the unit."

The board said it would remain involved "to encourage the parties to engage in a fresh effort to improve their labor relationship."

Wallace Guest On Show

Conservative leader Scott Wallace will be the guest Thursday at 7 p.m. on Cable 10 for the last one-hour show in a 14-part series put on by Victoria social workers.

June Preston, president of the Victoria branch of the B.C. Association of Social Workers, said today her colleagues appreciate the Oak Bay MLA's efforts in the political arena even if they don't always agree with his politics.

Despite the system, she said, "he's still remained the same kind of man as when he went in."

Wallace has announced that he will be stepping down as B.C. Tory leader and withdrawing from the provincial political scene.

Williams Fails to Find Disputed Memo

Labor Minister Allan Williams said Tuesday a thorough search by his ministry has failed to find a document upon the existence of which NDP leader Dave Barrett has staked his seat.

Barrett said Monday he had obtained a document showing that the government is attempting to set up an employers council at the municipal level to bargain on a province-wide basis with public sector unions.

"I'll stake my seat against his (Williams') on this issue," Barrett told the legislature, and challenged the minister to resign if the document does not exist.

Williams said in an interview Tuesday it is obvious Barrett was badly misreading an unspecified document.

He said the document to which Barrett apparently was alluding dealt with an advisory group, one that was not intended to have any bargaining powers.

However, Barrett claimed Tuesday that a document recommending a negotiating group with wide-reaching powers does exist.

The opposition leader said he will not make public the document until Williams had more time to jog his memory.

Barrett promised, however, that he would soon raise the matter again in the legislature and said he is serious about staking his seat on the issue.

Finance Minister Evan Wolfe announced last June the formation of the council of Public Sector Employers, but denied Monday the group would have any bargaining powers.

RENT BILL APPROVED

Legislation calling for a large-scale revamping of landlord and tenant legislation received final reading in the legislature Tuesday.

Emery Barnes (NDP — Vancouver-Centre) said in an interview that Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair rushed through the Residential Tenancy Act to avoid what was in the initial stages of becoming a widespread campaign to fight the bill.

The legislation, which provides for removal of rent controls in selected areas, received approval in principle Monday and, with NDP opposition, received third reading Tuesday. It awaits Royal assent before becoming law.

Barnes said Mair was very clever by rushing the bill to avoid confrontation from several groups which were planning meetings to protest the bill.

Barnes predicted that because the NDP did not have time to mount an effective opposition to the bill, the office of the rentalsman and the rent review commission would be deluged with problems dealing with the interpretation of the act.

Gov't Proposes Open School Board Meetings

Legislation requiring school boards to publicize planned capital expenditures and to hold open meetings was introduced Tuesday in the legislature.

Education Minister Pat McGeer told reporters the Public Schools Amendment Act, 1977, is basically a housekeeping bill which contained several minor changes.

However, he said two sections provided for greater accountability of school boards to the public.

"While the public has access to the minutes of meetings, there was no clear statement that they could attend the actual proceedings," McGeer said in a news release.

Other amendments provide for greater public awareness of a spending proposals by requiring that the board publish them in a newspaper.

"However, once the proposal has been approved by the board and the ministry, the new provisions will speed up administrative procedures by reducing the period of time during which the proposals may be challenged in the courts to 10 days from 30 days," the statement said.

Another amendment establishes the right of any four or more electors to challenge before a judge of the Supreme or County courts the election or the right to continue in office of a trustee, said McGeer.

That provision, along with the section calling for publicity of meetings, is identical to ones in the municipal act, the minister said.

SENIORS GRANT

The Nelson Jubilee Manor Society has been awarded a supplementary capital grant of $11,511 from the ministry of municipal affairs and housing to assist the society to meet the final cost of its senior citizen's project, the ministry announced Tuesday.

Housing Minister Hugh Curtis said the latest grant brings the provincial financial contribution to $251,820.

Mineral Tax Bill Passed

The legislature gave third and final reading Tuesday to the controversial bill which will ensure that the province will not lose more than $39 million in mineral land tax it has collected.

The Mineral Land Tax Amendment Act was harshly criticized by all three opposition parties, as well as by lawyers.

The legislation clarifies a bill passed by the former NDP government, said Mines Minister Jim Chabot.

He said that although the Social Credit party opposed the bill when it formed the opposition, it now has the obligation to protect the funds which have been collected.

Several mining companies have launched court actions challenging the law, claiming it is unclear.

Opposition members said the amendments before the house are hypocritical and serve to circumvent the courts.

The NDP was joined by Conservative leader Scott Wallace and Liberal leader Gordon Gibson in opposing third reading, but the Social Credit majority allowed the bill to pass 27 to 16.

Also receiving third reading were the Ombudsman Act, which sets up a provincial ombudsman with far-reaching powers, and the Statistics Act, which gives B.C. access to Statistics Canada information.

The bills must receive Royal assent before becoming law.

The Ombudsman act passed unopposed but the house divided on the statistics act, with Gibson joining the government in supporting the bill, and Wallace and the NDP voting in opposition.

B.C. Rail 'Puppet Regime'

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson Tuesday lashed out at B.C. Rail as "a puppet regime following government restriction of information policy."

Gibson said on Aug. 5 he wrote to BCR chairman J. N. Fraine requesting costing data on repair work turned down by the railwest plant prior to its closure.

Railwest is a subsidiary of BCR which has been shut down by the Railwast plant attaining sufficient work orders.

On Aug. 25 Fraine wrote back to Gibson directing the Liberal leader's enquiries to Economic Development Minister Don Phillips who is on BCR's board of directors.

Gibson said that Fraine's reply shows that, "for all the protestations of independence, it demonstrates clearly that the BCR is still a puppet regime following government restriction of information policy."

Gibson, who has been constantly pushing for greater public access to information, said he wrote back to Fraine to "indicate the unacceptability of this kind of response."

In his letter to Fraine Gibson states: "I must say I was astonished to see your reply. I asked you a simple, straightforward question . . . and you refer me to another board member . . . that neither is, nor pretends to be, an expert in the technical details of the running of the BCR . . .

"Let me remind you that the B.C. Railway is not a department of government; rather it is a Crown corporation and you, as head of that Crown corporation, have not only very right but every responsibility to communicate directly with members of the public, who are the owners of the BCR, and to MLAs, who are the representatives of the public."

Soldiers May Brawl

TRENTON, Ont. (CP) — A Canadian Forces Base spokesman said Tuesday that brawls in Trenton bars may swell when the Canadian Airborne Regiment comes to town in late October.

Capt. Bruce McKay, base protocol officer, said in an interview: "You'll never get a public-relations guy to back off and say they're nice people. They're not nice people. Nice people don't win wars."

Later in the interview, however, Capt. McKay said the airborne regiment "are proud members of a hard elite force and they will behave as such.

"They are good boys. They will be well monitored and looked after."

The 1,000-man parachute regiment, recently transferred to Petawawa, Ont., from Edmonton to be part of a special service force, say they have brought with them an undeserved reputation as brawlers.

The regiment began the transfer to Petawawa in mid-July. Members say they are being unfairly branded as toughs and hoodlums in Pembroke, about 10 miles from the Petawawa base.

The regiment will be in Trenton for a week for special tactics exercises.

Pembroke police and Petawawa military authorities say the soldiers are bearing more than their share of blame for several fights in bars there.

Orbiting Soviet Vehicle Mystifies U.S. Observers

New York Times

WASHINGTON — Western space observers are puzzled by a mysterious Soviet vehicle that has been in orbit for more than a month.

Some observers speculate more than a month.

It appears to be as large as the Soviet manned space laboratories of the Salyut series. Its orbit and radio telemetry characteristics suggest that it too is related to a manned space flight effort but there appears to be no crew on board.

Some observers speculate that it is either a test flight for a future space station or the first unit of a large station that could be assembled in orbit. Soviet space authorities have named it Cosmos 929 but have revealed virtually nothing about it.

In recent years Soviet space experts have discussed the possibility of assembling a large space station in orbit.

There were reports from Europe this year indicating that the Soviets planned to launch a space laboratory this summer. It was widely assumed that this was to be another Salyut, but no such orbiting vehicle has been launched.

Previously five Salyuts have been put in orbit, the first early in 1971. They were each about a fifth the size of the U.S. Skylab put into orbit in 1973.

One U.S. space observer speculated that the anniversary this fall of the October Revolution would be a logical time for the Soviet Union to announce its next major step in space and that Cosmos 929 might be related to such a development. He stressed, however, that this was only speculation.

Cosmos 929 was launched July 17 and attracted the interest of spacecraft watchers because of its size, its orbital characteristics and its radio telemetry.

Observers said it was unusual because it appeared to have two separate radio telemetry systems — almost as though it was really two distinct space objects joined together. After a major orbit change on Aug. 18, one of the two radio transmissions changed significantly. It is unknown whether a part of the vehicle was detached at that time.

$86,000 Bid for Beacon Hill School Wins

The high bidder representing private enterprise appears to have triumphed over the very low bidder representing community interests in determining the future of the old Beacon Hill School property.

Victoria city council's land management committee recommended Tuesday that an offer from Town and Country Realty Ltd. to purchase the property for $86,000 be accepted. The company plans to retain the building and convert it to residential suites.

The only other bid was submitted by the James Bay Residents' League. The group had offered $1 to acquire the building for crafts activities and other types of community use.

The only committee member disinclined to accept the realty firm's tender was Ald. John Hayes, who said the price wasn't high enough.

But Ald. Bob Wright pointed out that the property had already been advertised twice. "How many more times do you want to advertise it?" he asked. "This is ridiculous."

Wright said he believed the Town and Country proposal was a fair compromise between the community's stated desire to retain the building and the city receiving "top dollar" for the property.

After the meeting Charles Ball, spokesman for the James Bay Residents' League, termed the committee's decision entirely predictable.

"I think it was a foregone conclusion that the city would go with the highest financial offer," Ball said. "The request for alternative proposals was pure tokenism on their part, because they had no serious intention of going any other route."

Ball said James Bay residents will be disappointed at the outcome, not least because the proposed development conflicts with their view that the neighborhood's population is already higher than it should be due to intensive apartment and condominium development.

But he said the group plans to continue its fight when the school property is brought forward for rezoning to residential use.

BLACKTOPPING ARGUMENT WINS

Despite the misgivings of its chairman, Ald. John Hayes, Victoria's neighborhood improvement committee recommended Tuesday that a portion of Banfield Park in Victoria West be blacktopped for 13 parking spaces.

The parking accommodation is needed for the new Vic West community centre which is also being built in the park.

Hayes said he was reluctant to see any more parkland eaten up by development.

But traffic engineer Derek Wild said he felt the parking lot would not destroy "any of the visual esthetics of the park." The parks administrator was also happy with the proposed location because it would preserve the existing trees in the area, he said.

Wild said it is essential to provide the parking because the community centre isn't centrally located in Vic West and many users will arrive by car, especially in rainy weather.

Street parking on Craigflower is out of the question due to the heavy traffic using the road as a through route to the Western Community, he noted.

In other business Tuesday, the committee recommended that city council turn down a request for a $287 grant from the James Bay New Horizons Society.

The group stated that it needed the cash to pay the insurance premium on the city-owned building which it occupies at 234 Menzies.

Wright Objects to Paint

Slapping gallons of yellow paint on city streets for lane demarcation may be fine for traffic direction but the result is far from esthetically pleasing, Ald. Bob Wright complained Tuesday.

Specifically, Wright said the policy doesn't seem to make much sense in residential areas where the city is trying to encourage the preservation of heritage homes.

The alderman, who protested a few months ago that some "free spirit" had been set loose with a paintbrush on Hillside Avenue, expressed similar concerns about the recently painted surface of Cook Street.

"We're trying to preserve heritage buildings and our streets are looking more like the Georgia turnpike every day," he added.

But Wright made no motion to change the policy, and other committee members appeared to accept the traffic engineer's assurance that the painting was necessary.

Trudeau to Witness Canal Treaty

By CLAUDE ADAMS
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Prime Minister Trudeau arrives here next week to witness the signing of an historic canal treaty, but chances are a pipeline, and not Panama, will be his main concern.

Sept. 7 is the day that heads of state from the three Americas will gather here to attend the signing of the Panama Canal treaties between the U.S. and Panama, at a ceremony set up by the Organization of American States (OAS).

It will be the first time that a Canadian prime minister attends an OAS function, as Canada has only "observer" status in the group.

There is speculation that the guest list for the signing ceremony has been stacked to lend an air of hemispheric importance to the event. The treaties, ceding the canal to Panama by the year 2000, still face a tough ratification battle in the U.S. Congress.

More important to Canada, however, "on or about" Sept. 7 is the target date for a White House decision on how the U.S. plans to bring Alaska natural gas to the lower 48 states: either via a trans-Canada pipeline, or in liquefied form aboard tankers from the Alaska port of Valdez.

President Jimmy Carter wants to make the announcement when Congress resumes sittings next week.

The contents of the Carter-Trudeau talks next week will be determined by what happens at the negotiating level over the next few days.

Judging by the guarded comments of White House spokesmen, the negotiations over the pipeline route have reached an impasse.

Before any agreement is signed between Canada and the U.S., Carter's energy secretary, James Schlesinger, would visit Ottawa to clear up a number of specific points.

"However, we are not at the point of announcing Mr. Schlinger's decision to go to Ottawa," a spokesman said Tuesday.

Trudeau's visit here next week will dramatize the different preoccupations of Canada and the U.S. at the present time. The question of the Panama Canal has riveted American attention for the past few weeks, and almost completely overshadowed the pipeline question.

Lance's Lawyer Angered

WASHINGTON (WP) — J. B. Langford, a lawyer for Bert Lance in Calhoun, Ga., and a member of the board of the Calhoun First National Bank, claimed Tuesday that he had been misquoted in a story in Tuesday's Washington Post.

In an angry confrontation with Post staff writer John F. Berry in the Gordon County Courthouse in Calhoun Tuesday, Langford said he would sue Berry and The Post.

The Post story reported that Langford and another knowledgeable source had said that outside board members of the Calhoun First National Bank knew nothing about overdrafts of up to $450,000 by members of Bert Lance's family until these overdrafts were pointed out by a federal bank examiner.

CHRYSLER CARS CALLED LEMONS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Citing hundreds of complaints from owners, the Centre for Auto Safety told Chrysler Corp. Tuesday its popular Aspen and Volare automobiles are turning out to be "lemons."

"The results of our investigation reflect disturbing safety and consumer problems as well as poor quality control with Chrysler Corp., and mandate your immediate attention," the group told company president John Riccardo in a letter.

The company had no immediate reply.

Lawyers for the centre said they based their allegations on more than 450 letters complaining of problems with carburetors, brakes, transmissions, steering and fuel economy involving all Chrysler products turned out from 1975 through 1977.

The group, funded by Ralph Nader and Consumers Union but now operating independently, said it was "alarmed by this large and ever-increasing volume of mail."

The Plymouth Volare and the Dodge Aspen, basically the same car and both introduced in 1976, were the most popular models in terms of sales in Chrysler's line last year.

But the centre said: "because almost half of the complaints were from 1976 Volare-Aspens, we have selected this model as Chrysler's biggest lemon with the following breakdown of most frequent complaints: 58 per cent experienced carburetor problems, 26 per cent had brake problems, 18 per cent had transmission problems and 23 per cent had steering problems.

INDIAN LAND CLAIM BACKED BY GOV'T

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. interior department took another step toward resolving historic Indian land claims Tuesday asking the justice department to support the Catawba Tribe's claim to 140,000 acres of South Carolina, including two towns.

Earlier this year interior recommended similar intervention in behalf of tribes in New York and Maine.

Leo M. Krulitz, interior's solicitor, said the small Catawba tribe of about 1,200 has been seeking federal help in pressing its case since 1904.

"The action we recommend is that the United States finally act upon its long neglected duty . . .' and nullify an 1840 treaty giving the land to the state, Krulitz said.

Speared Mastodon Slowly Died

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — The discovery that a 10-foot-tall mastodon survived many months with a bone spear in its back may dash scientists' hopes that the beast's resting place near Sequim will yeild information about early man.

Scientists here learned Monday that the injured mastodon survived about 10 months before it died more than 10,000 years ago.

Dr. Marvin Wallace at a radiology lab here said the wound showed signs of healing. In a person, it would take three months to heal that much, he said.

They had hoped men killed the animal and left behid evidence of their culture. If the mastodon died alone, no such evidence will be found.

Dr. Carl Gustafson, Washington State University zoologist, said he was nevertheless encouraged by the find.

The spear point "would be the earliest evidence of man in the northwest, possibly the new world," he said.

"I'm convinced a spear point is what it is," said Gustafson, head of a team of scientists excavating the mastodon bones from a peat bog near Sequim on the Olympic Peninsula.

The spear point was found embedded in the end of a six-inch piece of rib. Gustafson said the spear would have had to penetrate 10 inches of muscle along the animal's spine to hit the rib.

Texas to Poison Its Murderers

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The death injection, approved by the Texas legislature for condemned prisoners, will be administered in the electric chair that has killed 361 people since 1923, state corrections officials said Tuesday.

Ron Taylor, a spokesman for the corrections department, said the procedures will remain the same. The chair will be in the same place in which it has been for 54 years.

"But instead of electricity passing through his body a chemical will be injected," Taylor said. The corrections department will not identify the person who will administer the injection, he said.

So far, it has not been determined what chemical or combination of chemicals will be used for execution. Taylor said that decision will be made by Sept. 12 — one day before convicted murderer Howard Lincoln King, 53, is scheduled to die.

"We've limited it to three substances: sodium thiopental, succinylcholine chloride or sodium cyanide; one or more in some combination will be used," Taylor said.

Two executions are scheduled for Sept. 16 — those of Billy Battie, 20, of Tarrant County, and James Livingston, 30, of Dallas County. Both were convicted of capital murder.

There are 65 men on Huntsville's death row.

"It will take a matter of minutes and it is painless," Taylor said of the injection. "The prisoner will lose consciousness in a matter of seconds."

CONDOMINIUM POLICY RAPPED

Saanich council was accused Tuesday of treating condominium owners as second class citizens.

Lew Jones, president of the Greater Victoria Strata Corporations Association, raked council's policy of placing townhouses in crowded areas along arterial roads with little access to parks and other green areas.

Jones told the aldermen 90 per cent of condominium owners are older people who have had to sell their single-family homes for various reasons.

He said Victoria and Oak Bay are more advanced in their policy on condominiums, placing them in more attractive areas.

Jones asked the aldermen if they are content to force elderly Saanich residents to move to the city or Oak Bay when they can no longer maintain their large homes.

Both Ald. Davis Paterson and Ald. Ian Cass said it's a fact of life that most Saanich residents do not want high density development in their area.

Cass pointed out North Quadra residents, as an example, turned out en mass to protest such development in that community.

Committee chairman Ald. Fred Severson told Jones it has been the policy to place condominiums on arterial roads so that residents would have easy access to shops, medical buildings, bus stops and other services.

Jones rallied with the observation that very few condominium owners were without cars.

The matter will be debated at a special meeting of the lands, planning and housing committee.

Singing Canaries May Be High on Marijuana

Does your canary sing his little heart out after lunch? Does your budgie daydream after a snack? If so, your pet may be enjoying a little dope with dinner.

Tests are being conducted on a brand of West German birdseed to determine if brown seeds in the product are really marijuana, an RCMP spokesman in Vancouver said Tuesday.

The manufacturer, Vitakraft, is Europe's largest maker of pet foods for birds and small animals. It guarantees its product "promotes singing in canaries and other song birds."

Sing-Song Treat contains among other things, 62.5 per cent rapeseed, 15 per cent radish seed, three per cent honey and 15 per cent Nigerseed.

The National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws in Canada (NORML) says Nigerseed is really cannabis savita, or marijuana.

NORML spokesman George Baker said some of his organization's members accidentally discovered and then grew the seeds several weeks ago.

A University of B.C. botany professor confirmed the finding, Baker said. The point NORML is making is that under present drug laws, a lot of stores could be charged with trafficking, an offence where conviction can bring a life sentence.

But a police spokesman said even if the birdseed is laced with marijuana seeds, there has to be intent "and I don't think we have that here."

In Victoria, one pet store spokesman said it's not the Nigerseed but the radish seed which is suspect and there's been a debate about it for years.

The seed, which sells for 35 cents for three-quarters of an ounce, is not particularly poular, he said. Some birds seem to sing more after eating, others don't.

Pyramid Selling Charges

EDMONTON (CP) — A Wetaskiwin, Alta., couple accused of running a pyramid selling operation took $15,000 out of the operation in three months, a witness testified Tuesday in provincial court.

John and Cheryl Martin, who operated as J and C General Agencies, have denied charges under the lotteries and games of chance section of the criminal code and a charge under the Combines Investigation Act.

Clarence Maimann, an Edmonton accountant appearing as an expert witness for the Crown, said his examination of books seized from the Martins' office showed that between May 31 and August 31, 1976, their operation received $24,908 in income.

He said their expenses for the period, shown by cheques issued, ammounted to $23,193. He said the figure included personal drawings 'by the Martins of about $15,000.

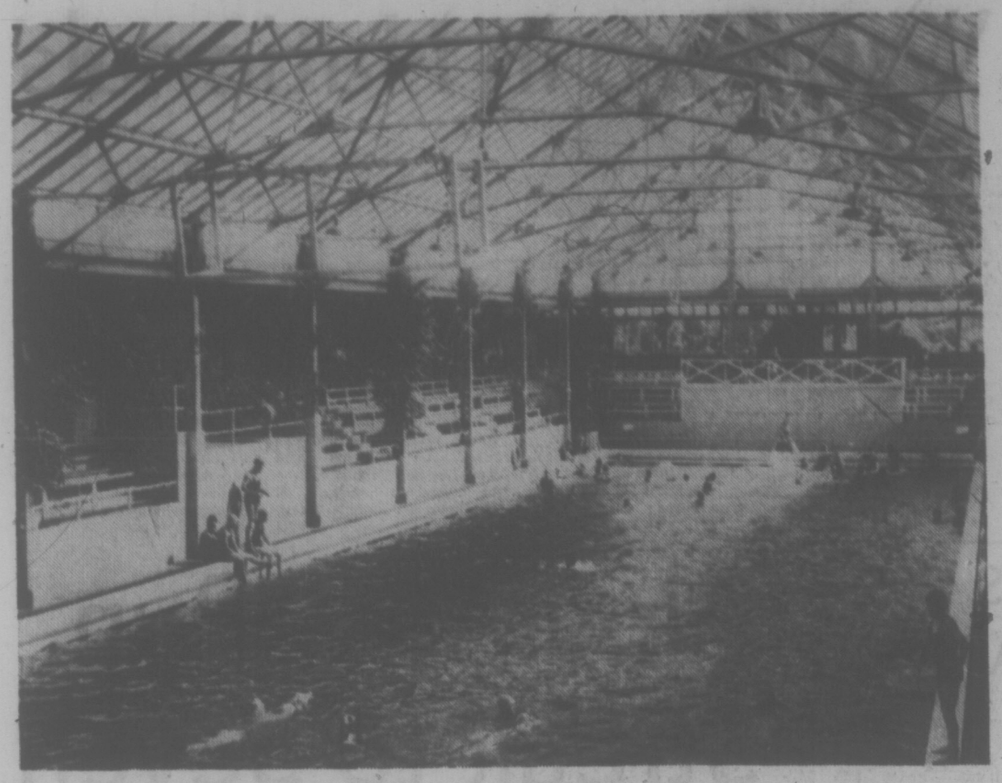
Victoria Times SECOND FRONT PAGE



BEFORE: An afternoon swimming session at Crystal Pool in 1930

AFTER: Contributing author Terry Reksten visited the remains Tuesday

Can Nostalgia Save Crystal Garden?

Nostalgia tugs at us all every now and then.

And that obviously is what six Victoria writers and artists are counting on to sell their new book, The Crystal With the Crystal Garden" is sure Palace.

Not that they stand to make anything themselves, though, for those involved are turning over all profits from the book (the soft-cover version sells at $7.95 a copy and there is a limited hardcover edition at $40) to a fund for the preservation of the old glass building.

Like Pierre Berton, whose introduction "My Love Affair Garden — West Coast Pleanostalgia personified, the six want to see what is now just a shattered shell come to life again.

They want to see the people of Victoria using it and enjoying it once more, and being proud of it as they were when it was a renowned tourist landmark. In the good old days — days of dipping in the heated saltwater pool, of sipping tea and munching crumpets under the palm fronds, of swaying to the dance music of the big bands.

It's a great idea, for it's sad to see the Crystal as it is today, even for a relative newcomer, and must be even more so for those who, like Pierre Berton, spent their 'teens in her embrace. And maybe learned to swim and to dance and fell in love there.

It's a fascinating book, too, although I fear the six plus Pierre are dreamers all.

Now don't get me wrong. It is not a soppy book, merely dripping with nostalgia. It is, in fact, a well-researched, well put-together work blending memories with mountains of photos and facts and figures.

There are diagrams and illustrations showing the layout of the Crystal as it was and all the uses it had.

There's a chapter titled simply The Crystal Garden, by researcher-writer Carolyn Smyly, telling how it all came about and recalling the great days of Bert Zala and his band; of Johnny Wismuller smashing world records and the kids from the corner splashing in its waters.

There is a chapter by writer Terry Reksten, a member of Victoria's Heritage Advisory Commitee, on Francis Mawson Rattenbury, who envisioned the Crystal, and another chapter by researcher Alastair Kerr on Percy Leonard James, who took over from "Ratz" as architect.

And there is Iron and Glass, a chapter written by well-known art historian and chairman of the Heritage Advisory Committee, Martin Segger, comparing the Crystal Garden with other similar yet very different buildings throughout the world.

But bound to be the most

memory-provoking are the three pictorial chapters put together by Stuart Stark and Rennie Knowlton, a couple of museum technicians who double as graphic designers and artists. This is where you see the Crystal as it was — the old photos of tea-sipping in the '20s, of people lining up in the '30s, the dances, the dog shows, the gymnastics, and the priceless old advertisements and clippings from the press.

It's an interesting book, sure. Yet it has no answers.

If the Crystal is to be preserved, even restored, then what is to become of it? There have been many suggestions over the years but so far there are no answers. And the six plus Pierre don't offer any.

All agree, though, it must be saved.

Berton calls it irreplaceable. He says that she is "irreplaceable, but, thankfully not irrepairable." And he says "she can be renewed and she must be."

After surveying other countries, Segger concludes the Crystal is "a major and unique landmark in Victoria, the lone survivor of a generation of world class buildings."

And Kerr warns:

"The fate of the Crystal Garden must now be decided. Percy Leonard James was the talented architect who conceived th e building's final form, but in the totality of its historical importance, he was only the man who gave shape to a unique architectural and social phenomenon which existed in Victoria during the twenties, and which had its roots in Victorian England.

"What remains is a matchless remnant in the Canadian architectural landscape. Should it be allowed to disappear, the present and future generations would lose an unparalleled part of their heritage: an era that has gone forever."

Eloquent, certainly. Yet, still no one suggests wha can be done, how she can be saved.

Earlier in his chapter, Kerr admits that today the roof trusses tnd the supporting steelwork are ltmentably corroded, the valley framing of the roof structure is totally rotten, about 25 per cent of the glass is missing, broken or cracked and nearly all the panes leak.

"If repairs are attempted," writes Kerr, "the entire roof structure would have to be taken down, the condemned steel replaced, existing glass cleaned, damaged glass replaced, and then re-erected, all at a great cost."

Deciding how to save it and what to do with it are really in the "second stage," says Terry Reksten.

"We didn't try to find answers," she explains. "This is a book outlining why the Crystal is an interesting building and why it's important to Victoria's social history.

"This is the first time that anybody has raised any money to try to save the Crystal.

"If all it does is revive a few memories ... then there's nothing wrong with that either."

The End Of Call Boxes

The Victoria fire department next week will disconnect the city's call box fire alarm system.

Chief Eric Simmons said today the system, which has been in operation since 1891, will go out of service around noon Tuesday.

Placards will be placed on the 106 boxes in the system advising they are no longer in use. After that, persons reporting fires will be required to do so by phone.

Simmons said the demise of the call box is the result of soaring maintenance costs and a large number of false alarms.

He said the underground wiring to the boxes needs to be replaced, a job that would cost several thousand dollars.

The chief noted more than 90 per cent of alarms in recent years have been false. In 1976, 152 of the 168 box alarms were false and in 1975, 188 of 210.

Victoria is the only municipality in Greater Victoria with the call box system. The Canadian Forces Base at Esquimalt has one but a spokesman for Dockyard fire department said today the defence ministry is considering abandoning it for the same reasons as the city.

FOOT PATROLS 'IMPRACTICAL'

Calls for Victoria police department to establish foot patrols in residential neighborhoods were discounted as impractical by Victoria police board members today.

Although the matter was left open for further discussion, board members felt that the policemen walking beats would be a less efficient method of combatting crime than the present system of two-man cruisers.

Among those who have recently urged reintroduction of foot patrols are James Bay residents, following a street assault in that neighborhood, Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber and police board member Phil Fawcett.

Fawcett was not at today's board meeting but he submitted a letter saying that in his five years on the board he has become "increasingly persuaded of the need for, and value of, community policing in Victoria."

Noting that Police Chief Jack Gregory has pinpointed a lack of manpower as the main problem, Fawcett said perhaps the answer is to recruit more officers.

He suggested setting up a committee with representatives from the police board, police administration, constables and the community with the object of establishing an experimental community policing program in one Victoria neighborhood.

Board chairman, Mayor Mike Young, said that he doubted such a scheme would be practical.

Young said he explained at a recent meeting of the Community Planning Association of Canada that, with the demands of annual leave, sick leave, training and so on, it is almost impossible to comcit a significant proportion of the department to work on exclusively community policing in one area.

Gregory pointed out that the city's geographical area is only 7½ square miles and that two men in a cruiser can cover about a quarter of that area in less than three minutes whereas two men on foot could cover only a relatively small area.

Second Attempt On N.I.P.

A second attempt to obtain Neighborhood Improvement Program funding for rehabilitating parts of downtown will be made by Victoria next week.

When the original application was submitted last year the city was told that 1977 program funds had already been committed, and was advised to apply again for the 1978 program.

If the bid is successful, the area to be designated would stretch from Bay almost to Beacon Hill Park and from Cook to the Inner Harbor.

Among the specific districts earmarked for improved amenities would be Chinatown and View Street.

Three city neighborhoods have already received NIP assistance: James Bay, Victoria West and Fernwood-Spring Ridge.

It was former city alderman Sam. Bawlf who first suggested that similar treatment be given to parts of the downtown area.

Victoria Coupon Scheme Bids for Winter Tourists

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria will launch a coupon tourist promotion project funded by the travel ministry, it was announced today.

The project, which will start in November, will involve full-page advertisements in Vancouver newspapers offering discounts on a wide variety of hotels, restaurants, stores and tourist attractions in Victoria.

The department of travel will pay all costs of the original advertising.

The project is being co-ordinated locally by the Visitors Information Centre (VIC).

Manager Don Nixon said the promotion could attract large numbers of tourists during the off-season. The discounts would be available from Nov. 1 to Dec. 15.

A second advertising spread may be required about the third week in November, Nixon said, and if so, this would be funded by the VIC.

Nixon said similar advertising is planned for early spring in Seattle.

This will precede but not necessarily replace a passport scheme suggested by Mayor Mike Young. The mayor urged the VIC to offer a tourist passport which would be stamped at every store or attraction visitors patronize.

At the end of the visit, a tourist would present the passport to the VIC Causeway office and receive a cash rebate equal to the cost of the ferry fare.

"We are interested in the passport program but it is difficult to administer. We are still studying it. It hasn't been dropped but it is on hold," Nixon said.

"Meahhile, we are pushing ahead with this coupon plan which is quite straightforward and something we can do right away."

Nixon is collecting advertising coupons from Victoria merchants and will assemble them into the advertisement, which will cover at least 1½ pages in both Vancouver newspapers.

Because of the government funding, Victoria merchants

NIXON
. . . Mainland ad blitz

will not have to pay for their ad but they will be asked to make significant discounts in their offer.

"We like this program because it should encourage visitors when we need them most," Nixon said.

"In addition, the cost to the merchants will be directly related to the benefits the merchant receives."

With the passport scheme, the VIC would have to collect from all the merchants on the passport after the ferry refund had been made. Nixon said it would be difficult to know how much to collect from each merchant because the tourist may have spent $20 at one place and only $3 at another and this would not be indicated on the passport.

Nixon said the coupon scheme would be reviewed after Dec. 15 to see if it should be repeated in Seattle and at that time the passport plan would also get a second look.

Nixon said no coupons would be offered for the summer months.

Planning Marathon Ends with Mika Rebuke

Saanich Ald. John Mika's call for a referendum on the municipality's community plan gained no support at Tuesday night's meeting of the lands, planning and housing committee.

Instead, Mika was rebuked for trying to pin down assistant planner Alan Hopper on whether he felt a vote should be held.

The showdown came toward the end of a marathon six-hour meeting after a report from the planning department was read. In the report, the planners cautioned that the Municipal Act only allows a yes or no vote to be taken.

"Is it the position of the planning staff that a plebiscite should not be held?" Mika asked Hopper.

"Under the act council is restricted to asking yes or no. I don't think that's appropriate feedback," Hopper replied.

"I think it's very unfair of any member of council to ask whether he (Hopper) will or will not support a referendum," rebuked committee chairman Ald. Fred Severson. "I don't think it's our position to ask them (staff) what their position is."

Ald. David paterson observed: "All I see is that staff has brought to the attention of the committee the ramifications and restraints of a referendum."

"This is precisely why we should have public hearings. Why are we deferring them?" Ald. Joe Bourque asked Mika.

"We will vote against that kind of thing at the next council meeting."

Earlier in the meeting, Bourque remarked: "We seem to be brewing a very interesting chowder. What kind of soup are we going to make Sept 6 (the next council meeting)?"

Severson served notice he wil call for specific details on the proposed freeze on Sept. 6, asking that "specific areas of concern" be outlined.

"Council must and should take action," he said.

Bourque agreed. "If we uphold that decision (the 120-day freeze on the community plan) we throw them (the planning department) into a cocked hat."

Mika then made an abortive atttempt to introduce a motion without prior notice.

Mika called for studies to be held on the capital and operating costs and other impacts of the propsed Royal Oak industrial park, Broadmead shopping centre, Tillicum-Burnside shopping centre, the arterial Quadra-Munns highway and Minnie Mountain housing project.

He called for administrator Bill Tremayne, municipal planner Gil Laurenson and comptroller-treasurer Roy Broughton to have the studies prepared for the Sept. 6 meeting.

"We keep getting thunderbolts out of the blue. I think it's out of order to produce a long, encompassing motion when we haven't had a chance to study it,' 'Paterson retorted.

While agreeing with Paterson, Ald. Ian Cass said there are "very significant statements that have merit" in Mika's motion.

On a motion from Paterson, the Committee agreed the planner's report be circulated to all ratepayers' associations and a series of meetings be set up as early as possible on the controlversial issues raised by the community plan.

Sooke Mishap Injures Four

Four persons were injured when two cars collided on the West Coast Road about four miles west of Sooke Tuesday.

Sooke RCMP said Sandra Ferguson, 19, of Sooke and two passengers in her car, Terry Edwards, 30, and Tony Young, 25, were taken to Victoria General Hospital where they were treated for head injuries and released.

David Foster, 35, of Sooke, the driver of the other car was treated in Sooke, also for head injuries.

Thetis Hit By Thieves

It hasn't been as bad as last year, but thieves are active at Thetis Lake Park this summer with Colwood RCMP reporting 11 incidents so far involving the loss of just over $1,200 cash.

The most recent theft — which was also the biggest — occurred Sunday when an Oregon woman and friend lost $630 between them after the trunk of their car was pried open and their purses taken.

Police said the majority of the 10 other incidents involved locked cars and in two cases trunks were pried open.

FERGUSON GETS HONOR: TOUR ROOKIE OF YEAR

Victoria professional Cec Ferguson can throw an extra credential into the large and talented field scheduled to tee off Saturday in the annual Metro Toyota-CFAX open golf tournament at Cedar Hill.

The 27-year-old Ferguson has been named the 1977 rookie-of-the-year on the Canadian tour.

Selection is based on points accumulated in nine Canadian tournaments. Ferguson beat out Pat O'Donnell of Windsor with Kelly Roberts of London finishing third.

The award is worth $500 to Ferguson, who has won about $25,000 since turning professional last September.

Ferguson will join Dave Bartr of Kelowna, Victoria's Jimmy Rutledge and a flock of other talented pros and amateurs in the scramble for $8,000 in prizes at the Cedar Hill tournament this weekend.

Barr, winner of the B.C., Alberta and Quebec Opens along with $17,132 in prize-money, is the winner of the Peter Jackson Cup as the top performer on the Canadian tour this year.

CEC FERGUSON
. . . plays on weekend

Rutledge, of course, won the Canadian junior title last weekend in Prince Albert, Sask.

In addition to Barr and Ferguson, seven other Canadian tour "regulars" are entered in the Cedar Hill show. They are Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Gar Hamilton of Weston, Ont., Dan Talbot of Beloeil, Que., and Victoria's Bob Beauchemin and John Morgan.

In all, a whopping 260 are entered.

Six of the pros, including Panasiuk, Hamilton, Talbot and Bill Wakeham of Duncan, will take part in a free golf clinic starting at 6 p.m. Friday.

Because of the large entry, play will begin at 6:30 a.m. Saturday and Sunday.

BURROWS CRASHES THREE HOME RUNS

Bates Win Two in Nationals

HULL, Que. — Victoria Bate, seeking a third straight Canadian championship, opened the preliminary round-robin section of the national tournament with a pair of close decisions here Tuesday.

And Bob Burrows took care of a lot of the scoring in both contests.

Burrows hit a home run as Bates eased past Prince Edward Island 1-0 in the morning and then provided the first two runs with a pair of homers as the Victoria club had to come from behind to top New Brunswick 4-3 in the eight-inning evening game.

During the opener, pickup Glen Langsett of Vancouver Eldorados tossed a three-hitter to win the pitching duel against PEI's Fred Morrison, who pitched a four-hitter.

Burrows connected for his home run in the third inning.

Things were a little tighter in the evening contest before centre-fielder Ken Bate singled with one out in the extra inning to drive in winning-pitcher Andy Konopaki with the deciding run.

Konopacki had singled, moved to second on a base hit by John Green and went to third as Carl Walker reached base on an error to fill the bases.

Despite the narrow victory, Bate managed to outhit New Brunswick, 10-4. The Victoria club left 12 men on base in the game and had 10 stranded in the game against PEI.

Bates were scheduled to meet the Alberta representatives from Calgary earlier today and will be idle Thursday.

They wrap up the round-robin portion of the tourney by meeting Nova Scotia and Quebec on Friday.

The crunch came after Burrows hit his first homer of the game in the second inning.

New Brunswick hitters collected all three of their runs off Konopacki in the third frame. Three singles, an error and a wild pitch allowed the Easternes to take a 3-1 lead before Konopacki regained control. He finished the game with 14 strikeouts.

Burrows then came up with his second round-tripper in the sixth inning and Harvey Stevenson drilled a run-scoring double in the seventh to tie things up and send the game into extra innings.

In all there were three no-hitters thrown in the first day of the tournament, which concludes Sunday afternoon.

Derm Hartley earned one as Calgary defeated Saint John 1-0, Bob Domik was on the mound in Oshawa's 2-0 win over St. John's Nfld., Shamrocks 2-0 and Barry Timbers did not allow a hit as Oshawa drubbed Yellowknife, N.W.T., Polar Bears, 5-0.

Hull defeated Yukon All-stars 5-2 and Newfoundland 7-1 with Claude Renaud hitting a home run in each game.

In the fginal game of the night, completed after 1 a.m., Calgary defeated P.E.I. 4-2 in an extra inning when Rick Cheetham hit a two-run single.

The teams play an elimination round until Friday when the top four teams in each of two divisions move into a double-knockout series leading to Sunday's championship final.

Rocks Must Produce As They Can—Dillon

An injury to defenceman Mike Beaulac is the latest blow to the Victoria Shamrocks but coach Nirmal Dillon doesn't expect it to be a factor in tonight's seveneh game of the Western Lacrosse Association final series with Vancouver Burrards at Kerrisdale Arena.

"We have to expect those things," he said.

"All we need is for some of our players to start producing as they can, and we'll be all right," he said.

"We had a team meeting Tuesday night and got a few things straightened out. We've beaten them before in Vancouver and we play well there, so there's no reason we can't win."

Beaulac suffered an injured ankle in Monday's game. He may be replaced by Pete Rushton. Beaulac was out of action earlier in the playoffs with a broken finger and had a slight ankle sprain before suffering further damage.

Burrards won the game 11-10 to square the best-of-seven series at three games each. It was the second straight win by the league champions who trailed the series 3-1. They won Saturday's game in Vancouver 12-11.

Shamrocks won the first game of the series at Vancouver 11-10 and the second at home 10-9. Burrards won the third at Vancouver 9-8 and lost the fourth here 11-9.

Today is the 34th birthday for coach Ross McDonald of Burrards and Dillon said "we hope to give him a present he won't soon forget."

Burrards will be at full strength for the deciding game and may have a slight home-floor edge. But McDonald isn't buying that. "These teams are too close to call," he said. "This has been one of the great series in lacrosse and I'm getting more respect for those guys (Shamrocks) with every game."

MIKE BEAULAC

Ranjit Dillon is the other injured Shamrock player. He suffered a partial shoulder separation while making a check last Thursday and is believed out for the season whether the Shamrocks win or lose. He will be replaced by Ken King.

Winner of the series will meet the Eastern champion Brampton Excelsiors in the first game of the Mann Cup national championship Saturday at the home of the Western winner.

Radio station CFAX (1070) will broadcast the game starting at 7:55 p.m.

OH HITS '755' TO TIE AARON

TOKYO (AP) — Sadaharu Oh, Japan's Babe Ruth, tied Hank Aaron's career home run total of 755 with a 298-foot drive into Korakuen Stadium's rightfield stands before 50,000 fans tonight.

It was the 2,425th professional game and 7,871st time at bat for Oh, 37, playing his 19th season with Toyko-based Yomiuri Giants.

Aaron, 42, and now retired, hit his 755th career home run on July 20, 1976. Aaron ended a 23-year-playing career with Atlanta Braves and Milwaukee Brewers on Oct. 11, 1976.

After Oh, five-foot-10 and 175 pounds, sent the 3-and-1 pitch out of the park, a thunderous roar erupted and Oh trotted around the bases waving to the crowd.

Marg Leads, Joan Second

WINNIPEG (CP) — Defending champion Margaret Todd of Victoria fired a nine-over-par 83 Tuesday to take the first-round lead in the Canadian senior ladies' golf championship at the Elmhurst Golf and Country Club.

Mrs. Todd holds a three-stroke lead over B.C. teammate Joan Lawson, also of Victoria. Betty Ingram of Ontario was third with 88.

B.C. also moved into the lead in team competitions with a 258 total, 16 strokes better than second-place Nova Scotia. Ontario was third, just one stroke behind Nova Scotia with 275.

The rains that interrupted the practice rounds Monday did not reappear for the opening day of play, but strong winds and wet course conditions resulted in high scores.

However, Mrs. Todd said the wind was not a factor in her round.

"My home course, the Victoria Golf Club, is along the sea so I'm quite used to playing in the wind," she said. "But the rain yesterday and the wet course conditions made the course play very long.

"Providing the weather holds out, the scores should be lower for the second round."

With Mrs. Todd and Mrs. Lawson on the B.C. team was Colleen McCullough, who finished with 89. All three played on the B.C. team that won the championship last year.

The medalist champion will receive the Ada MacKenzie Challenge Trophy, while the teams are competing for the Kay Helleur Trophy.

Exceller In Field At Laurel

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Nelson Bunker Hunt's Exceller, a top four-year-old who campaigns in Europe, was named Tuesday to run for France in the $250,000 Washington, D.C., International on Nov. 5 at Laurel Race Course.

Previously nominated for the 1½-mile grass test were Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew, Forego and J. O. Tobin from the United States and The Minstrel, Europe's leading three-year-old.

Exceller, who was purchased as a yearling for $25,000, has career earnings of $528,231. Under trainer Francois Mathet, Exceller has won the Epsom Coronation Cup and the Grand Prix de St. Cloud this year before finishing third to The Minstrel in the King George and Elizabeth Stakes.

France won the International with Dahlia in 1973, Admetus in 1974, Nobiliary in 1975 and Youth last year. All but Admetus were owned by Hunt, a Texan.

Alouettes Run Streak to Seven

By the Canadian Press

There are two things certain in the Canadian Football League these days—Montreal Alouettes are firmly entrenched in first place in the Eastern Conference and Calgary Stampeders are mired in last in the West.

The Alouettes, riding a string of seven conseeutive victories, beat Edmonton Eskimos 25-20 Tuesday night to maintain their perfect record atop the Eastern standings.

Montreal's total of 14 points has all but assured them of a first-place finish in the conference, barring a total collapse and a complete turnabout by the other three EFC teams.

Grey Cup-champion Ottawa Rough Riders, who play host to British Columbia Lions in an interlocking game tonight, are in second place with four points in six games.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who dropped a 20-19 decision to Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the other game Tuesday night, also have four points but have played seven games.

In the West, the Lions are clinging to first place and hold a two-point edge over Edmonton, Saskatchewan Roughriders and the Blue Bombers, who all have 4-3 won-lost records. Only the Stampeders, who have only one win in seven starts, appear to be out of the picture.

The passing and running of quarterback Joe Barnes, spectacular pass-catching by big tight end Peter Dalla Riva and a hard rush by the Montreal defensive front four led by Glen Weir were the deciding factors in the Alouettes win.

Montreal got touchdowns from John O'Leary on a one-yard line buck and Dalla Riva on a 22-yard pass as well as three field goals by Don Sweet from 22, 29 and nine yards. Alouettes' other points came on two converts by Sweet and a last-minute safety touch when defensive end Clifton Alapa trapped Edmonton relief quarterback Bruce Lemmerman behind his goal-line.

Edmonton touchdowns were both scored on passes, a 32-yarder to Peter Ribbins from Lemmerman and a seven-yard toss to Larry Highbaugh with Dave Cutler contributing field goals of 10 and 44 yards and two converts.

The Tiger-Cats, who stayed in the game by capitalizing on Winnipeg turnovers and penalties, were on the verge of converting another Bomber miscue into their second consecutive victory. But place-kicker Nick Jambrosic, following a Winnipeg fumble on a punt, hit a wobbly boot from the 22-yard line that went wide and Richard Crump gladly conceded the single point in the last minute of play.

"I didn't hit it right, I guess," said the subdued Jambrosic, a rookie. "There was no tip, no nothing. I just choked up on it."

The Winnipeg defence allowed Hamilton quarterback Jimmy Jones and running back Jimmy Edwards few opportunities to show their outstanding running abilities. Edwards did break loose for a 17-yard touchdown in the fourth quarter but it was one of the few times the Winnipeg defence was caught napping.

Athletics Take Title

Victoria Athletics captured the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League playoff title by nudging Seaboard Construction 5-4 Tuesday night in the fifth game of a best-of-seven series at Central Park.

Athletics, who finished second in the league to Sooke Merchants, won the series, 4-1.

Rick Bate tripled in the top of the seventh inning and then scored what proved to be the winning run in a single by Randy Benn.

Dennis Eckert bashed a three-run homer to score Barry Underwood and Bate, who had both singled, to open the first inning.

Benn, who entered the game in the fourth frame, singled and then scored on a single by Bob Bugslag to give Athletics a 4-3 lead in the sixth inning after Seaboard came up with three runs in the third to tie the score.

Ken Fox, who relieved starter Ray Beveridge in the third inning, was credited with the pitching victory.

Meanwhile, Castle Properties and Captial Builders forced a deciding game in the best-of-five Heywood Men's League playoff final by splitting a doubleheader at Royal Athletic Park.

Bob Butler connected for a double and three singles and Dave Hughes pitched a six-hitter as Builders won the opener, 5-3.

Then John Coccioloni, Bob Martin and Theo van den Burgh slammed out homers to lead a 20-hit attack as league-champion Castle took the second contest, 15-2.

Lorne Bowden picked up the pitching decision.

The deciding game is scheduled for 6:15 tonight at Heywood Avenue Park.

'Hate-Match' Opener

VIRGINIA VS. RENEE

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — For the next 12 days, Virginia Wade's goal will be to dethrone Chris Evert as the women's singles champion at the United States Open tennis championships, which begin today.

To do that, she will have to beat Renee Richards.

Thursday's first-round pairing of Wade, the Wimbledon champion and No. 3 seed, and Richards, the 43-year-old transsexual who had to go to court to gain a spot in the women's draw, is taking on all the trappings of a "hate match."

The participants have lashed at each other verbally during the last week, adding interest in the match to be played at the West Side Tennis Club.

The Richards-Wade match has overshadowed almost all other first-round pairings as the 128 men and 96 women began their chase for first prizes of $33,000 apiece from a total purse of $462,420.

Evert drew Sharon Walsh of Mill Valley, Calif., as her first-round foe Thursday in a march toward what she hopes will be a third consecutive women's title.

Other prime challengers for the women's crown include second-seeded Martina Navratilova, the Czech expatriate who opens against Mary Hamm of San Antonio, Tex., and fourth-rated Sue Barker, whose first-round opponent is Katja Ebbinghaus of West Germany.

The men's division is considered more wide open, with more than a dozen contenders for the title won last year by Jimmy Connors.

Bjorn Borg is seeded No. 1 following his stirring five-set triumph over Connors in the Wimbledon final. His goal is to reverse last year's U.S. Open final, when he lost to Connors 6-4, 3-6, 7-6, 6-4.

Connors, seeded second, would like nothing better than to beat Borg and reclaim his No. 1 rating. But he is not up to par physically, having been forced to withdraw last week from the U.S. Pro championships because of a chronic bad back.

Connors is scheduled to play his first-round match Thursday, as is Borg.

Fast Ball? Who Cares If They Can't Hit It

By the Associated Press

Early in the season, Milwaukee manager Alex Grammas said you could go into a coma waiting for Dave Rozema's fast ball to reach the plate, and that seems to be what happens to the Brewers against Detroit's rookie pitching sensation.

Rozema scattered nine hits Tuesday night for his 15th victory in 20 decisions and beat the Brewers for the fourth time in as many American League baseball outings.

"I really don't care what they say about my fast ball," Rozema said after the 4-2 triumph. "I've got what I've got. I just use what God gave me, and thank God I've got some other pitches.

"Everybody says I'm so slow. I don't think I am. I used to blow them down in Grand Rapids, Mich., —'14 strikeouts a game."

Elsewhere in the American League, the West Division tightened up when Texas Rangers whipped Kansas City Royals 8-2 and Chicago White Sox downed Cleveland Indians 3-1. That left the Royals two games ahead of the White Sox and the idle Minnesota Twins and 2½ in front of the Rangers.

In the East, New York Yankees edged Seattle Mariners 6-5 in 11 innings to remain three games ahead of Boston Red Sox, who trounced Oakland A's 7-2, and four in front of Baltimore Orioles, who blasted California Angels 8-2.

In winning for the eighth time in his last nine decisions, Rozema had help from a two-run homer by .194 hitter Aurelio Rodriguez.

Mickey Rivers homered off Diego Segui on the first pitch in the bottom of the 11th to give the Yankees their 20th victory in the last 23 games.

Fred Lynn drove in three runs, two with his 15th homer, Rick Burleson drove in a pair and Denny Doyle had a perfect night with two singles and two doubles as the Red Sox ended Oakland's longest winning streak of the season at six games.

In the National League, Jim Katt of Philadelphia Phillies scattered 10 hits in raising his season record to 6-7 and tying Carl Hubbell for 25th place on the all-time list for career victories. He ranks 25th for number of innings pitched.

The Phillies backed Kaat with a 15-hit attack, crushing Atlanta Braves 11-2 to retain their four-game lead in the National League East race.

In other games Tuesday, Cincinnati Reds edged Montreal Expos 4-3, Houston Astros defeated New York Mets 6-2, San Diego Padres stopped St. Louis Cardinals 7-4, Pittsburgh Pirates downed San Francisco Giants 3-1 and Chicago Cubs defeated Los Angeles Dodgers 4-1.

Explorers Source Book A Bonanza of Material

Have you ever spent fruitless hours searching for a particular item of outdoor equipment?

Well I did — until a revised edition of The Explorers Ltd. Source Book landed on my desk recently.

Ever since acquiring our Siberian husky, Mark, I've toyed with the idea of exercising him during the winter with a dog sleigh.

Dog-sledding equipment seems to be in rather short supply in the Greater Victoria area and the closest supplier local breeders were able to come up with lives in Prince George.

One other book I managed to scrounge after considerable effort contained a dismal sketch off how to make a portion of the harness.

But in the Source Book, I struck the mother lode.

Not only was there detailed plans for making a good collar harness, but there was even a description on how to construct a sleigh for under $10 that can be converted to a cart for use in the summer.

In addition, there was a list of books and periodicals where further information could be obtained and the names and addresses of various equipment suppliers in both Canada and the United States.

All of the other 23 outdoor pursuits covered by this remarkable book are equally good.

As well as the more usual fields of backpacking, fishing and photography, this book contains information on such diverse subjects as ballooning, caving, falconry, hang gliding, parachuting and horse packing.

Some evaluations have been done on the material listed and most are done with a tongue-in-cheek style of humor which provides a refreshing change from the usual stark put-down.

This book, which is published by Harper and Row in New York and Fitzhenry and Whiteside Ltd. in Toronto, would be worth the asking price of $9.50 even if it contained only the lists of places to get additional information from.

The evaluations and special write-ups on each field are a bonus.

While on the subject of books, I'd like to get something off my chest.

Normally, I don't knock a book unless it's completely hopeless and I sincerely hope the newest item written by Richard and Rochelle Wright doesn't fall into that category.

Canoe Routes: British Columbia is a disappointment as far as the section on Vancouver Island is concerned. I just hope the other six regions aren't covered in as cursory a manner.

The book lists only four general areas for canoeing on the Island — Cowichan Lake-Cowichan River, Quennell Lake, Megin River and the Nitinat Triangle.

Five pages for the entire Island and there is no mention of the superb canoeing one may find off certain portions of the coast or in dozens of lakes more suitable than Quennell, which has "little or no public access."

I'm not sufficiently familiar with the other areas covered in this book to either vouch for or criticize the content. But by the same token, I'm not trying to sell an item which contains insufficient data.

So as far as Vancouver Island canoeing goes, there are definitely better books to consult.

FIFTH TEST DRAW

LONDON (AP) — Max Walker, with an unbeaten 78, spearheaded a remarkable performance by Australia's tail-enders who added 133 on the final day of the fifth and final cricket Test at the Oval on Tuesday.

But any Australian hopes of getting England out quickly and scoring an innings victory were frustrated by Geoff Boycott and Derek Randall — and bad light and drizzle. The result was a draw.

When play was halted England had a second-innings score of 57 for two on top of its first-innings score of 214 against Australia's first-innings score of 385 all out.

HERMAN

"Don't pull a face. Maybe the first seven horses will be disqualified."

Campbell Leaves

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League for 31 years, gave up his chair Tuesday with some regret.

"I'd like to take it with me —I've been in it a long time," the 72-year-old dean of professional sports officials said as he gave way to John Ziegler, 43, in a simple ceremony at league headquarters.

Ziegler moved into the seat. "My feet don't touch the ground," he said.

Ziegler's term as the NHL's fourth president officially began last week, but the session gave reporters and photographers another chance to dwell on the Campbell years.

"The first expansion was one ...", Campbell said in response to questions about his greatest thrills. He pointed to a picture of himself holding six cheques for $2 million, the price paid by each of the teams that joined the league for the 1967-68 season.

"Twelve million bucks—that was quite a move. The Soviet series—the first one. Bringing in the pension plan. Recognition by those people in Las Vegas."

The last was a reference to the Victor Award for humanitarianism.

"These were all delightful occasions for me," Campbell said.

And on the other side of the ledger, he said, was the Maurice Richard riot in Montreal on March 17, 1955.

"Obviously, there's no way I can escape the disappointment that went with the riot. It was a dark day for the game really.

"But it quickly turned around completely as far as I was personally concerned. From that time forward, my status as senior executive of the league was never challenged."

Ross Enters '200'; Faces Strong Field

Earl Ross is this year's featured driver in the Canada 200 stock car race at Western Speedway one week from Saturday, but the smart money is on a regular campaigner, Ron Eaton.

Earl Ross is this year's featured driver in the Canada 200 stock car race at Western Speedway one week from Saturday, but the smart money is on a regular campaigner, Ron Eaton.

Ross, 1974 NASCAR rookie of the year and the only Canadian to win a major NASCAR race, will make the trip from his home in Ailsa Craig, Ont., north of London, and bring his own car, a 1977 Coca Cola-sponsored Firebird.

Ross' NASCAR appearances have been limited to the Daytona 500 each of the last two years. He becomes the third name driver to compete in the Carling Canada 200 lapper which this year offers purse money of $10,100.

Bobby Allison, winner of 46 NASCAR events, drove in 1975 and Janet Guthrie, first woman to drive the Indianapolis 500, appeared last year. Both drove borrowed cars and finished back in the pack.

Ross hopes to change that with his own car, a 108-inch wheelbase model with a 350-cubic inch engine similar to the Camaro in which Larry Phillips of Missouri won this year's International Drivers Challenge.

Although his NASCAR appearances have been limited, Ross has been busy. He's the current points leader in the Wheelspin Trophy series in Ontario and a week ago swept a three-race tour of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Ross was slated to drive in the 1975 Canada 200 but was unable to return to Victoria after a pre-season visit because he lost his sponsor.

Eaton, the Tacoma smoothie driving a 1976 Nova, is touted as this year's likely winner on the strength of four victories in his last five NASCAR Northwest series starts. His four-race win string was snapped last Saturday at Spanaway when he hit a crash wall and damaged his suspension, but he'll be ready.

Promoter Reg Midgley has lined up an impressive field to back up Eaton and Ross in the scramble for first-place money of $1,500.

Confirmed entries include Don Dowdy of Yakima, who is leading this year's NASCAR Northwest point derby in his 1976 Plymouth Scamp; Leon Fox of Bremerton, Wash., in a '77 Ventura, last year's NASCAR Northwest champ; Jack Kuper of Tacoma, who piloted his '76 Nova to first place at Tacoma last Saturday in the wake of Eaton's misfortune; Bob Bryson of Aberdeen, Wash., who moved steadily up in the pack in his '74 Camaro during this year's IDC series.

Reg Kennedy of Surrey, winner of the 1975 Western Canada NASCAR series, is back in a '75 Chevelle along with veteran Tom Hamilton, 49, of Campbell River in a '65 Chevelle; IDC campaigner Neil Langan of Eugene, Ore., in a '72 Camaro; George Doonon of Surrey in a well-prepared '74 Nova; George Stuart of Campbell River in another '74 Nova; Roy Smith of Victoria in a '76 Nova and Roy Haslam of Victoria in a '65 Chevelle.

Rick O'Dell of Victoria, former Western Speedway superstock champion, plans to make his first drive of the season in the race. He has a new '77 Ventura put together by Speedway Engineering of Los Angeles.

Haslam, who won the event two years ago, and Eaton were the first to enter this year.

A total of 24 cars will make the starting grid for the feature after four laps of qualifying trials. For the first time in the six-year history of the race, there will be time trials Friday night with the fastest seven guaranteed spots in the top 12 positions for Saturday's race. Qualifiers can, however, elect to go for a faster time in Saturday trials but would forfeit their guaranteed starting spot.

There will be a mandatory pit stop again this year.

Fastest 12 qualifiers will line up in reverse order with the remaining 12 cars straight up.

HARVEY'S DEFENDING RECREATIONAL TITLE

The road for recreational softball teams leads to Sidney this weekend.

Eight teams, including three from Vancouver Island, are entered in the double-knockout tournament at Sansha Park that will determine the 1977 British Columbia recreational champions.

Play starts Saturday at 9 a.m., continues Sunday and will wind up Monday.

Teams entered are Nanaimo Harmac, Harvey's Sporting Goods of the host Sidney Softball Association, Victoria Molsons of the Stuffy McGinnis League, Powell River Inn, Roberts Creek of North Vancouver, Ladner Hotel, Hope Cheyennes and Mike's Auto Body of Delta.

Harvey's are defending champions.

Spitz Loses Last Record

EAST BERLIN (Reuter) — Swimmer Joe Bottom of the United States set a world record of 54.18 seconds for the men's 100-metre butterfly at a U.S.-East German contest last week.

The previous record of 54.27 was set by Mark Spitz at the 1972 Munich Olympics. It was the last of the world records held by Spitz, who won seven gold medals in 1972.

American Brian Goodell set another world mark when he won the 400-metre freestyle in 3:51.56, beating the old mark of 3:51.93 he set last year at the Montreal Olympics.

Thompson Stays Alive

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Bill Thompson of Victoria defeated Robert Wallace of Pensacola, Fla. 2 and 1 in the second round of the 18th world senior golf championship held on the Broadmoor East course here Tuesday.

In another match, Frank Hardison of Laguna Beach, Calif. downed Vancouver's Joseph Player 2 and 1.

Whitby Wins East Junior

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Whitby Builders took the Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A championship Tuesday, defeating Peterborough Gray-Munros 11-5 in their best-of-seven final series.

In their third year in Junior A play, the Builders won the series 4-1 in games and now advance to the Canadian championship against Burnaby Cablevision.

The first game of the Minto Cup final will be played Tuesday in Whitby.

Orantes Wins Pro Net Title

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Third-seeded Manuel Orantes of Spain drove Eddie Dibbs to racquet-flinging frustration Tuesday night with steady ground strokes and added the $125,000 United States Pro tennis championship to his list of court titles.

The gruelling 7-6, 7-5, 6-4 victory over the fourth-seeded Dibbs was Orantes' second major title in the last month and was worth $20,000. He won the U.S. clay court championship in Indianapolis.

Courageous to Meet Australia

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Courageous, the 1974 defender skippered by Georgia millionaire Ted Turner, was chosen Tuesday by the New York Yacht Club to defend the America's Cup.

After watching Courageous defeat Enterprise by one minute and 26 seconds Tuesday in the final defence series, the Club dispatched its launch to the Newport Shipyard to advise Ed du Moulin, head of the Enterprise syndicate, that his 12-metre yacht had been eliminated.

Enterprise was the second American boat to get the axe in two days. On Monday, Ted Hood's Independence was eliminated after losing to Courageous by 1:23.

It was a rags-to-riches yachting story for the 38-year-old Turner, who got his first dinghy from his father when he was 11.

Turner started sailing in 1950, but it was not until 1974 that he got his first shot at the America's Cup. It was as skipper of the then-new yacht Mariner, a Britton Chance Jr., design. It proved extremely slow, an embarrassment for Chance and for Turner, owner of baseball's Atlanta Braves.

This year, however, Turner has himself a proven product, Courageous, designed by Olin Stephens and redesigned by Hood, the man who had skippered Courageous to the 1974 Cup victory over Australia's Southern Cross.

The move by the New York Yacht Club's selection committee came as a surprise. Most observers had expected Enterprise to remain in competition for at least another week. The decision by the committee also means that Courageous will not race again for about three weeks, although she is expected to practice against Independence, her sister yacht in the Kings Point Syndicate.

They call Turner Terrible Ted, and The Mouth in the South.

Turner considers himself a sportsman among professionals, who stand to gain advertising by doing well in the Cup.

"I'm just in it for my own personal satisfaction," Turner said.

"I want to do a good job and do whatever I can to help the New York Yacht Club. I'm not going to make money off this. I'm strictly an amateur."

Courageous will meet Australia, Alan Bond's new 12-metre yacht, which completed a 4-0 sweep of her best-of-seven foreign series against Sverige of Sweden on Tuesday.

The decision was a shock for the crew of Enterprise, which has endured the firing of a skipper and repeated mechanical breakdowns that led to defeat.

In the foreign race, Sverige lost the start by 28 seconds when she crossed the line too early and was recalled to start over. The race was reminiscent of Australia's 10:16 victory over France I in the final race of the semi-final series, in which French Baron Marcel Bich broadsided Australia.

Although Sverige's start was not quite that disastrous, her final race this summer turned quickly into a farce. Australia led by 2:48 at the first mark, and by the third buoy, she had built her lead to 6:45 in light winds that saw Sverige struggling to find air.

The American race was decided by a wind shift. As the boats approached the first mark, Turner picked up a 20-degree wind shift and suddenly found himself with a 1:14 lead. And that was it for Enterprise and her skipper, Malin Burnham.

Don't Sign, Says Eagleson

TORONTO (CP) — Alan Eagleson of Toronto, the legal representative for 125 hockey players, has advised his junior clients not to sign the Canadian Major Junior Hockey League standard player contract unless it is revised.

Eagleson, also the executive-director of the National Hockey League Players Association, said Tuesday he does not think the contract will be revised and therefore, his clients could be playing something other than junior hockey this season.

Ed Chynoweth, president of the Western Canada Hockey League, one of three junior leagues that make up the CMJHL, said it is "very doubtful" the contract would be revised.

"I'm instructing all my clients to refuse to sign the contract," Eagleson said. "Whether it is legal or illegal is for a judge to decide. Morally, I judge it to be unfair, and therefore, I am working on placing my junior clients on another hockey avenue.

"Some will be playing college hockey and others senior. When a player signs the junior contract he is, for all intents and purposes, signing a $65,000 promissory note."

A clause in the junior contract states that once the player graduates to professional hockey, he is obliged to pay the junior club $25,000 in development fees. If this is not paid, liquidated damages of $40,000 can be claimed.

The CMJHL has sought revisions in the payment scheme for the development fees owed junior hockey by the National Hockey League. Last week, the NHL's board of governors stood pat on their original offer.

Under the terms of the contract, a player must sign to be eligible to play. He can sign two identical forms, one before his 18th birthday and one on or after it.

"As 18 is the legal age of majority, we do that to protect ourselves," Chynoweth said. The maximum age for junior hockey is 20.

Leitch Wins Second Race

KINGSTON — Phil Leitch of Victoria won his second race in three days Tuesday in the Fireball division of the Canadian Olympic Regatta, as a light wind turned the third day of racing into a series of drifting matches.

Conditions were so bad that the 470 race was abandoned completely.

Smaller, lighter craft had an easier time of it while heavier boats wallowed in calms and eventually had to be towed back to harbor.

Leitch trails Craig Gilbert of Weston, Conn., in the Fireball standings. Another Victoria sailor, Rick McBride, failed to place among the top six in the Flying Dutchman division.

IT'S OPEN TO ALL

Anyone can enter the British Columbia horseshoe pitching championships scheduled to start Saturday at Glanford Park — providing you qualify.

Qualifications will be held at the park from 7 to 10 p.m. Friday and from 8 to 10 a.m. Saturday. Competition gets underway in mens, women's, junior and senior events at 11 a.m. Saturday and resumes at 9 a.m. Sunday. Finals will begin at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Clayton English, the defending men's champion, has moved from Victoria to Souris, Man., and won't be in the running.

Among the top contenders for the vacant throne are Roy Jago of Victoria, who has placed consistantly high in recent years; Bob Timothy of Ladysmith, the 1975 champion; and Murray Raynor of Youbou, who took the title in 1974.

B.C. Takes Third Title

TORONTO (CP) — British Columbia defeated Ontario 4-1 Sunday at Lamport Stadium to win its third consecutive Canadian national field hockey championship.

British Columbia completed the round-robin tournament with four wins and one loss.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A two-year-less-a-day sentence was imposed on a 44-year-old North Saanich man in Victoria provincial court Tuesday who pleaded guilty before Judge Harold Alder to a charge of cultivating marijuana.

The court was told that police found 98 pots of marijuana in a greenhouse and bedroom, along with 24 baggies of the narcotic in a locked trunk, when they visited the 9026 West Saanich Road home of Douglas Larsson Aug. 17 with a search warrant.

The court was told that the accused man was not home at the time but his 14-year-old son showed police the plants. The boy also gave a statement to police at that time.

Later that day, the court was told, Larsson went voluntarily to the police station and gave a statement that the marijuana was for his own use although he did give some to friends and occasionally charged them his cost ($11 an ounce).

The court was told that cash found in the locked trunk along with the baggies of marijuana was from Larsson's tile-laying business.

Counsel Barry Mah Ming called Larsson to the stand after his plea at which time he stated he had only meant to grow a few plants for his own use but that "... it sort of got out of hand."

Larsson also said he had had a drinking problem prior to his use of marijuana but when he began smoking the substance he quit drinking.

Larsson added that he would no longer grow or smoke the substance but that he hoped the drug would be soon legalized.

"You were growing far too many plants for your own use," the judge said before passing sentence. The judge added it was quite obvious Larsson was involving in "... quite an enterprise" although it might not have started that way.

An attempt by Mah Ming to have any jail term imposed served on weekends in order to allow his client to maintain his tile-laying business was squelched by Alder.

As Larsson was led off, he turned and waved to his wife who was sitting in the courtroom.

John Andre Nadeau, 22, of Esquimalt was fined $300 and given six months' probation in order to attend the impaired driver's course after he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while having a blood alcohol level in excess of .08 per cent.

The charge stemmed from a July 29 police check in Nanaimo after Nadeau was thought to be speeding along Commercial Street.

Raymond Clayton Nixon, of 455 Carson, was fined $400 and given six months' probation to complete the impaired driver's course after he pleaded guilty to driving with a blood-alcohol level in excess of .08.

The charge arose from an Aug. 18 police check in Kelowna where Nixon was observed behind the wheel of his car parked on the wrong side of the road.

Bertram D. A. Henderson, 36, of Duncan, was fined $400 for failing to appear in court Sept. 23, 1976, in connection with an alcohol related driving offence.

Henderson told the court he didn't show up because he was attending a relative's funeral in Ontario.

Henderson was also fined $500 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while having a blood-alcohol level in excess of .08.

The charge stemmed from a police check Sept. 1, 1976 in the parking lot of Pat Bay Airport.

Que. Eskimos Seek Their 'Independence'

POVUNGNITUK, Que. (CP) — Leaders of three northern Quebec settlements—Povungnituk, Saglouc and Ivujivic—want to form their own regional government which would have legislative powers enabling Inuit people to decide their own destiny.

Residents of this Hudson Bay settlement told Quebec government representatives Tuesday they respect Quebec's intent to preserve French language and culture but resent any intrusion from "the South" into the affairs of Quebec's Arctic peoples.

At a news conference held late Tuesday following a public meeting, spokesmen for the three communities said a promised government white paper on culture would not meet their demands for more autonomy.

"It is up to us and us alone to face up to our responsibilities vis-a-vis our language and culture. We cannot go crying to either the federal or provincial government to ask the help of those who don't even know about Eskimo culture," says a statement issued by community organizers.

"We have to start from scratch. We think that the recently passed law concerning language is just, and we have no intention of opposing it.

"But the French people here never asked us to help them develop their culture and we must develop our own."

The Eskimo people here say they have no intention of separating from Quebec and they accuse the Northern Quebec Inuit Association of making moves in that direction.

The Inuit association denies this and says it favors the same type of autonomy sought by these three communities.

David Payne, executive assistant to Cultural Development Minister Camille Laurin and Michel Sparer, who helped write the controversial language law, emerged weary but pleased from a public meeting at which one Eskimo said "It's not right for anyone to make laws for others who have their own language and culture."

The reception Payne and Sparer received here contrasted sharply with the way they were greeted in Fort Chimo, 200 miles east of here, where hostile community leaders have asked provincial government employees and provincial police to leave until language differences are settled.

But Inuit here say they do not care much about a second language, either English or French, and want to concentrate on development of their own language—Inuttituut—and way of life. They told Payne and Sparer that federal and provincial schools here offer children little in the way of Eskimo culture.

Payne said the white paper on cultural development will have special sections dealing with native peoples. He asked Inuit representatives for suggestions on policies.

But at the news conference delegates from the three communities said they "don't want a government department to take care of us. We want a regional government to represent us in in Quebec."

They suggest this regional government would have control over all cultural and language policy in this area.

Povungnituk, Saglouc and Ivujivic are the only communities in the Ungava-Hudson Bay area which rejected the James Bay agreement signed by the federal and provincial governments, the Inuit association and the Grand Council of the Cree.

People here, who form one-third of the Inuit population of northern Quebec, say the agreement is a "farce" and that they were "sold out" by the Inuit association.

These communities disagree strongly with pressure tactics under way in Fort Chimo and other settlements to force the province to amend the language law.

At the public meeting Payne said "the government of Quebec has tried to respect the opinion of the Inuit."

Payne said the government shared the opinion that Eskimo language and culture is endangered.

Sparer said that under the law Eskimo organizations communicating with the government or other organizations in the south (territories not covered by the James Bay agreement) will only have to have one person able to express himself in French.

"And this is only after a transitory period to be decided by the government.....

"The government is not going to enforce this article until it sees you are able to comply. Within your own territory you may communicate in Inuttituut, English, French or any other language you de-

In Montreal, Premier Rene Levesque indicated that one reason the Inuits are opposing the Quebec government on the language issue is the fact they are being supported by federal funds.

"You tell me who finances it (the association) and I'll tell you who controls it," the premier said in an interview during a businessmen's conference at the University of Montreal.

There seems to be a "basic misunderstanding" of the language issue on the part of the Inuit association, Levesque said, adding he is willing to meet with Inuit leaders in an effort to defuse the conflict.

BOOT UNION GETS SHOO

BELLEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — The 83-year-old Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, which represents about 2,000 Canadian workers, will lose its separate identity Thursday, says the union's Canadian director.

Ian Reilly said that the union, which also represents about 28,000 workers in the U.S., will become the footwear division of the 7,000-member Retail Clerks' International Union.

Reilly said the move has been caused by declining union membership and decreasing effectiveness of the union because of the footwear industry's deteriorating competitive position in the face of cheaper imports.

The Canadian head office of the union is in Belleville and more than half the Canadian membership is from the surrounding area.

LEGAL MYSTERIES DEFENDED BY BAR

OTTAWA (CP) — Judges and lawyers defended the legal profession Tuesday against charges that the profession cloaks itself in mystery to maintain its elite status in society.

Even Quebec Judge Robert Cliche, who earlier attacked lawyers as mercenaries who resist social change, argued that courts should retain their mystery if they are to keep the respect of citizens.

And Mr. Justice Thomas Berger of British Columbia, who gained prominence during a recent royal commission inquiry into northern pipelines for his casual, informal hearings in native communities, said people expect such things as murder cases to be "treated with the utmost solemnity."

The judges and other lawyers at Canadian Bar Association meetings were defending themselves against charges by Laurier Lapierre, an historian and broadcaster.

People like Berger are referred to as "your lordship," Lapierre said. But the B.C. Supreme Court judge was just another person doing his job.

Lawyers used jargon that left "ordinary citizens 10,000 miles away in dialogue," Lapierre continued. They covered themselves with flowing robes and were able to call each other things like "QC" which stands for Queen's Counsel. It was simply an honor passed out by politicians that let some lawyers get closer than others to the bench during court cases.

Cliche, associate chief judge of Quebec's provincial court, said that courts of justice are not "arenas or forums."

"Certain rules must be followed."

Out-Dated Lawyers Rapped by Judge

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec judge Robert Cliche criticized lawyers Tuesday as reactionary conservatives more concerned with making money than promoting social change.

"Lawyers are no longer people who want to take the plunge," Cliche told members of the Canadian Bar Association at their annual meeting here.

They had "lost their credibility in the eyes of the masses."

Cliche, former head of a Quebec royal commission into the construction industry and one-time New Democratic Party leader in the province, accused lawyers of rearing up in opposition whenever governments proposed forward-thinking social legislation.

Lawyers tended to isolate themselves in beautifully-equipped offices full of expensive pictures — "they're often in very bad taste" — using telephones as their main means of communication.

"The bar should be an active agent of social change," the associate chief judge of Quebec's provincial court said.

Lawyers, Cliche said, do not understand the way society is evolving. They were becoming less useful in such things as labor-management relations because citizens were learning to fight legal battles for themselves.

Cliche said he was ashamed to be a member of the bar in the early 1970s during an alleged insurrection by members of the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec FLQ.

Civil liberties were suspended by the federal government in the wake of terrorist kidnappings, and a number of innocent people were jailed.

Many of those jailed during the FLQ crisis had difficulty finding lawyers to defend them, he added.

"You see yourselves as part of an elite," Cliche told about 1,000 persons at a meeting.

Later, during a question and answer session, Cliche suggested lawyers form a committee to help frame a new constitution for the country.

He was questioned by Laurier Lapierre, historian and broadcast personality, who asked how lawyers could be encouraged to change their values and attitudes when the "whole apparatus of government helps lawyers pursue their goal of aristocratic elitism."

Lapierre said he felt one of the problems arose from the fact that judges — he used Mr. Justice Thomas Berger, chairman of the discussion session, as an example — were referred to as such things as "your lordship."

Cliche replied that he agreed that some of the mystery should be taken out of the judicial system.

Kraft Cutting Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — Food processor Kraft Ltd. of Montreal has agreed to lower prices it charges to distributors across the country in order to return $302,000 of excess revenues, the Anti-Inflation Board announced Tuesday.

Wholesale price reductions will be offered by Kraft on Parkay margarine, Kraft cheese singles slices and six varieties of jellies, jams and marmalades.

Lower prices on singles slices of cheese will apply nationally. One-pound packages of Parkay margarine will be reduced in price in Toronto, and three-pound packages will be reduced in Moncton, Regina, Winnipeg, Vancouver, and Edmonton, while two-pound packages will be cheaper in the Montreal area, the board says.

Also on a national level, Kraft nine-ounce jars of strawberry, apple and red currant jelly, strawberry jam, orange marmalade and three-fruit marmalade will be reduced in price for distributors in addition to a regular promotion sale. The Anti-Inflation Board says this is a total price reduction of 20 per cent.

Quebec Walkout Threat Fading

OTTAWA (CP) — The threat of a walkout by Quebec delegates to the Canadian Bar Association annual meeting seems to have faded after a day of attempts to reach a compromise on the national unity issue.

Key Quebec delegates met Tuesday with A. Boyd Ferris, the Bar's outgoing president, who touched off the controversy Monday by urging the members to make a strong declaration against separatism.

Robin Hood Boycott Swelling

MONTREAL (CP) — Two major Quebec supermarket firms have joined in the boycott of products manufactured by Robin Hood Multifoods Ltd. and its subsidiaries, the labor federation representing 115 striking Robin Hood workers announced Tuesday.

The Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU) said Provigo and Co-op food stores will not re-order Robin Hood products after current stocks run out.

The CNTU has asked unions and companies to support the boycott, organized following a shooting incident at the Robin Hood flour mill here last month in which eight strikers were wounded. Three employees of a private security firm hired by Robin Hood face criminal charges in connection with the shooting.

The company meanwhile has filed suit for $1.8 million in damages charging the union with contempt of court in maintaining its work stoppage after an injunction was issued ordering the workers back to their jobs.

Earlier this month the Parti Quebecois announced it also is supporting the boycott of Robin Hood products, which include Robin Hood flour and cake mixes, Coorsh prepared meats, Bick's pickles, Brodie XXX flour, Stouffer's frozen foods, Rose Brand preserves and Celebration cake mixes.

The 2.2-million-member Canadian Labor Congress is supporting the boycott, and the CNTU has held discussions with the International Federation of Labor on spreading the boycott beyond Canada's borders.

International Multifoods Ltd., Robin Hood's parent company in Minneapolis, Minn., has subsidiaries in the United States, Britain, Mexico and Venezuela.

The strike at Robin Hood and three other Montreal-area flour mills began last February in reaction to a federal anti-inflation board order that negotiated pay raises for the workers be reduced.

The three other mills have since settled their disputes.

CLOSED-CIRCUIT TV SET FOR SASKATOON

SASKATOON (CP) — While the scheduled start for closed-circuit television in Saskatoon has been advanced to Sept. 15, the introduction of cablevision could be delayed by up to 18 months.

Harvey Rogers, general manager of the co-operative programming network of Saskatoon, said Thursday his organization is planning to present one channel as soon as the drops or connections are installed. Sask Tel is to start installing the drops in mid-September, probably at the rate of 200 a week.

Rogers said his organization orginally planned to begin closed-circuit operation in November but the schedule has been pushed up.

Indian Business Failures Noted

WINNIPEG (CP) — About 25 to 30 per cent of the nearly 500 businesses established in Manitoba under the Indian Economic Development Fund have "gone under," says an official of the Indian affairs department.

Dan Genn, assistant regional director of economic development, said a number of steps are being taken across the country to improve this record.

"We are in the process of making some fairly radical changes in our processes and our policies," he said. "Over the last year, substantial changes have been made in the way we are approaching funding."

Genn said the reasons for the failures of Indian businesses are similar to those for small business failures anywhere, including lack of adequate mamagement and credit and financing policies.

Agency Overcharged?

WINNIPEG (CP) — The general manager of the Manitoba Housing and Renewal Corp. has asked its lawyer to look into a $2-million public housing contract to see if Crown agency was overcharged for the work done.

Jim Gordon said the action followed a court ruling last week on a civil suit, which suggested the corporation may have paid too much for the job.

No Appeal Planned

SASKATOON (CP) — A spokesman for the attorney-general's department said there will be no appeal against the acquittal of Laura Ann Schepens, 34, of Moose Jaw.

Schepens was found not guilty by a Court of Queen's Bench jury in Saskatoon earlier this month of the murder of Dr. Isabellita Joven, 36, of Moose Jaw, Nov. 11, 1976, on grounds of insufficient evidence.

Energy Use to Drop?

REGINA (CP) — An American physicist said the world demand for nuclear energy will drop sharply during the next few years because of its prohibitive cost.

Amory Lovins, testifying at the Bayda inquiry into a proposed uranium mine in northern Saskatchewan, agreed with earlier witnesses that the price of conventional energy sources would rise.

He said the rising cost of electricity could result in consumption dropping below present levels. However, the cost of nuclear power production is too expensive to provide electricity at a reasonable price.

$2.5M Grant

EDMONTON (CP) — A group of University of Alberta researchers has been awarded a $2.5-million grant to find out how the human body's "guided missile" system works.

The five-year grant is one of the largest awarded by the Medical Research Council, the federal agency which provides funds for medical research.

Dr. Erwin Diener, chairman of the faculty of medicine's immunology department and leader ot the group, says the basic goal of the research is to gain a better understanding of the body's "missiles" — cellular components called lymphocytes.

Duck Limits Stay

EDMONTON (CP) — There will be no reduction in duck hunting limits in Alberta this year despite poor water conditions and a substantial reduction of breeding ducks in southern Alberta.

Gordon Kerr, assistant deputy minister in the provincial parks department, said there may be reductions next year if there is not a duckling boom on ponds and sloughs.

Fewer Accidents

SASKATOON (CP) — The accident rate in Saskatchewan could be the lowest in five years if the present trend continues, says the director of Safety 77.

Carl Shiels said in an interview that fewer than 13,000 traffic accidents occurred in Saskatchewan in the first six months of this year. There were 10,300 accidents involving property damage and slightly more than 2,500 involved personal injury.

Double-Duty Meat Rolls

Mary Moore

An easy low cost weekend with a novel new pizza to whet your appetites will be welcomed by our travel-weary mothers.

Many spend money and time in that week before school starts on new sneakers and jeans and tops. So any help with their food bill will be greeted with open arms.

One and one-half pounds of ground chuck beef is now going to be stretched to serve two meals to four people. The first recipe is for Labor Day supper. The second recipe is for a cold plate supper on the Saturday or Sunday before.

DOUBLE-DUTY MEAT ROLLS

Meat Roll Mixture (makes two rolls each 10" long by 2½" diameter).

1½ lbs. ground chuck beef
2 medium eggs
½ c. milk
2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 c. rolled oats
1½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper

Ingredients for Open Face Pizzas

4 English muffins split — 8 halves (or hamburger buns) salad oil or butter or margarine one 7½-oz. can tomato sauce
½ tsp. oregano
⅛ tsp. salt
one meat roll, sliced into 16 even pieces (see recipe above)
one 10-oz. can sliced mushrooms, drained
¼ c. finely diced sweet pickle
4-oz. grated mozzarella cheese

To make Meat Rolls thoroughly combine all meat roll mixture. Divide in half and shape each into a roll 10" long by 2½" diameter. Wrap each roll tightly and separately in foil, folding ends of foil over to prevent juices escaping. Place on baking sheet and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 45 minutes. Remove foil and drain off any accumulated fat. Leave meat rolls, uncovered, on baking sheet and return to oven for 10 minutes longer to brown. Let cool. Rewrap in foil and refrigerate. (You get neater slices if meat roll is chilled.)

For Labor Day Supper, before serving time, split muffins or hamburger buns and place on baking sheet. Brown lightly in oven under pre-heated broiler. Remove from oven and brush sparingly with oil or butter.

Combine the tomato sauce, salt and oregano and spoon 2 teaspoonfuls onto each bun half. Top each with two slices of meat roll, then remaining tomato sauce, mushrooms and sliced sweet pickle. Sprinkle grated cheese over all. Broil 5 inches from broiler burner for about 5 to 10 minutes or until cheese melts and browns slightly.

For previous Saturday or Sunday supper, slice other meat roll onto four dinner plates and add sliced tomatoes, potato salad on lettuce, mixed pickles and serve with whole wheat bread.

NO MORE MYSTERY IN PRE-GAME DIETS

eating right

By RUTH FREMES and ZAK SABRY

Things should be heating up in the athletic sections of the schools this fall. Increased interest in sports always elicits a question about what to eat before competing. There is no mystery about pre-game diets anymore, although there is considerable confusion amongst coaches and the general public.

The pre-game meal; should provide sufficient energy to minimize hunger and weakness; ensure that the body has enough fluids; ensure that there is prompt emptying of the stomach and the uppertract; avoid inducing nausea or upset and, most importantly, reflect the athlete's tastes and preferences. It's no good urging an athlete to eat pizza if he doesn't normally like them. He's so tense that he must be presented with food that he would immediately like.

The old idea of a steak before a race is to be discouraged. There's too little carbohydrate, too much protein (this has dehydrating effect) and too much fat (this means that the stomach would empty too slowly).

Ideally, the best plan is modest amounts of high-carbohydrate foods, taken at regular intervals up to within two and a half hours of competition. That's the way to quick energy with the sustaining effect to take them through the race. The best idea is to have a good breakfast of oatmeal or any equally wholesome cereal and milk and fruit. You may also have some toast with egg or peanut butter, if you are still hungry. If the race is in the afternoon, a light snack in mid morning of a muffin and fruit juice would be a good idea with a lunch of soup and sandwich. There should be no missed meals. A steady stream of small meals will sustain your energy level until race time.

The other thing to watch for is to avoid a state of dehydration before the game. The body loses so much water during a strenuous physical activity that its performance could suffer as a result. The immediate pre-game meal should include two or three glasses of some beverage. Water is just right for that purpose. Fruit juices are fine. Whole milk is too high in fat. Coffee and tea contain caffeine which may increase nervous tension.

Whatever diet you choose, it should contain foods you like. Go for carbohydrate foods. They are easy to digest and absorb. Avoid too much fat because it is slow to clear your stomach. And don't forget to drink water and fruit juices to build up your fluid supply before the game.

MONTREAL CHEFS READY TO SHARE

food & nutrition

MONTREAL (CP) — Pamela Sancton, author of a cook book using recipes gleaned from some of Montreal's top chefs, found that they were most willing to provide information but not in the form she asked for.

Chefs often suggest substitutes for ingredients not normally available in home kitchens, she said. But they always caution that it won't taste the same.

There are 50 recipes in Mrs. Sancton's cook book, French Recipes North Americans Love Best. But several times when she talked to chefs they would say: "All I do is make it; I don't write it down."

Mrs. Sancton, a graduate of the Cordon Bleu School in London, tested and retested every recipe, adapting ingredients and techniques to home cooking.

She learned, for instance, that stocks and sauces can be made in batches and frozen in one-cup portions.

Even roux, a mixture of butter and an equal portion of flour browned together and used for sauces, can be made in advance and frozen in ice-cube trays.

And rice can be cooked, strained and rinsed in cold water and refrigerated in plastic containers for as long as five days.

When ready to use it, she said, place in a buttered casserole topped with a bit of butter, chicken, mushroom stock or clam juice.

The book, Mrs. Sancton's first, was done on a whim. While her husband, who now teaches political science, was studying at Oxford University, she took cooking courses at the Cordon Bleu.

She admired a similar book on British restaurants prepared by a consumer group and became friendly with one of the authors.

During her three years of research, she found Montreal food comes as close to classic French as any in North America, with Provence the most represented region.

Apricot Jam

8 cups quartered apricots (about 3 pounds)
4½ cups granulated sugar
¾ cup brown sugar
1 orange
1 cup crushed pineapple
⅛ tsp. salt.

Place apricots, sugars, coarsely shredded rind and juice of orange, pineapple, and salt in heavy kettle. Bring to boil, stirring until sugar is dissolved. Cook rapidly, stirring often, until two thick drops of syrup will run together off side of cold metal spoon (about 30-35 minutes). Ladle into hot sterilized jars. Makes about 8 medium glasses.

The Victoria Kiwanis Club is pleased to announce that the Capital "K" Charities Automobile Draw was held last Saturday, August 27th, and that the winning ticket was number, 21340 held by Tom McConkey of Bedwell Harbour, on S. Pender Island.
We wish to thank all the fine people who purchased tickets. The money received will assist us in our ongoing support of many fine charities in the Greater Victoria Area.
We also take this opportunity to extend our thanks to all the merchants in the various shopping centres in town who co-operated so willingly in letting us sell tickets "on location."

Bean Sprout-Water Chestnut Salad

4 cups fresh bean sprouts, well washed and drained (core, if desired)
1 cup pineapple chunks, canned or fresh (well drained)
½ cup green pepper, cut in thin julienne strips
½ cup sliced water chestnuts
1 cup mayonnaise (or salad dressing)
1 tsp soy sauce
½ tsp. curry powder (or to taste) optional bed of lettuce toasted sesame seeds.

In bowl, combine bean sprouts, pineapple chunks, water chestnuts, and green pepper. In separate bowl, combine mayonnaise, soy sauce, and curry powder. Toss bean sprout mixture with just enough dressing to coat all ingredients lightly and evenly. Mound mixture in lettuce-lined salad bowl. Sprinkle generously with toasted sesame seeds. Makes six servings

Apple-Nut Squares: Delicious Hot or Cold

1 egg, beaten
¾ cup sugar
½ tsp. vanilla
½ cup sifted all-purpose flour
¼ tsp. salt
1 tsp. baking powder
1¼ cups chopped unpeeled apples
½ cup chopped walnuts
whipping cream (or vanilla ice cream)

In bowl, combine egg, sugar, and vanilla. Sift together flour, salt, and baking powder. Add dry ingredients all at once to egg mixture; blend well. Stir in apples and nuts. Spread in greased 8x8x2-inch baking dish. Bake in 350 deg. F oven for 30 minutes or until done. Cut into squares. Serve either piping hot with whipped cream or vanilla ice-cream or cool and serve cold. Makes six servings.

Repairing Cooking Errors With Extra Bit of Work

tiny bennett

Now and then most cooks make a mistake and come up with a dish that is either ruined, or not quite right and tasting unpleasant.

We can't do much about a badly burned dish, or one that has received a gross overload of seasoning, but now and then we can repair a cooking error through a bit of extra work.

Last week, for example, being rushed, I produced a beef stew that at dinnertime was frankly unpleasant to both my sense of smell and taste. But my wife served it and was kind in her comments, though I remained most unhappy about the whole thing.

What I had made was one of the commonest of errors, and one that I'm afraid a lot of cooks make: I'd tried to rush the preparation and the cooking of a dish that needs long, slow cooking and due care in order to produce a fine flavor.

Beef stews are regarded as simple to cook, and if one takes time doing everything right and using the very best of ingredients, slow cooking should bring out a fine flavor and a really appetizing aroma.

However, not all of us can fit the very best stewing steak into our home food budget and in this instance I had bought some very cheap beef — lean thin slices complete with narrow slices of marrow bone, and lean ribby pieces with bone attached. It was marked down to 38c a pound, less than a quarter the cost of the select stewing beef in my store.

It was very cheap, yet looked good to the eye, and although I made a poor job of the initial cooking, the repair work I did on the large quantity of left-over proved once again that for stewing, it is usually the tougher and cheaper cuts of beef that make the best dishes.

TINY'S BEEF STEW

Into a heavy-duty pot with a tight-fitting lid, I poured 3 Tbsp. olive oil, turned the heat up high and when the oil was very hot I added two garlic cloves chopped, together with two large onions thinly sliced.

When these aromatics softened and began to turn yellow, I put in all the meat, cut into large squares and including the bones, and browned it carefully.

At this point I carried on with my normal system for a beef stew, adding small, peeled onions and baby carrots, three stalks of celery cut into two-inch lengths, and a double handful of diced yellow turnips, also known as rutabagas (they are called swedes in Britain).

Being rushed, I added a can of beef stock and a can of hot water, two beef cubes, salt and pepper and a dash each of thyme, parsley and savory.

For a simple beef stew there was nothing done wrong up to this point, except that I really hadn't allowed much time. I brought the dish to the simmer, reduced the heat to low and with the cover on firmly let the food bubble gently until serving time.

The meat and the vegetables were cooked, but I couldn't judge if the flavors had blended as they should in a stew, because there was an overpowering odor and taste of fat to a dish that I'd thought contained only lean beef.

(Forgive my bragging, but I do have an exceptional sense of smell — I cook with my nose, as much as anything — and I'm sure that I was more put off by the stew than other members of the family.)

When the pot had cooled down, I removed the bones and sliced the meat off them back into the pot, and then chilled the stew in the fridge.

This produced the main villain in the case, a thick layer of yellow fat covering the top of the stew, which I carefully discarded down to the last speck.

Then I put the pot back on the stove on low heat so that there was no chance of its burning — two errors on one dish would have been too much — and allowed the stew to simmer very slowly, stirring it up from the bottom to prevent the food from sticking to the bottom.

Since I had all day in which to cook the stew for a 6 p.m. dinner, I added more vegetables, one Tbsp. of dried, split yellow peas, one Tbsp. lentils and two Tbsp. of pearl barley. One hour before dinner, I added a dozen golf-ball-sized peeled onions, so that they would be well-cooked but still have a nice "bite" to them.

Served simply in big, old-fashioned soup plates with hot, crusty French bread and sweet butter, my corrected beef stew was superb. I'd removed the tangy, yechhy, fatty taste and odor when I'd skimmed the chilled dish, which suggests that if you plan to use very cheap beef cuts, it's best to start the stew one day, and finish it the next.

And to be aware that a stew made and served in the same day will never be the grand dish it was meant to be.

Egg Tips

Do your hard-cooked eggs have green rings around their yolks? This is caused by a harmless chemical reaction between the iron in the yolk and the sulphur in the white as a result of over cooking or cooking at too high a temperature. To prevent this discoloration, use correct cooking temperature and correct timing.

Do you have difficulties peeling hard-cooked eggs? Well, try this tip! Immediately after cooking, plunge the eggs into cold water. With the back of a small spoon, crack the shell in a band around the middle. Peel off the bits of broken shell and then simply pull the two ends away.

Unusual Ways to Serve Blackberries

hilda beastall

Blackberries have been my favorite fruit since first tasting them sunwarm in a late summer garden in Victoria. No other fruit tempts me to eating while picking; blackberries I still cannot resist. Nearly as many are eaten while picking as go into the little baskets.

Knowing the vitamin and mineral riches in these fruits are more abundant than in more shallowly rooting berries makes a good excuse to indulge. But now I make a point of freezing a few blacks just to taste the August bounty in the early cold days of winter.

When freezing, the finest flavor is retained when berries are picked in small quantities and frozen at once, for even an hour interval reduces the rich flavor and probably the vitamin content. Freeze only the most perfect ripe berries.

Sometimes a batch of blackberries are found to be small due to lack of water and the seeds are quite prominent and hard. These can be used in Blackberry Dessert.

This takes but a few minutes to prepare and it makes a very pleasant end to lunch or supper. The apples can be fallers containing the odd insect and perhaps misshapen but still of good color and flavor.

BLACKBERRY DESSERT

2 cups blackberries
2 cups apple pieces
1 tsp angelica leaf
1 tsp lemon balm leaf
cold water to barely cover
2 Tbsp sugar (loose measure)
1 Tbsp cornstarch OR rice polishings

If apples are fallers, cut out the good pieces to use, discarding the rest to the compost heap. No need to peel.

Bring to a quick boil the fruit and herb leaves with the water. Cook with lid on only until apple is fork tender. A teaspoon of margarine prevents boiling over after the initial heat is lowered.

Strain and press pulp through a fine sieve. There will be about one litre of liquid. Return liquid to saucepan. Stir in sugar.

Mix cornstarch or rice polishings (more food value) with a little fruit liquid in a cup.

Bring liquid to boiling point; stir in cornstarch, stirring constantly until slightly thickened, about three or four minutes of boiling just to cook the starch.

Pour into glass dishes to cool, though it is just as delicious warm. Serves 4, with glasses heaped with homemade plain yogurt for extra goodness.

Any kind of homegrown fruit can be used in this same way. Peaches, apples, dessert plums which are not perfect or suitable for canning or freezing — make them into desserts with a minimum of sugar so that thhe fruit flavor is retained.

Angelica leaves, sweet cicely and lemon balm leaves are herbs which are used to reduce tartness of fruits when cooked. They are NOT sweeteners. No need to use more than suggested for that will change the fruit flavor. A small amount of sugar is still required to make the fruit palatable after cooking.

I have also made desserts by pressing ripe uncooked blackberries through a sieve with about a quarter cup of water to two (small plastic) berry baskets of berries. This is a good way to serve these sometimes very "seedy" fruits to infants or convalescents who for some reason should not have the seeds. No sugar or herbs needed, just good homemade yogurt as topping.

Blackberry Muffins are not much different in preparation to Blueberry Muffins, but the blacks are more freely distributed through the muffins because of their size and softness.

BLACKBERRY MUFFINS

1 cup unbleached flour
1 cup wholewheat flour
2 Tbsp wheat germ
1½ tsp baking powder
¼ tsp salt
¼ cup sugar
2 small eggs
¾ cup milk from skim powder
3 Tbsp melted margarine
1½ cups blackberries (or others)

Measure all dry ingredients into bowl and mix well.

Beat eggs in small bowl; add melted margarine and milk. Mix well.

Quickly stir liquid mix into dry ingredients with as few strokes as possible; fold in the berries.

Fill greased muffin pans about two-thirds full.

Bake in fairly hot oven 205 deg. C. for about 15 minutes. Makes about 16 medium size muffins.

Even Scottish Bannock will be improved by adding ripe blackberries to the dough before cooking. I believe these are known by the name of Selkirk Bannock.

BLACKBERRY BANNOCK

1 cup wholewheat flour
1 cup oat flakes
½ tsp salt
2 tsp baking powder
3 Tbsp sugar
2 Tbsp soft margarine
1 cup blackberries
¼ cup milk from skim powder

Run the oat flakes through a hand mouli grinder if they are the coarse kind.

Measure dry ingredients into bowl; mix well.

Cut in margarine with large fork. Add blackberries then enough milk to make soft dough which can be handled.

Heat large skillet or frypan and melt a tablespoon of soft margarine until hot.

Pat dough into pan-size with floured hands.

Place carefully into hot fat in pan. Cook until bannock is well raised, then turn either in one piece or in sections to lightly brown second side. Add a little more fat if needed.

Serve either with Cheddar cheese or with the above Blackberry Dessert (warm) as a topping.

If you are freezing berries

If you are freezing berries (bought or homegrown) for winter why not keep this whole column for reference when wanting to make use of the fruit in slightly unusual ways.

SIGHTS, SMELLS TURN TO FAT

Common ¢ents
By KATE MacQUEEN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fat persons lose the battle against obesity because they're specially vulnerable to the sights and smells of tasty, high-calories foods, a Yale psychologist said Sunday.

A person who becomes overweight is likely to be "highly, sometimes uncontrollably responsive to external food-relevant stimuli," Dr. Judith Rodin told the American Psychological Association's annual meeting.

She said the reason for the phenomenon is not known for sure. However, overweight persons have an increased tendency to secrete insulin when they are stimulated by the sights and smells of food. Insulin, a hormone produced in the pancreas, leads to increased hunger and eating and promotes the storage of fat in the body.

Because it's been shown that even lean people who overeat develop that tendency, it's believed to be an effect rather than a cause of obesity, she said.

Obesity also makes one less active, more unhappy because society discriminates against the overweight and more likely to overeat in response to situations that produce anxiousness or arousal, she said

She downgraded the theory that fat persons are genetically destined to be fat, saying research shows that overweight is primarily a result of lifestyle, helped along by what she called a preoccupation with eating.

"An individual's modification of his behavoir is not enough," she said. "We need to use American institutions — the family, the community, the media — as agents for change."

She said the fight against obesity has become a $10-billion-a-year industry in the United States, "and yet the record of success in losing and keeping off weight is abysmally poor.

"Most of us feel that the ultimate answer is prevention and the place is in early childhood."

That rare time when she sees him in a tuxedo makes a gal envy his frilly and-or tucked front formal shirt. Envy no more. Ask a formal wear rental shop when is their next sale on new or used shirts. Then find your size. No one will notice the way the shirt buttons. And you can rarely get a better bargain in such a dressy blouse in the women's department.

When the stairway at home is due for new carpeting, take up the old carpet yourself to see what wood's underneath. You might be lucky enough to find handsome hardwood, especially in an older home, that could become a natural wood stairway. Add stain and varnish to bring out the grain. You may never want to spend money to carpet the stairs again — a few stair treads, maybe.

Is proper pickling puzzling you? Don't use waxed cucmbers because the brine can't penetrate the wax. Use pure granulated salt, if available. Regular table salt (not the iodized kind) can be used but it may tend to make the brine cloudy. Iodized salt may darken your pickles. And don't dilute the vinegar in your recipe. If you want a less sour flavor, add sugar rather than decrease the vinegar.

PICKLED PEARS

2 quarts pears
3 cups granulated sugar
1 cup water
2 cups vinegar
1 piece ginger root
1 stick cinnamon
1 tsp. whole allspice
1 tsp. whole cloves.

Use only firm, slightly underripe pears. Pare, halve or quarter and core pears.

Combine sugar, water and vinegar in large kettle. Add spices tied in cheesecloth bag; boil 10 minutes. Add pears, having them one layer deep in the kettle, cook about 3-6 minutes, or until pears are barely tender.

Let pears stand in the syrup overnight to absorb the syrup. Carefully pack pears into hot, clean jars. Bring syrup to boil, pour over pears. Seal jars. To ensure good keeping, process in boiling water bath for 5 minutes.

Heading Down Road To Self-Destruction

your health

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

My friend is 42. Last year, he had a mild heart attack. When he was told that this was caused by hardening of the arteries he became so depressed and nervous that now he smokes three packs of cigarettes a day and has gained weight from beer drinking. How long can he keep doing this without killing himself? — Miss D.E.

Dear Miss F:

Most reasonable, mature men, having suffered even a mild heart attack, are so glad to be alive that they adhere to all of the doctors' suggestions.

Sensibly, they usually cut out all tobacco and keep their weight down to an ideal level. They try to reduce their tensions and eliminate the factors that are now known to be responsible for early arteriosclerosis and heart attacks.

Your friend's behavior is certainly paradoxical. He seems to be on a course of self-destruction. The explanation for this behavior may lie deep within his psychological structure. If you are to continue to be his friend for a long time, you and his doctors must co-ordinate your efforts to induce him to get some psychological help. Only in this way can he gain some insight into the reasons why he is trying to destroy himself.

Perhaps this bit of information may alter his thinking. A five-year study of more than 300 patients showed that men on restricted, low-fat, low-cholesterol diets, in the absence of tobacco, developed far fewer recurrences of heart attacks than did others who did not adhere to such limitations.

Their conclusion: "The reduction of weight and the reduction of saturated animal fats can add years to the lives of those who have once suffered a coronary heart attack."

I have severe allergies at various times of the year. Can you tell me if it is safe for people with such allergies to wear contact lenses? — Miss D.S.

Dear Miss S.:

It is said to be very rare for an allergic person to be allergic to the plastic used in hard or soft contact lenses.

Sometimes, patients have been found to be allergic to the solutions used to clean the lenses.

One of the distressing symptoms of nasal allergies is redness of the eyes, itching of the eyes and watery eyes. The degree varies, depending on the severity of the allergy and the exposure to the offending pollen.

There is no universal rule about the use of contact lenses in such cases. Each individual must have this evaluated by an eye specialist. By trial and error, allergic patients can learn if they can tolerate contact lenses.

FOIL-WRAPED BARBECUED CHICKEN

¼ cup water
3 tbsp. vinegar
3 tbsp. catsup
3 tbsp. brown sugar
2 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 tbsp. butter
2 tbsp. finely chopped onion
1 tblsp. finely chopped parsley
1 tbsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. salt
¾ tsp. paprika
¾ tsp. dry mustard
½ tsp. chili powder
dash cayenne
1 broiler-fryer chicken (approx. lb.), cut up in serving-size portions.

In saucepan, combine water, vinegar, catsup, brown sugar, Worcestershire sauce, butter, onion, parsley, lemon juice, salt, paprika, dry mustard, chili powder, and cayenne. Bring mixture to boiling; remove from heat. Dip chicken pieces in sauce. Divide chicken pieces into 3 or 4 servings, placing each serving on an individual piece of heavy-duty foil (double thickness).

Spoon some sauce over chicken; seal foil, leaving room for expansion of steam. Place foil bundles on grill of barbecue or hibachi. Cook for 45 to 60 minutes or until chicken is tender (depending upon the heat from coals). During the last 15 minutes of cooking-time, open foil. Brush exposed chicken with sauce. Makes three to four servings.

Sweet and Sour Soybeans

1 cup chopped onion
1 cup chopped green pepper
1 cup sliced carrots
2 cloves garlic, crushed
¼ cup fat
1 19-ounce can pineapple chunks
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon ginger
2 tablespoons soy sauce
½ cup vinegar
½ cup syrup from pineapple
3 cups cooked soybeans
3 cups cooked rice

Saute vegetables and garlic in fat until crisp-tender (about 10 minutes). Drain pineapple; reserve ½ cup syrup. Combine cornstarch, sugar, ginger, soy sauce, vinegar and syrup from pineapple, add to pan. Stir and cook until thick and clear. Add pineapple and soybeans; heat through. Serve with rice. Six servings.

SO YOU THINK YOU KNOW WINE QUALITY?

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The old maxim, "there is no disputing taste," is being challenged by a University of Pittsburgh wine expert who says lack of vocabulary trips up the taster as frequently as anything else.

Dr. Peter Machamer, a History and Philosophy of Science professor, has been testing people's ability to distinguish between tastes and finds most of them can't do it very well.

In the first of two experiments Machamer currently is conducting, subjects are given two glasses of wine and asked to tell if they are from the same bottle or if one is of a better quality than the other.

Most people can't tell the difference.

In a second experiment, Machamer tests the average person's ability to describe tastes, and pick tastes which fit the description.

"I'm very interested in the semantics of descriptive terms," Machamer explained. "This is an area nobody has ever looked into. Just think about asking someone how a grapefruit tastes. They might say it tastes sour, but usually they just say: 'It tastes like a grapefruit!' "

To test a person's descriptive regularity, Machamer asks him to rank his preference in wines — dry, sweet, or fragrant. He then is given wines to taste, and asked to match their flavors with the descriptive words. Finally, he is asked to name which of the wines tasted he prefers.

"Novices tend to describe wines with words they think they would like, but it doesn't necessarily coincide with the type of wine they actually do like," Machamer said. "Some people will say they prefer dry wines, but then pick a wine with a high sugar content as their favorite."

Machamer theorizes that if people would build a better descriptive vocabulary they would become better at remembering tastes.

Get Busy and Freeze Before the Frost

This is the third in a series of articles by Elaine Collett on home freezing. They feature seasonal tips for getting the most freshness and dollar value out of what is put into the freezer, and menu suggestions to brighten dinners and parties.

By ELAINE COLLETT

Fruit-vegetable markets excel themselves at this time of the year with new vitality and excitement. Baskets and bushels of produce, previously sold by the expensive pound and dozen begin piling up daily.

The rush is on to harvest the best and last of home-grown fruits and vegetables before the first frost.

If you are a freezer fan, chances are you will be busy in the next four or five weeks, buying or pickling, preparing and bagging ripe peaches, blueberries, melon, corn, peppers and all your other favorite late-season fresh foods for those cold months ahead.

PEACHES

Tree-ripened fruit has the best flavor and texture. Look for peaches with an even cream-to-yellow coloring, especially at the stem end. When hard and greenish they will wrinkle rather than ripen.

Select a free-stone variety that does not brown quickly. Blanch to loosen skins, chill in cold water then peel, pit and slice into a bowl. Sprinkle a four-cup batch with ¼ tsp. powdered ascorbic acid dissolved in ¼ cup cold water. Toss gently and add ½ cup sugar. Toss again and bag in small freezer bags.

Draw out air with a straw, label, secure with twist tie and then freeze. Treat sliced peaches with ascorbic acid solution and bag without sugar if you wish.

APPLES

Choose firm, well-flavored apples. Taste one before buying a bushel. Prepare your favorite applesauce and chill. Bag in small freezer bags. Treat peeled and sliced apples with ascorbic acid solution as for peaches and mix in one cup of sugar for four cups prepared fruit. Bag, extract air and tie.

BLUEBERRIES

Sort firm, dry hazy blueberries and bag with or without sugar. To sugar pack, toss four cups berries with about ½ cup sugar.

MELON

Fully-ripe melons have a fresh aroma, uniform color, and blossom ends yield slightly to pressure.

Cut in half and scrape out the seeds, peel and dice or cut with a melon ball cutter. Toss four-cup batches with ¾ cup sugar and bag in small freezer bags. Or scoop melon into freezer bags and pour in enough could syrup to fill in air spaces. Twist tops and freeze.

Flavor Trick For Melon — Bag prepared melon and pour in enough diluted lemonade or limeade to cover. Dilute one six-ounce can frozen ade with two cups water. Melon may be bagged with canned fruit juice.

FRUIT SALAD

Mix together any of the following: melon balls, diced peaches, apricots or nectarines, seeded red or green grapes, orange or grapefruit sections, diced apple or pear. Bag and pour in a cold, thin sugar syrup flovored with a little lemon juice and treated with ascorbic acid crystals. Apples and pears will retain a chewy texture, not unpleasant in a fruit salad mixture.

PIE TRICKS

Prepare your favorite fruit pie fillings treating light fruits such as apples and peaches with an ascorbic acid solution to prevent discoloring. Add about ⅓ more thickening such as flour, cornstarch or granulated tapioca than usual. Frozen fruits give off more juice than fresh. Spread filling in a plastic-lined pie plate and freeze.

When firm, remove plate and bag in medium-size "Glad" freezer bags. Extract air using straw, and twist tops. Return to the freezer.

To bake, pop frozen filling into a pastry-lined pie plate and cover with top crust. Bake as usual allowing ten to 20 minutes extra cooking time.

If you have any questions, please write to me at the "Glad" Home Freezing, Information Centre, 165 University Avenue, Toronto, Ontario M5H 3B8, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. I'll be more than happy to answer them.

Chinese Chicken Stir-Fry

1 cup coarsely broken walnuts
3 tbsp. salad oil
1 tbsp. butter
2 whole chicken breasts, cut into thin strips (skinned and boned)
½ tsp., salt (or to taste)
1 large onion, sliced; separated into rings
1 green pepper, sliced into thin strips
1 cup bias-cut celery
½ cup chicken broth
1 tbsp. cornstarch
1 tsp. sugar
2 tbsp. dry sherry
¼ cup soy sauce
⅔ cup chicken broth
1 can (8½ oz.) bamboo shoots, drained
1 cup water chestnuts, sliced
1 large tomato, cut in wedges
hot cooked rice

In skillet, stir-fry walnuts in a mixture of salad oil and butter. Using slotted spoon remove nuts from skillet; drain well. In drippings in skillet, stir-fry chicken until tender (approx. 5 to 10 minutes, depending on thickness of slices). Sprinkle with salt. Remove chicken from skillet; set aside. Into droppings in skillet, add onion, green pepper, celery, and ½ cup chicken broth.

Cook, uncovered, for approx. 5 minutes or until vegetables are almost tender. In bowl, thoroughly combine cornstarch, sugar, sherry, soy sauce, and ⅔ cup chicken broth. Pour mixture over vegetables. Cook, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Return chicken to skillet. Add bamboo shoots, water chestnuts and tomato wedges. Sprinkle toasted walnuts over top. Heat through. Serve with hot cooked rice. Makes six servings.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I recently drove past a dog that was wandering aimlessly across a busy highway. It looked so lost and bewildered that I stopped to see if I could help. She was an old dog, thoroughly exhausted and utterly filthy from what must have been many days or weeks of travel. The poor thing was too weak and tired to object when I put her in my car. She was a large dog, part collie and gentle as rain.

I made inquiries (no leads), stopped at an animal hospital (closed), drove to the police station (the animal warden's van was not available) and finally drove her to our SPCA, where she was given food, shelter and a chance for her owners to find her.

Later I searched the lost and found columns, only to be shocked by the number of advertisements for lost pets, such as, "Generous reward for our beloved pet," or, "Entire family grieving."

Abby, where are these people's brains? They are spending money now when it's too late, when for $1 they could have bought an I.D. tag with the animal's name, and the owner's address and phone number! Or they could have paid the nominal fee for a dog licence, and the owner's name would be on record at the Licensing Agency.

If you care for animals, please print this for pet owners to think about.

HEARTSICK

Turnip Useful

TORONTO (CP) — Turnip or rutabaga is a good source of vitamin C. The Canadian Dietary Standard recommends a daily intake of 30 milligrams of vitamin C for everyone over six years of age and one-half cup of cooked turnips contains 26 milligrams of the vitamin.

Dog Tags Best Way To Retrieve Pets

DEAR HEARTSICK: I agree, there is no excuse for "losing" a pet. Pet owners out there—are you listening?

DEAR ABBY: In our home we have a lovely guest room with a comfortable queen-size bed. A married couple came to stay for a week, and when we showed them their room, the man said, "A DOUBLE BED! We haven't slept in a double bed for years. At home we have twin beds."

His wife gave him a dirty look, so he kept quiet. We would have offered them our bedroom, but we have a double bed, too.

After they went home, we heard from a mutual friend that they didn't enjoy their stay with us because they aren't used to sleeping together.

Must we exchange the double bed for twin beds to accommodate such people?

HOSTESS

DEAR HOSTESS: No. Offer your guests what you have, and if the accommodations don't suit them, they can go to a hotel or motel.

indoor gardens

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

Some bulbs can be grown in water and pebbles or when packed in sphagnum moss, Vermiculite or bulb fiber, but all will do far better potted in a light, slightly acid soil mixture fertilized with a bit of bone meal. Bulbs always need good drainage.

The general procedure for forcing bulbs is to plant in pot soil, burying the bulbs until only the tip appears at soil level. The pot should then be thoroughly drenched with water and allowed to drain.

Incidentally, if you're planning a succession of blooms you'll be wise to chalk the date on each pot so you'll know exactly which container to remove later.

Once potted, containers should be set in a wooden crate and insulated with a plentiful packing of peat moss to prevent freezing. Finally, transfer them to the selected storage spot and leave alone for eight weeks or so, or until bulb roots are well-established.

At this point you may peek. If bulb shoots do not look encouraging, you may upend the pot and gently allow soil to fall into your hand. It should tilt out in a solid ball as in any depotting, indicating that roots are well set and holding the soil together. Otherwise, replace soil in its pot and leave the bulb alone for another week or two.

It is important, first, to be sure bulbs are sturdily rooted and, second, to break them into family living very gently. Remove pots to a North exposure with 55-degree temperature. When shoots turn bright green, remove finally to a bright sunny exposure to encourage blooming.

Pot soil should be kept moist without waterlogging during this period, with mild sclutions of plant food every 10 days.

When the plants cease blooming, cut away dead flower stalks but allow leaves to ripen and die. When all life seems dead, cut off leaves and stalks an inch above bulb top and store the pots in a cool dry place until fall. Then plant outdoors.

All hardy bulbs should be given alternate seasons, by forcing indoors one year and placing in window box or outdoor garden the following year. Few of them will respond properly if you try to force indoors for two years in a row. More on its way.

It's B.C. flavour saving time.
During the all-too-short fresh fruit season, Bartlett Pears are a great family favourite—as a refreshing snack right out of the fruit bowl...on cereals... as a wholesome, tempting lunch box fruit...and in summery salads and desserts.
And for year-round good eating, economy and convenience, home-preserving is the answer.
B.C. Bartletts preserve beautifully, and right now is the time to save that luscious sunshine flavour in your own home-made preserves and jams.

Costly Food Replaces Caribou

KOTZEBUE, Alaska (AP) — Dick Curtis, a subsistence hunter for most of his 57 years, is caught between a flat rock and a hammer.

On the one hand, a spectacular decrease in the western Arctic caribou herd has eliminated one of the staples of his family's diet.

And on the other, grocery prices in this community of 2,400 are among the highest in the United States. A shopping trip is painful for Curtis, an Eskimo who earned only $9,000 last year.

The prices reflect the problem: carrots, 75 cents a pound; milk, $2.89 a half-gallon; ground beef, $1.79 a pound; frying chicken, $1.39 a pound; white bread, $1.20 for a one-pound loaf.

"We don't go without," says Lily Curtis, who has 13 mouths to feed in their five-room house. "We manage, it's tough."

Caribou was a major diet item for the Curtises, along with seal and whale meat, salmon, shee fish, wild rhubarb, berries and wild greens such as sour dock.

But the state banned killing of caribou earlier this year when the herd dropped to 50,000 animals from 240,000 in 1970.

State biologists say the major factor in the drop was human and animal predation. They say wolves, on the increase in the area, may take as many as 15,-000 this year and an estimated 25,000 to 30,000 were being taken annually by native subsistence hunters.

The state department of fish and game says there is no evidence that construction of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline played a part in the herd's decline. The traditional range and calving grounds of the herd lie west of the pipeline.

Curtis, who earned $4,000 as a commercial fisherman and $5,000 as a part-time plumber in 1976, has three children at home. The household also includes two relatives and five children who are wards of the state and receive government support.

"If the fishing is good, I probably make enough to buy groceries for the winter and before the 1976 commercial salmon season I was doing OK," Curtis said. "I made enough to put a little away and then live off the land.

"But last year the fishing season was rotten and I hardly worked. It seems like the more money I make, the more I spend on meat with no caribou available."

John W. Schaeffer, an Eskimo leader in this area, said the loss of caribou has left a tremendous void in the diets of the people here and in other communities along the Arctic coast.

Margaret Stetson, nutritionist with the University of Alaska's co-operative extension service, said Eskimo nutrition has suffered from changes in diet.

"When they used native foods they fared much better nutritionally," she said.

"For instance, they used to pound caribou bones into a meal and ate that, mixed with other foods. And that provided the nutrient they are most likely to be short of, calcium.

"They use little milk, except a bit in their coffee or tea, so getting enough calcium is a problem.

"There is also a problem nutritionally with iron, particularly with school-age children in rural areas. They aren't getting enough. If they were eating the old foods, they would be.

"If they followed the old ways and utilized everything, they would put things down in seal oil so they could eat them all winter, things like willow leaves.

"Willow leaves maintain a high level of vitamin C as long as they are stored in a non-oxygen area, which the seal oil provides.

"Their old ways were nutritious and I'm all for promoting them where they can still be used."

Loss of Lung Doesn't Stop Him Running

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — About 30 years ago Dr. Robert Jones was suffering from tuberculosis and an assortment of other ailments, including the loss of a large part of one lung.

His doctors told him he would probably be an invalid for the rest of his life.

Since then, Jones, 54, has developed a desire to run in the gruelling Boston Marathon by the time he is 60 and to train for that test he runs about 300 miles a month.

"I started out swimming to build myself up and I did it for a number of years," he said, "But it wasn't always possible for me to get to a pool and sometimes it wasn't convenient to do laps in a public swimming pool.

"I got interested in running because you can do it anywhere."

The result has been an enlargement of his lung, an increase in the strength of his heart and a general feeling of well-being.

As he explained it, jogging forces both organs to work harder than normal and, when the work is through, they can relax. Gradually the heart muscles grow stronger and are able to feed the body by working less when there is no strain on the body.

Why does a successful neurosurgeon quit a thriving practice in Philadelphia, move to Montreal and then come east to this small city?

His answer is simple: crippling malpractice insurance rates.

"The malpractice problem got so bad it took the joy out of practising medicine," he said. "Living in Philadelphia with the amount of violence and racial unrest surrounding you was like living in an armed camp."

His malpractice insurance here is $200 a year. Before he came to Canada his policy cost him $46,000.

The most widely known case Jones was involved in before he came to Canada was that of Karen Ann Quinlan, a girl who took a drug overdose and lapsed into a comatose state. Her New Jersey family asked doctors to disconnect the life support systems that kept her alive.

But with the malpractice problem, doctors were unwilling to disconnect the machines despite written requests from the Quinlan family.

Those documents, he said "wouldn't be worth the paper they were written on" if the family later took the doctors to court.

It was during the court proceedings on that case that Jones became associated with the Quinlan family and still more aware of the problems his colleagues had to contend with in their medical practice.

With the Vietnam war still on and a teen-age son eligible for the draft he moved his family north.

Elvis Body-Snatch Scheme Now Thought to Be a Hoax

MEMPHIS — Police Director Winslow Champman says a suspected plot to snatch the body of Elvis Presley for ransom may have been a hoax. But, Chapman said, police had no choice but to act on an informant's tip that Presley's body would be stolen from his mausoleum crypt. "Personally, I doubt in retrospect that the body was going to be stolen," Chapman said Tuesday. "Professionally, I do not think we could ignore the infogmation we were given. Our informant may have misinformed us." One of three men charged with trespassing at the cemetery where Presley's body is entombed was identified by Chapman as the informant who alerted police to the alleged scheme. Chapman said Ronnie Lee Adkins, 26, notified officers only hours after the superstar died August 16 that an attempt would be made to steal the body.

MINATARE, Neb. — For more than 30 years, Larry Cruz has hiccupped every time he shaved — somewhat dangerous in a view of the single-edge razor he uses. Surprisingly, Cruz never has even nicked himself while hiccupping. Cruz can hiccup without a razor, too, just by touching a sensitive spot on the right side of his chin. He shaves that spot last. He's never seen a doctor about his condition, because it's never really bothered him, his wife says.

MINNEAPOLIS — The best tonic for Sen. Hubert Humphrey, recovering from cancer surgery at University of Minnesota Hospital, would be to return to Washington, according to Dr. John Najarian, the hospital's chief surgeon. Humphrey's surgery revealed an inoperable malignant tumor in his pelvis. "He is using his time in the hospital to understand his disease and his operation so he can better cope with his therapy now and in the future," Najarian said. "The best tonic for the senator would be to return to the Senate and finish the session."

LOS ANGELES — The Academy of Television Arts and Sciences said Tuesday that Eric Sevareid, who is retiring from CBS, will be presented Sept. 10 with its 1977 Broadcast Journalism Award "in tribute to his four decades of distinguished and courageous service in broadcasting." Other winners, the academy announced, are the CBS series 60 Minutes, the Public Broadcasting Service's MacNeil-Lehrer Report and the televised 1976 presidential debates.

HOLLYWOOD — Barbara Eden, who starred in the television series I Dream of Jeannie as a blonde genie, will marry a Chicago executive Saturday. Miss Eden, 39, and Chuck Fegert, a vice-president of Marshall Field Enterprises, will be married in Chicago, a family spokesman said. It will be the second marriage for both. Miss Eden was divorced in 1974 from actor Michael Ansara.

JAGGER AND COCKER BOTH IN TROUBLE

ISTANBUL — Mick Jagger, vacationing on the Aegean coast of Turkey, is being sought by Greek police for allegedly breaking Greek sea transportation laws, the Turkish newspaper Cumhuriyet reported today.

The paper said Greek authorities were seeking to arrest Jagger for allegedly breaking merchant marine laws while on a recent sailing trip to Greek islands off Turkey's coast near Bodrum, the resort village where he is staying.

The paper did not specify which laws Jagger allegedly broke. He has denied the Greek allegations.

Meanwhile, another British rock star, Joe Cocker was detained at San Antonio International Airport in Texas Tuesday night then ordered deported to Mexico.

Officials said Cocker failed to produce proper U.S. entry papers.

He reportedly lost his papers in South America.

Mao Tomb Visit For Tito

PEKING (Reuter) — President Tito of Yugoslavia became today the first foreigner to visit Mao Tse-tung's mausoleum, the imposing memorial hall completed only a few days ago.

The surprise visit to the Roman-style mausoleum in the Square of Heavenly Peace underlined the red-carpet welcome the 85-year-old statesman has received here.

The memorial hall will not be opened officially until Sept. 9 — the first anniversary of Mao's death.

At the opening of talks later, Chairman Hua Kuo-feng told Tito that Mao had wished to meet him. The president replied that death was merciless.

Peking laid on a spectacular welcome when Tito arrived Tuesday on his first visit here, mobilizing more than 100,000 dancing, chanting people along the Avenue of Eternal Tranquillity.

The significance the Chinese attach to the visit was shown by the composition of the negotiating team at the talks in the Great Hall of the People.

Apart from Hua, it included Communist party Vice-Chairmen Teng Hsiao-ping and Li Hsien-nien and three government ministers.

The Yugoslav team contained some of the president's most trusted aides, among them Yugoslav politburo members Stane Dolanc and Aleksander Grlickov and Foreign Minister Milos Minic.

Wheelchair Hijacker Set Free

KUWAIT — Kuwait has freed "for humanitarian reasons" a crippled 28-year-old Lebanese man who hijacked a jetliner last June in an effort to pay his medical bills, officials said today.

They said the hijacker was released Tuesday, following an appeal by the hijacker's mother to Kuwaiti Interior Minister Sheikh Saad Al Abdullah As Sabah. They said the mother had also been given an undisclosed amount of money to help the freed hijacker cover medical expenses.

The hijacker, Nasser Mohammad Abu Khalid, boarded a Beirut Middle East airways jet in his wheelchair June 5, forced the pilot to fly to Kuwait and demanded $1.5 million to pay his medical bills. He was finally overpowered by fellow passengers and arrested.

Prior to his release, he had been receiving treatment in Kuwait's Al Amiri hospital.

Interior ministry sources said Abu Khalid was expected to leave Kuwait with his mother within the next two days.

Some More Gems By Brother Billy

NEW YORK — Suffice it to say that Billy Carter was here at the 21 Club to promote a new peanut liqueur and had something to say about just about everything.

Here are excerpts from his news conference:

About why he was drinking the liqueur called Peanut Lolita instead of beer: "Because I have no idea where the damn bathroom in this place is."

About how much he was getting paid for the promotional appearance: "I don't know. But if I did, it's none of your damn business."

About New York: "I like New York. I used to think it was full of (expletive deleted) but I met some real nice people."

About whether he will ever again seek elective office after being defeated in races for mayor of Plains, Ga.: "I can't win so I ain't goin' to run."

About his feelings toward Miss Peanut Lolita, a belly dancer at the promotional appearance Tuesday: "She's the best-looking damn peanut I've ever seen in my life. If I took her home, I'd quit raising 'em."

About how his wife would feel once she saw him on television hugging and kissing Miss Peanut: "I'll probably catch straight damn hell."

About how good a president his brother is: "The president takes none of my advice. If he did, he'd be a much better president." But he added: "He's the best president I've ever known."

About whether he is uncomfortable with the idea that he might make more money this year than his brother, the president: "I travel more than he does."

About peanuts: "I don't even like the damn things. I'm a peanut liqueur lover."

PLAYWRIGHT LEAPS FOR FAME

Don Cameron Rodill leaped Brooklyn Bridge Monday to duplicate 1886 stunt of Steve Brodie who survived. Rodill ended up with a crushed rib cage and is in critical condition in hospital.

Students Had Sober Message

EDMONTON (CP) — A group of University of Alberta student actors toured the province this summer with a sobering message.

The Intimate Theatre of Alcohol Awareness is an emotional encounter with the problems of alcoholism.

Designed to expose social workers, youth groups, nurses and prisoners to many common situations involving alcohol, the theatre group is sponsored by the Alberta Alcohol and Drug Abuse Commission.

"The response has been very positive," said Barbara Baldwin, a spokesmen for the group. "It's easier to see a solution to an alcohol-related problem when the situation has been graphically portrayed on stage."

"Each of the characters in the play is a real person. The actors met with problem drinkers and their families at the Salvation Army, Alcoholics Anonymous and other social agencies. Then they went to the streets, talking to skid-road alcoholics. Research took several months."

In one town, a minister was so moved by the young actors' dedication that the play was presented in church, replacing his Sunday morning sermon.

The message comes across through a series of fast, poignant sketches. There's Jim, an ex-cop who saw too much and drinks to forget. Lynne, with a family history of alcoholism, began drinking at 12 and now, at 21, believes she has her problem under control. Trudy, a young native women, drinks to survive the hostile environment of the city.

Britain's Past Traced in Bone

LONDON (CP) — A London policeman's discovery of a bone from the tail of a diplodocus in a cliff face on the Isle of Wight is the latest in a series of clues adding weight to the view that Britain and North America were once part of a single land mass.

When Constable Stephen Hutt brought his find to the Science Museum in London's South Kensington district, it was a well-earned reward for the institution's policy of making science widely accessible to the public.

As a boy, Hutt visited the museum along with hordes of fascinated schoolchildren. The visit stirred his interest and he became an amateur fossil hunter.

At the museum, Dr. Alan Charig had no difficulty identifying the nine-inch bone. He said it has the distinctive shape found only in the tail of a diplodocus, a type of dinosaur known to have existed around Wyoming about 140 million years ago.

The bone, which Charig dated to a time about 110 million years ago, shows the 80-foot reptile was still thriving in England 30 million years after it was assumed to have died out.

This gigantic leap in time and space is consistent with modern ideas of continental drift. At the Geological Museum, just around the corner from the Science Museum, the rapidly unfolding drama of discovery is set out in a permanent Story of the Earth exhibition.

Space-age techniques of visual presentation make these developments as clear to the layman as to the professional scientist. They show the slow movement of the continent-bearing plates, beginning 200 million years ago with the super-continent Pangaea, described by Alfred Wegener, the German who formulated the continental drift theory.

A crack opens, becoming the Atlantic Ocean with America on one side and Britain on the other. Like a tooth drawn from North America, Britain slides eastward, carrying with it such enigmas as the Isle of Wight diplodocus.

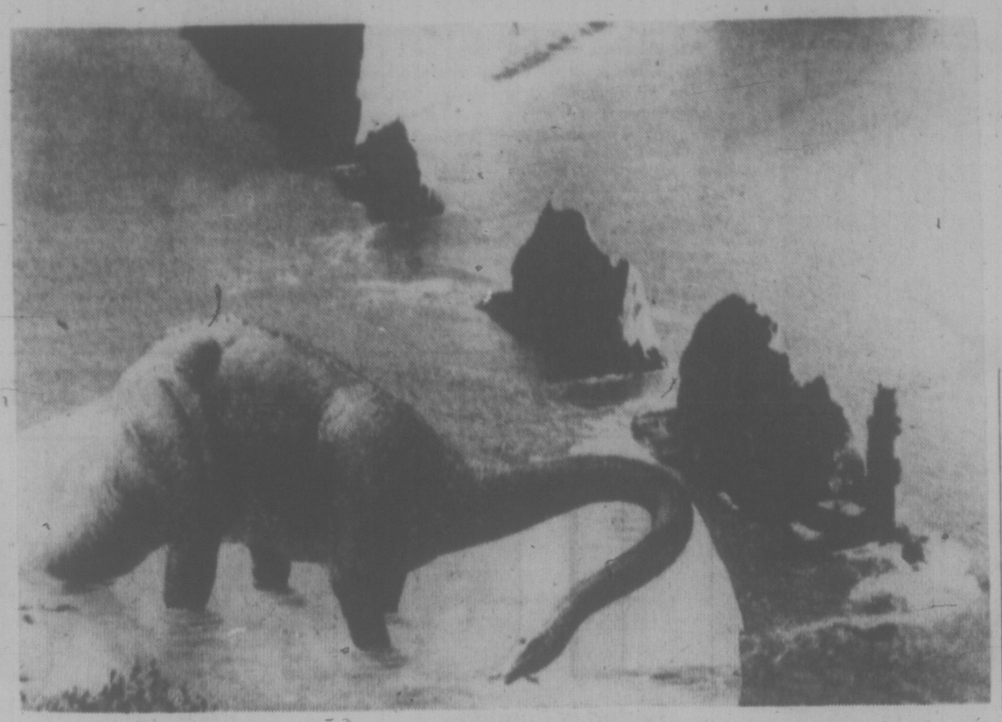
Another significant piece of the jigsaw has fallen into place with the discovery of fossils of amphibians at the Scottish coalmining town of Cowdenbeath. Scientists are reconstructing the contents of a bone bed containing many types of fossils of fish and amphibians belonging to a period known as the Namurian, a subdivision of the Upper Carboniferous, from 245 to 280 million years ago.

The fish are in a group from which all four-footed animals have descended. The amphibians include the three main types found in the Paleozoic epoch, the most important being an almost complete but tailless specimen of a new crocodile, anthracosaur amphibian.

Scientists are hoping to learn much more about the early history of four-footed animals from these fossils.

At the Science Museum's gallery of geophysics and oceanography an exhibition shows the history of seismographs, ranging from an ancient Chinese brass version in which metal balls drop from dragons' mouths in various directions to the actual instrument that records earthquakes today. Many other types of instruments show the exploration of earth and sea.

In a nearby gallery the exploration of the air is shown, evolving from Leonardo da Vinci to the modern space rocket by way of cautious Sir George Cayley, who made his coachman the first glider pilot in 1853 but kept his own feet firmly on the ground while developing airplane designs that lacked only the 20th-century power to fly.



ANCIENT TAILBONE of the diplodocus (insert) found in the picturesque Isle of Wight has led scientists to believe that Britain and North America were once part of a single land mass.

Australia Mission Forbidden

JAKARTA (Reuter) — Indonesia said Tuesday it would ban an Australian parliamentary mission from investigating the deaths of five Australian journalists in East Timor because the mission would be intruding into Indonesian domestic affairs.

East Timor, until last year a Portuguese colony, now is a province of Indonesia and "any attempt to conduct an investigation there would have to be regarded as an intervention," a foreign office spokesman said.

The Australian mission planned to visit the territory to investigate the deaths of the five during the 1975 civil war between Indonesian-backed forces and an independence movement.

The journalists were killed about two months before Indonesian regular forces intervened openly to crush the independence movement.

STUDENT JOBS FUNDED

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will pay up to $100,000 a project for programs that give full-time students practical work experience, Employment Minister Bud Cullen said Monday.

"I hope that this funding — a start — will give impetus to the gradual growth of such programs and provide inventives for experimentation and innovation in this area," Cullen said in a speech prepared for delivery in London, Ont., to the Canadian Association for Co-operative Education.

Cullen said the provincial governments have reacted favorably to the federal proposal.

To "receive favorable consideration" for federal grants, projects must offer a new service; participants should be full-time secondary or post-secondary students; work placements should be "with established employers"; placements of post-secondary students should be related to the courses they are taking and federal funds should not be used to subsidize student wages, Cullen said.

However, he said the federal government will be flexible in the early states of the program.

"Once we have approved a financial plan and signed a funding agreement for a specific project with the province and educational institution involved, the federal government will transfer funds to the province for that purpose."

But the government does not intend "to play an on-going support role for individual co-operative education programs."

"Provinces should be willing and able to carry on with them once federal support ends," Cullen said.

Everyday goodness.

Birthday, Crimes Linked

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Peter Richtig, a professional astrologer, says there is a correlation between the birth date of an individual and his tendency to commit crimes.

He said in an interview that criminals are more often born between Sept. 23 and Oct. 22 than any other time of the year.

Richtig's conclusions are based on a study of 200 male criminals conducted four years ago when he was a parole officer in Thunder Bay, Ont.

Richtig, 28, plans to publish the study in book form and use it with his students and clients.

"There's a high rate of criminals born under the sign of Libra," he said. "Those born under Scorpio, between Oct. 23 and Nov. 21, have the lowest rate."

He said crimes involving fire or explosives were committed mostly by Sagittarians, born between Nov. 22 and Dec. 22

Crimes relating to children were usually committed by Leos, born between July 23 and Aug. 22, and crimes involving break, enter and theft were usually committed by Taureans, born between April 21 and May 22.

"People born during winter are more violent; people born in summer are more passive, easygoing," Richtig said.

Violent, aggressive crimes such as murder were committed most often by persons born under the signs of Capricorn, between Dec. 2 and Jan. 20, and Aquarius, between Jan. 21 and Feb. 19. Rapists tended to be Pisceans, born between Feb. 20 and March 20

Other types of crimes and their perpetrators' most frequent signs included:

—Alcohol abuse, Cancer, June 22 to July 22;

—Drug crimes, Aries, March 21 to April 20;

—Petty crimes, Virgo, Aug. 23 to Sept. 22;

—Shoplifting and stealing, Gemini, May 23 to June 21.

Richtig taught himself the principles of astrology, which holds that the movement and position of heavenly bodies influences the affairs of mankind.

"I'm a hard person to please," he said. "Being a Scorpio, things are either black or white for me, so if I thought astrology was not valid I would have dropped it.

"It's hard to say what astrology is based on. Either the planets influence or pull us, or they just happen to be there at the same time things happen.

"I just know it works."

Wild Pot Nuisance To Farmers

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — There is grass growing wild in some parts of the Kawarthas and area farmers and police forces are concerned.

The grass is marijuana, and eager harvesters of the weed are a nuisance to farmers on whose property they trespass while looking for the illicit drug.

Recently, Ontario Provincial Police charged seven person with possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking. In one incident, police said they stopped a car and found 91 pounds of wild marijuana neatly packed in 13 garbage bags.

"At this time of year it's an annual occurrence," said Cpl. Bel Scott.

How the marijuana came to grow wild isn't known. Scott said the plants found in the area aren't planted by cultivators. "Nobody plants that stuff. It grows wild, like milkweed."

One story used to explain the presence of the plants is that pig farmers in the area imported pig feed from Mexico and seeds contained in it were eventually scattered across the countryside, producing a perpetual crop.

Scott said an effective approach in stamping out the weed is encouraging farmers to report to police any marijuana plants they find growing on their property.

"It's up to the people to make sure it doesn't grow on their property," he said. The maximum penalty if convicted of cultivating marijuana is seven years in prison.

Several farmers have notified police that marijuana was growing on their land, said Scott. The plants are destroyed when found.

He added that most farmers are co-operating with police because they "don't want young punks poking around."

Constable Dave Crundy of the Peterborough RCMP said those who harvest the wild marijuana are taking a big chance.

Small Firm, Large Impact

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — A small North Vancouver company has developed three pieces of sophisticated electronic equipment that have attracted the attention of several major firms.

Glenayre Electronics Ltd. is developing a microprocessor (basically a small computer) program to improve the use of mobile telephones and keep trains from colliding, said company president Klaus Deering. He added that the firm is also working on a power converter for railways.

Glenayre has attracted customers that include the Canadian Pacific Railway, Canadian General Electric and Canadian Motorola. The United States parents of the latter two companies, U.S. Steel, Bell Canada and Alberta General Telephone are also showing an interest in the company's products.

The company works out of a plain, untidy building that houses 12 to 15 engineers and another 40 employees.

Glenayre plans to move the first 1,000 control heads for the mobile telephone off its production line in September. Deering said he hopes General Electric will become the first customer and estimated the first few years of a contract to supply GE to be worth up to $10 million.

Glenayre's souped-up microprocessor, which Deering said is unique, will automatically search for a free channel in the mobile telephone system, call the operator and then notify the user that he can place his call.

This system would eliminate some manual functions now required, a plus for someone trying to drive a car at the same time.

Deering said the unit is a major improvement to a mobile telephone unit Glenayre has been supplying to CGE for several years.

George Burman, a CGE applications engineer, said his firm is "very impressed" with the new system and will probably use it in future models. The company has been the exclusive buyer of Glenayre's earlier mobile phone unit.

The second line the company is developing is the LIC (location, identification, control) system for railways, which will be installed on locomotives and enable a dispatcher to apply the brakes of a train from miles away if the engineer for some reason fails to do so.

A prototype is being tested on two British Columbia Railway (BCR) trains, and U.S. Steel has spent about $40,000 on engineering work as a preliminary to placing an order.

Bud Mariatt, BCR's chief of communications, who originally went to Glenayre with the idea, said the new system would cost the railway only 10 to 20 per cent as much as a conventional signalling system such as the one employed on CP Rail.

The company also developed an electronic device that converts direct current from 72 volts to 12, giving railways flexibility in cab equipment. CP Rail has installed about 800 of them and Motorola is starting to use them in the U.S.

John Targett, CP's communication's supervisor for Western Canada, said Glenayre is small enough to tackle innovative projects leading to relatively short production runs, which big companies like CGE or Motorola find unappealing.

Deering said he wonders if his small firm may have taken on too much with three lines of advanced equipment. "Frankly, any one of the three is probably sufficient to keep a little company like this."

Since Deering joined Glenayre in 1969 sales have risen from $65,000 to about $1.5 million last year.

There has been financial support from the National Research Council, and of the $1.4 million spent on research and development in the last five years, Glenayre has recovered $700,000 from the government.

While the company manufactures its products in North Vancouver, Deering expects to open a plant in the U.S. as the microprocessors catch on.

Poet Exiled

WEST BERLIN (AP) — Sarah Kirsch, 42, one of East Germany's most popular poets, has arrived in West Berlin as a voluntary exile, a spokesman for the Association of German Writers said. She is the latest of more than a dozen East Germans to leave the Communist country after encountering difficulties because they supported dissident singer Wolf Biermann last November.

Primroses Need Some Attention

The common hardy primroses, or polyanthus primulas, may have suffered from heat and dry soil in some gardens this year. A little attention now will do much to improve the plants.

Indeed with rain showers this week new growth will be noticed even before any further work is done.

During the next two or three days, polyanthus plants may be lifted from the ground for division if more of the same colors are wanted. Before starting decide where the young plants are to go.

All the Primula genus like a well drained soil rich in leafmould and other humus material in a position shaded from hot sun in summer but open to winter and early spring sunlight.

This indicates shelter from leafy deciduous trees or shrubs. In winter their twiggy growth forms a light protection from wind and filters snow so that the plants are not fully exposed to the elements.

Lift two or three plants at one time. Pull each one apart into sections, each with a crown (a growing centre) and a few roots. Use a sharp knife to cut through a section if necessary. Lay the sections in a tray with wet paper over the roots to prevent their drying in air or sun.

When planting, set in groups of one color to get the most pleasing appearance and merge one group into the next to do away with sharp lines of demarcation. The roots should be set deeply, but the crowns only just below the soil surface or they will rot.

During the fall, polyanthus plants make new roots in the cooling, damp soil and the general weather conditions are also in favor of their making new top growth. Quite often with the sunny days of late fall into winter, stems of flower buds appear. If a complete color display is wanted in spring, it is a good plan to take out the flower buds as soon as seen, to conserve the plant's energy for later full production.

When frosty periods come, a supply of dry leaves kept for the purpose, lightly scattered over any type of primula is sufficient protection.

Only in prolonged periods of hard frost, or in repeated frosts and thaws are losses expected in this area, making the polyanthus primulas ideal for tub planting on balconies and patios where their progress and final display can be fully enjoyed.

In addition to the polyanthuses, there are the auricula species. These have thick smooth greyish-green leaves in a cluster around the flower stem. The colors are clear yellow, red or purple, each having a light yellow eye.

Auricula leaves are evergreen, but need shelter from frost because of their moisture content. Again twiggy shrub material nearby or arched over the plants during frost is ideal protection. These roots do not divide so readily but will go on for years increasing the number of flowers if given extra leafmould and a little sand under the foliage in fall and after flowering.

During winter it is well to check all primulas to be sure their roots and crowns have not been exposed by heaving of the loose humusy soil by frost. As moixture in humus particles freezes it expands and lifts the plants. The moisture then drains downward as it thaws, leaving the roots exposed to dry cold air.

An instant remedy is to gently dig out the plants and re-set, using soft compost soil kept under cover for this and similar winter emergencies. If the soil remains frozen and digging is impossible, heap the dry compost soil around the exposed stems, arch twiggy branches over the tops and wait until the soil thaws and makes it possible to render the above suggested first-aid.

Barring these emergencies, primulas of most kinds are easy enough to grow and keep in this area of southern Vancouver Island.

SUNLIGHT ON RHODIUM AND PRESTO . . . FUEL

PASADENA, Calif. (Reuter) — The development of a chemical compound that can convert the energy of sunlight directly into fuel was announced by California Institute of Technology chemists Tuesday.

Under the chemical process, natural gas is produced by sunlight playing on a newly discovered compound called rhodium, institute spokesman Dennis Meredith said.

Meredith said a lot more work remains to be done to produce natural gas economically from the compound.

"But its a breakthrough," he said, "an important first step."

The discovery was made by chemists Dr. Harry Gray and Dl. Kent Mann who developed rhodium in laboratories here last year.

"Only recently did they discover the chemical could be used in solar power schemes," Meredith said. The two chemists are to deliver a paper on their discovery at the American Chemical Society convention in Chicago today.

"Although the compound is still in the experimental stages, its discovery raises the possibility of converting sunlight into fuel with much greater efficiency than schemes to convert either solar-produced electricity or plant material into fuels," Meredith said.

The blue-colored rhodium turns yellow as it releases hydrogen gas under the play of the sun's rays.

Previously scientists had been able to use solar energy to activate only one electron at a time but they had never been able to create chemical bonds, Meredith said.

Rhodium contains two atoms in each molecule and is able to produce hydrogen gas, a compound of two hydrogen atoms, Meredith explained.

Rhodium is expensive to produce and experiments are going on to use cheaper metals like iron and nickel. Meredith said: "We think they will work. They are very similar to rhodium in size."

Another problem under study is how to recycle the yellow hydrogen-less rhodium back into its blue form so it might go on producing hydrogen gas.

"Dr. Gray and his colleagues are now experimenting with various ways to do this," Meredith said.

U.S. GOV'T ASKED TO BAN CHEAP FARES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) was urged Tuesday to reject a proposal by six major airlines to offer a cut-rate roundtrip fare of $256 between London and New Pork to compete with a no-frills fare by Britain's Laker Airways. The board's Office of Consumer Advocate said in a letter that it fears the six airlines might force Laker out of business and then eliminate their own cheap fares. The justice department took a similar position earlier this month. In a petition filed with the board, justice department lawyers suggested that the fares filed by the six airlines might be a temporary method of destroying the highly-competitive charter airlines.

Kappler's Wife Used Rope To Get Him Out of Hospital

BONN (Reuter) — The wife of Nazi war criminal Herbert Kappler has described for the first time how she helped him escape down a rope from the third floor of an Italian military hospital in Rome two weeks ago.

Mrs. Anneliese Kappler, a 53-year-old blonde, told the magazine Bunte Illustrierte in a copyrighted article that the idea of using her alpine experience to free her husband came to her quite spontaneously.

She said it occurred to her one day while she was looking at her mountaineering equipment in the trunk of her car in Rome.

After helping him down the rope she made him comfortable in the trunk of a rented car and drove him away, she said.

She said she had planned another means of escape with Italian friends last year, using a monk's cowl and robe. But the attempt was thwarted at the last moment when a priest suddenly entered her husband's sick room.

At the time of his escape Kappler, former Nazi police chief of Rome, had served 30 years of a life sentence for ordering 335 hostages shot as a reprisal for a partisan attack on German troops in Rome during the Second World War.

The Kappler affair has severely strained Italian-West German relations, causing the postponement of a meeting between Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and Italian Premier Giulio Andreotti and leading to protest bombings in Italy and attacks on West German tourists.

Mrs. Kappler said in a West German television interview Monday that she had acted alone in freeing her 70-year-old husband, who is suffering from intestinal cancer.

She said she had received messages of congratulation from all over the world from non-political people "who felt a woman had acted—a woman who wanted her husband by her side."

Travel Allowed

The ministry of forests said Tuesday that effective immediately, the restricted travel and recreational order imposed Aug. 22 on the Penticton and Ellis Creek watersheds has been lifted.

The ministry said cooler, wet weather has reduced the fire danger rating in those areas.

IRA 'Far from Beaten' Says Protestant

BELFAST (Reuter) — The Queen's Northern Ireland visit left many believing the republican guerrillas were beatem but not Andy Tyrie, commander of 15,000 staunch Protestants of Scottish settler descent.

"People think the Irish Republican Army has been beaten to its knees," the street-army chief said in an interview in the British-ruled province.

"But they have only switched their tactics from bombing and shooting civilians to attacks on the British forces and police.

"The IRA is far from beaten."

The headquarters of Tyrie's Ulster Defence Association stands in the heart of a Protestant area where houses and lamp posts are painted in the loyal red, white and blue.

Before reaching his office, adorned by flags and the motto "For God and Ulster," you are searched by silent, hard-faced men with bulging coats.

"Three Roman Catholics were getting killed in the sectarian fight for every one Protestant," Tyrie said. "The IRA realized that the Protestant-majority community were going to protect themselves whatever happened."

Although the IRA promised "The Queen of Death" a time to remember and rioting and sniping kept the 32,000 troops and police busy, guerrillas failed to mount the expected major headline-grabbing operation or even disrupt the royal progress.

Tension has dropped considerably here in the last year, most of the 1.5-million population agreed, and the police report big successes in tackling violence.

"So far this year there have been 88 killings compared to 272 in the first seven months of last year," said a senior police officer at the Belfast barracks of the 5,500-strong Royal Ulster Constabulary, which has had 107 men killed since 1969.

"Explosions are down from 393 to 215 and arrests have doubled.

"Significantly, the only figure that is up is the number of internal punishment shootings—80 so far this year compared with 49 by this time last year—which indicates to us the extent of disarray inside the terrorist and extremist organizations."

But another view was put by a hard-line Protestant leader, Rev. Ian Paisley. "This week, the IRA shot dead two British soldiers and seriously wounded a major," he said. "If anybody thinks that is a low level of violence they are crazy."

Despite the biggest security guard ever seen here, the Queen travelled by helicopter, hitherto considered too dangerous, to only two heavily guarded locations and slept aboard the royal yacht Britannia.

In fact 270 British troops have died here and 1,328 civilians, 487 of them in bombings. Nearly 800 people have been charged with actual or attempted murder and another 2,700 with bombings, hijacking or gun offences.

"There is nowhere we cannot go in Belfast now although we need an army escort in some areas," the police spokesman said—a different situation from before the big Operation Motorman army assault in 1972 that opened the Catholic "No go" ghetto areas.

Despite constant body and vehicle searches, the people of Belfast seem more relaxed today than they were when three or four big bombs a day were steadily reducing the city.

"Lately I have been into Catholic areas near the city centre that I had not dared to go into for years," a taxi driver said.

"Mind you, streets still have no name-plates and houses have no numbers in some places— and you dare not ask anybody the way."

Claiming much credit for the easing of tension is the peace movement, founded by two Belfast housewives, which has just observed its first anniversary.

Leader Betty Williams is planning a drive to get the rival communities to pull down the permanent barricades which block off the back streets of Belfast.

Morgue of Smashed Dreams

VANCOUVER (CP) — Twisted, torn vehicles, once somebody's pride and joy are parked in neat rows, a tidy morgue of broken dreams.

The morgue is the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia's Vancouver area salvage depot, located on eight acres of fenced-off land in east Vancouver.

Some people say a tour of the yard should be mandatory for all newly-licensed drivers —a look at the result of incompetence, inattention or foolhardiness.

"If the public could see it . . . if they could only see some of the gruesome impacts, maybe it would sober them up on the roads," said Alex McKenna, the man who runs seven ICBC salvage yards in the province.

Car advertisements tell of the pleasures of driving, the pleasure of owning a new car and the pleasant places to go, he said. But they don't show salvage yards, where some of these pleasures come to an abrupt end.

There is a North American sedan in one of the rows, its front torn into an unrecognizable shape and punched at almost a right-angle to the rest of the body. The windshield has broken where two heads smashed against it. The steering wheel is grotesquely misshapen.

There is an import sports car, every panel of its body twisted and crumpled. In the back are an opened bottle of rum, an opened bottle of Coke and a dozen beers in a carton. There is also an opened bottle of mouthwash.

"I suppose that was the 'drink before meeting the roadblock,'" said McKenna holding up the green mouthwash.

McKenna sells the vehicles to licensed wreckers or bonded dealers. The average price he gets is about $250. Last year, he recovered almost $5 million for ICBC.

Some of the worst wrecks are given to the fire department for training. Others are displayed by police in shopping malls during safety campaigns.

There is a car whose roof has been flattened to the waistline, the right door welded shut by the impact. A passenger could not have escaped.

There is an almost-new sports coupe, so badly damaged that it is unrecognizable at first glance.

Sports and so-called muscle cars are plentiful. McKenna said that often they are damaged more badly than other types.

Glass-fibre bodies are split apart in mute testimony to what happens when plastic meets metal.

Elsewhere, there is a pile of metal that was a car before it was hit by a train.

McKenna told of a 1977 model that was written off with 41 miles on the odometer, amost certainly before the first payment was due.

Every car is the salvage yard has a story. Most of them are grim.

A slogan that has persisted through the ages is "always cover an honor with an honor" (or, in present-day ternunology, cover a picture card with a picture card). As a general slogan, it is a winning one, provided that the word, "always" is deleted.

In today's deal, our South declarer's unthinking adherence to the principle of covering an honor with an honor cost him his contract.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	3 NT	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

West made a good guess when he chose to lead the jack of clubs instead of his fourth-highest spade. As he viewed it, if he led spades, even if this suit became established in time, he had no outside entry to cash it. So he tried to "hit" his partner's best suit.

Dummy's queen was played on the jack, and East covered with the king, which was permitted to win the trick. East returned the five of clubs, South's ace winning. West now made another fine play when he unblocked by tossing away the ten of clubs. Declarer next led the diamond nine and took the finesse, which lost to East's king. East then proceeded to cash three more clubs tricks.

Dummy's queen of clubs should not have been put up on the opening lead of the club jack. Admittedly, West might have been leading the jack from some K-J-10 combination, in which case the queen would have won the trick. But by playing low instead, declarer would have guaranteed his contract.

South should have recognized that he was going to finesse in diamonds in such a manner that if the finesse lost, it would lose only to East. Hence a low club should have been played from dummy at trick one, South capturing the trick with his ace. The dummy would then have retained the Q-7 of clubs.

The diamond finesse would now be taken, losing to East's king. No matter when the setup was in clubs (hypothetically) — whether East or West possessed the club king — the board's guarded queen of clubs would prevent the defenders from cashing more than the club kind.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Thursday, September 1

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Emphasis on independence, initiative, responsibility, involvement. Contradictions exist. You can work your way out of dilemma. Your own judgment, intuition ultimately bring you out of morass of confusion. Capricorn, Cancer figure prominently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Look back only to become informed concerning your "roots." You have a right to live your own life, free from burdens not your own. Dwelling on secret fears, doubts would be a serious error. Yes, meeting will benefit but you may not know what occurs.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emphasis on creativity, love. Yes, the relationship is "meaningful." Friend who advises doesn't have all the facts. You're seeking approval, not legitimate advice. Admit it and go from that point! Leo, Aquarius figure in scenario.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Emphasis on assuming responsibility, making impact, checking legal rights and permissions. You "get hunch." Follow through on it. An Aquarian provides rare insights. Perceive values. Come alive!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Good Moon aspect coincides now with journeys, messages, long-range plans. Movement, travel, inquiries, intellectual curiosity, publishing — these are spotlighted. Don't neglect possible "weight problem."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Occult, mystery, confidential information, money, leases — these dominate. You may have to overturn plans; revision, digging deep — these factors come into focus. An "extremely physical" confrontation could be part of scenario.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Yes, you're right about change, analysis, reasons, marital status, going slow, playing waiting game. No — being discouraged is not an answer. Gemini, Virgo figure in picture. One whose views are not compatible to your own is willing to make a major concession.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pace should be moderate. Don't irritate superiors. Many are sympathetic, want you to succeed — but there are basic factors which need their attention. If you prepare, get house in order you invite success. Patience and diplomacy now are twin allies. Yes, Taurus is in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good Moon aspect coincides with emotional responses, ability to define what you want, to articulate requirements. Popularity increases, especially where opposite sex enter picture. Yes, young person does care despite outward appearances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be practical. Check investment, financial potential. Accent on property, appraisals, tax shelters. Get accounting — discuss aspirations with one close to you. Avoid self-deception. See places, people as they are, not through haze of wishful thinking.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Stick to number "9." Finish rather than initiate project. Emphasis on transaction that requires telephone call, short trip. Close neighbor or relative figures prominently. Aries, Libra persons could be part of your personal scenario.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You can remove barrier to money progress. Get rid of false sentiment. You've paid your dues — know it and get proper compensation. Leo, Aquarius individuals could figure prominently. Accent on possessions, locating lost articles.

IF SEPTEMBER 1st IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are perceptive, independent, creative, temperamental and very attractive. October could be the start of something important for you. Recent disappointment is overcome — you're on the way to a "comeback." Leo, Aquarius individuals play key roles in your life. You soon are to gain access to privileged information. You will be able to display talents, unique abilities. You'll be happier!

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"We did a check on eyes in the club today," said Ann. "A quarter of us had brown, the rest all blue."

Susan smiled. "That's surprising," she commented. "How did boys compare with girls?"

"Well, two-thirds of our members are male, and just seventeen of them have blue eyes," Ann Replied.

How many in the club?

(Answer tomorrow)

Yesterday's answer: ROOM 1336.

FOOD BETTER THAN DRUGS FOR SLEEP

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A plate of shrimp or a cheeseburger might be better than sleeping pills for the insomniac, scientists studying sleep problems said Tuesday.

Researchers told the American Psychological Association that high-protein foods — including the traditional glass of milk before bedtime — contain tryptophan, which is believed to induce sleep.

It does not matter whether the milk is warm or cold, said Richard Bootzin, a Northwestern University psychologist. And a cheeseburger might work just as well.

Although research into the world of sleep is still new, Bootzin said one thing that has been discovered is that "drugs simply do not work for chronic insomnia."

Prescription sleeping drugs, he said, serve only to "bring on a state of unconsciousness," taking a person to the first and second levels of slumber but not to the third and fourth "deep-sleep" levels.

Additionally, Bootzin told the APA convention, many insomniacs become dependent on sleeping drugs and eventually find it impossible to sleep without them.

Researchers from Stanford University told a group studying insomnia that they had mixed but encouraging results from attempts to teach patients to help put themsleves to sleep.

Thomas Coates said researchers are not sure why some people have trouble falling asleep or staying asleep.

Treated Pajamas Danger Warning

WASHINGTON (WP) — Two scientists warned Tuesday that the children's sleepwear banned by the U.S. government because it might cause cancer also might cause abnormalities in the reproductive systems of boys.

The scientists said that the sleepwear was treated with a flame retardant, tris (tris-BP), which is chemically closely related to a pesticide, DBCP, that has been linked to sterility in workers who make it.

In addition, said biochemists Arlene Blum and Brune N. Ames of the University of California at Berkeley, DBCP — in trace amounts — is present as an impurity in tris-BP.

Blum and Ames discovered nearly two years ago that tris-BP was a mutagen, an agent capable of causing changes in genetic material, and at that time recommended it be kept out of children's sleepwear.

Since then, they recalled in a letter to Chairman S. John Byington of the Consumer Product Safety Commission, tris-BP has been shown to be a potent cancer-causing agent in animals, to be absorbed from fabric by human skin, and to atrophy the testicles of rats and rabbits.

In April, after studies confirmed the cancer hazard of tris-BP, the commission banned the manufacture and sale of sleepwear treated with it. But legal challenges and other problems have partially frustrated the ban, forcing the agency to go to court on an individual basis against distributors and retailers that continue to sell treated garments.

Blum and Ames told Byington of "new information that reinforces our fears" that boys who have worn pajamas treated with tris-BP may suffer sterility, sperm mutations and testicular abnormalities.

Like tris-BP, they wrote, DBCP (dibromochloropropane) is a mutagen and a carcinogen, atrophies animal testicles, and recently has been shown to cause human sterility.

At least 60 male chemcial workers have been found to be sterile at a Dow Chemical Co. plant in Magnolia, Ark., and at an Occidential Chemical Co. plant in Lathrop, Calif., which uses Dow products. Tests are being made on scores of additional DBCP workers at Dow plants in Midland, Mich., and Shell Chemical Co. plants in Denver.

Last Thursday, Dow recalled all outstanding stocks of the pesticide. Both Dow and Shell had reported in 1961 that DBCP caused sterility in animals.

In the letter to Byington, Blum and Ames said that "DBCP has been shown to causes terility in humans at doses which may be similar to those doses of Tris-BP which children can absorb from their sleepwear."

Moreoyer, they said, "The risk of reproductive effects on children from Tris-treated pajamas is amplified because the scrotum is about 20 times more permeable to chemcials than is other skin."

Washington Moves to Outlaw Penicillin in Animal Feeds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. government has taken the first step to ban routine use of penicillin in animal feed, fearing continued use could trigger chain-reaction resistance to antibiotics.

"As the use of penicillin and other antibiotics has increased over the years, drug resistance in people and animals also has increased," Dr. C. D. Houweling, director of the Food and Drug Administration's Bureau of Veterinary Medicine, said.

"We are particularly concerned because resistance to a single antibiotic like penicillin may lead to simultaneous resistance to other antibiotics as well."

The proposal is the first step in a long-range effort by the FDA to limit the addition to animal feeds of antibiotics important in combatting disease in people or animals.

Anticipated challenges from penicillin manufacturers could delay the effective date of the ban for a year, an agency spokesman said.

The agency said the ban on most uses of the antibiotic in animals could cost consumers a little over five cents per person a year in increased costs for livestock producers.

The goal is to preserve penicillin effectiveness as a medical treatment in humans.

Continuous long-term use of small amounts of penicillin in animal feed presents a risk that bacteriea in the animals gradually will develop resistance to the antibiotic, an FDA spokesman said.

This resistance can be transferred to humans, not so much through the eating of penicillin treated meat as through handling or processing meat or working with livestock, he added.

The FDA has concluded that the benefit to the livestock industry and consumers from the use of penicillin in animal feed "does not outweigh the potential long-term risk to the public health if bacteria become resistant to this important antibiotic," Van Houweling said.

SKIN TEST CUTTING PENICILLIN DEATHS

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Patients who have been denied penicillin treatment because of adverse allergic reactions may learn through a simple skin test that they have lost their sensitivity to the drug.

Dr. Franklin Adkinson, a Johns Hopkins Hospital immunologist, found that up to 75 per cent of patients reporting a history of previous penicillin sensitivity showed a negative result on skin tests.

He said Tuesday the skin test proved superior to a patient's medical history in determining if penicillin could be administered without adverse reaction.

"The skin test could reduce the mortality rate which results from penicillin deaths," he said, adding that penicillin fatalities number 300 to 400 each year in the United States.

Diabetics Warned Over Fructose

TORONTO (CP) — A federal health official has warned that fructose, a substitute for saccharin in diet soft drinks, might pose a serious threat to diabetics and the obese.

Dr. W. P. McKinley, director general of the food directorate of the health department's protection branch, said excess fructose (fruit sugar) in the diet raises blood levels of fatty acids called triglycerides, which are implicated in gout.

Dr. McKinley said in a letter to Tibor Gregor, head of the Canadian Soft Drink Association, that effects are noticed most in persons who have raised levels of triglyceride in their blood.

The government is considering regulations restricting use of fructose in special dietary foods, Dr. McKinley said.

He said reformulation of soft drinks which until now have contained saccharin and have been identified as sugar-free is of immediate concern. The reformulated products will contain sugar and be classified as calorie-reduced.

Dr. McKinley suggested that unless a new brand name is introduced, the drinks be labelled or advertised as products which contain sugar and which diabetics should use with caution.

The letter was released by Dr. Morton Shulman, former Metropolitan Toronto coroner and NDP member of the Ontario legislature.

Dr. Shulman said the letter was sent to him by a member of the soft drink association.

Cataract Drug Shows Promise

CHICAGO (UPI) — A new drug that prevents cataracts — a debilitating complication of diabetes — in rats, has shown some promise in clinical tests on humans, a researcher says.

Dr. D. Dvornik of Ayerst Research Laboratories in Montreal, Canada, told the American Chemical Society convention in Chicago Tuesday the drug alrestatin relieves the buildup of undesirable products of excess blood sugar in eye tissues, but does not disrupt normal bodily use of glucose.

Body Discovered

GRAND FALLS, Nfld. (CP) — RCMP found the body Tuesday of Anthony Foley, 24, of nearby Windsor, missing since Sunday. Police said the body was found by a helicopter in woods near Windsor.

DAY OF THE LONER NEAR END: FORECAST

HONOLULU (UPI) — If today's rugged individualists, self-made men and local boys who made good took a time-machine ride to the year 2000, they probably would be given immediate psychiatric attention, according to a noted psychiatrist who specializes in studies of the future.

Dr. Stanley Lesse, editor of the American journal of Psychotherapy, predicted Tuesday at a seminar at the sixth World Congress of Psychiatry that within two generations, the individual ego will be superseded in importance by the group ego.

Individualists will be looked upon as odd and reactionary, and personal success will be defined as being part of a successfully-functioning group.

Lesse said this radical change will be forced by "socioeconomic and sociopolitical factors, population growth and increases in industrial capacity to a magnitude that will dwarf the most generous predictions."

He suggested that the greatest cause of psychological stress in the future may relate to feelings of alienation from the group. Medical care will be group-oriented and its object will be to return the individual to the group for his own survival.

Lesse said all indications are that the world's population — now 4 billion — will have doubled in 35 years, despite efforts to check its growth. Lack of space will spawn vertical rather than horizontal expansion.

Traditional status symbols will be no more, he suggested, because there will be no need for money since there will be no room for vast arrays of material goods.

People will not be earning money anyway, Lesse said, because automation will eliminate people as the unavoidable links in providing for their own welfare.

"In the age of cyberediture, enormous segments of the population will live in leisure," he said. "Only a few will 'labor' in the sense of drudgery. People will have to find new tasks."

Lesse said effects of automation and greatly increased leisure will change attitude toward sex and equalize the status of men and women.

"There is likely to be much greater freedom for sexual activity, with romantic sex becoming less common, less expected and less sought after," he said. "Recreational sex will probably dominate sexuality."

Train Blaze Contained

HOPE (CP) — A fire that sent poisonous sulphur dioxide fumes billowing across the Trans-Canada Highway at two points near here Tuesday was under control about seven hours after it began, a Canadian National Railways spokesman said Tuesday night.

Al Menard said that the 200 people evacuated by RCMP from the nearby community of Flood in the wake of a fire in two of the open cars carrying sulphur had been allowed to return home by 9:30 p.m. He said the highway closed during the height of the fire, had been re-opened.

Menard said that 84 cars of the 100-car freight train derailed about five miles west of here at 2:10 p.m. Two caught fire and for a time were burning out of control.

Menard said that the B.C. Forest Service supplied pumps to get water from the nearby Fraser River to the fire, and that the CNR hired air tankers from nearby Abbotsford to dump fire retardant on the blaze.

A total of five passes were made by three aircraft to bring the conflagration under control, Menard said.

He said that the Canadian Forces base in Chilliwack supplied heavy equipment, oxygen, and helped put sand onto the fire.

Menard said the five-member crew on the train was not injured in the derailment, and that there were no injuries fighting the fire.

"They were pretty cautious at the scene," he said, "and sulphur dioxide is easily detectable.

"When you get a whiff, you know when to back off."

Cause of the derailment was unknown. The five locomotives remained on the rail.

Menard said arrangements were being made with CP Rail to detour CNR traffic onto the CP Rail line at Mission. He said it is hoped the CNR line can be used again in two days.

An immediate investigation was launched into the cause of the crash. Damage was expected to be more than $1 million.

In a similar accident in July, 1976, 23 cars of a 93-car CNR freight train derailed in almost the same spot.

Witness Carl Augustine said that he was on a tug on the Fraser "as the trian rushed past — it seemed to be going very fast."

"It had just gone over Hunter Creek bridge when a huge cloud of smoke billowed up out of the trees," he said. "We tied the tug up, rushed through the fields and saw the wagons lying twisted and packaked together.

"Wreckage was everywhere. Some of the wagons were completely destroyed; it must have been a violent stop.

"Flying sparks must have set the grass embankments on fire and this spread to the sulphur."

Cabinet to Decide On Land Appeals

Legislation to give the provincial cabinet powers of final appeal in Land Commission Act cases was introduced Tuesday by Environment Minister Jim Nielsen.

The amendments will mean a citizen for the first time could appeal to the cabinet for change in a B.C. Land Commission ruling.

The proposed amendments were immediately criticized by NDP environment critic Bob Skelly.

"I think they're a bloody tragedy," he said in an interview.

The amendments would undermine the appeal procedure of the commission because it would introduce a political route to any decision, he added.

The law has as its main intent the preservation of agricultural land in B.C., through an agricultural land reserve.

The minister said the change, one of several introduced, means that cabinet will have the same powers as the land commission now has.

Nielsen said that under the current law, an appellant wishing to have the classification of his land changed must first receive the approval of the land commission to have his appeal heard by the cabinet's Environmental Land Use Committee.

Such a step would be taken after the commission had already ruled on the application.

The amendments provide that within 30 days of having a request for an appeal denied by the commission, an appellant can go directly to the minister to ask that ELUC hear the appeal.

Nielsen said this procedure will soothe complaints of personal conflicts, and will give the appellant the satisfaction of dealing with an elected, rather than an appointed official.

But Skelly said:

"Some developers who were not getting their way appear to be getting their way now."

He also said the current system was widely acclaimed as one that could be free of abuse.

Other provisions contained in the Land Commission Amendment Act, 1977, call for:

—The name of the law to be changed to the "Agriculture Land Commission Act." Nielsen said this is to avoid confusion with other laws dealing with land;

—Municipalities and region-

GIBSON RAISES A FISHY FEAR

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson put the bite on the government Tuesday with a fishy question.

Will the voracious South American man-eating piranha fish one day be nipping at bathers in B.C. waters? he wanted to know.

He asked Recreation Minister Sam Bawlf to look into the situation.

The flesh-eating fish is being sold "in the thousands" in pet stores, Gibson said, and there is some chance the piranha could survive in B.C. waters if it somehow were released into them.

"Or in this House," interjected Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver-East).

Gibson said outside the House later that if the piranhas can survive in B.C. waters, out of their normal tropical element, there are a number of ways they can get there.

When they get too big for home aquariums or owners get tired of them the owners might simply flush them down a toilet or dump them into a stream, despite the fact a permit is mandatory for anyone to put fish in B.C. waters.

"After that it's only a matter of time before boy meets girl," Gibson said.

And when people go wading or swimming "heaven knows what they might nibble at."

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Up to 10,000 gallons of heavy bunker oil spilled into the Fraser River Tuesday, fouling a fleet of fishboats near Steveston, coating miles of shoreline and endangering unknown numbers of fish and wildlife.

The spill also forced an emergency closure of fishing in the region where salmon fishing had been scheduled to open today.

The move by the International Pacific Salmon Commission closed the lower Gulf of Georgia near the mouth of the Fraser and part of United States fishing waters near the international border.

Angry fishermen and environmentalists are demanding to know both why the spill occured and why there was a 15-hour delay in the start of clean-up operations.

"The Gulf of Georgia now is being contaminated and there are unconfirmed reports of sightings of oil in American waters," said Lyle Freeman, federal fisheries department spokesman.

The spill into the main channel of the Fraser River is one of the largest spills in Vancouver area waters, a clean-up operations spokesman said.

Desi Sjoquist of Clean Seas Canada, a company specializing in cleaning up oil spills, said it was costing $6,000 a day to remedy the spill. He estimated the job would take a week to 10 days.

He said no more oil was leaking from a tank at the Canadian Fishing Co.

The spill is believed to have occurred late Monday when a six-inch pipeline separated from the main pipe underneath the Canadian Fishing Co. wharf.

It was reported to environmental authorities Tuesday morning, fishing company officials said.

Fishermen docked at the wharf said that small spots of oil were seen in the area Monday morning, adding to the theory that the pipe became unscrewed because of vibrations and age.

Frank Spencer, senior vice-president of Canadian Fishing Co., said he believed the spill was caused when a piece of wood jammed against an oil main under a dock and broke off a valve at high tide.

HYDRO STRIKE THREAT

Negotiations are continuing today in Vancouver in an effort to avert a strike by B.C. Hydro maintenance workers.

The 2,500 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 258, have already voted to strike and business agent Doug Cronk said they may be off the job by the end of the week if there is no settlement.

"A negotiated settlement is possible but we have to get over our hurdles this week for strike action to be avoided," Cronk said.

Money is not a major issue for the Hydro workers, who are seeking better layoff and re-hiring provisions, job protection for partly-disabled employees, pension improvements and training subsidies for steam engineers.

Filers Return

A majority of wildcatting Vancouver Island sawmill filers today obeyed an informal order from the B.C. Labor Relations Board and returned to work but some in the Victoria area apparently need more convincing.

A spokesman for the Duncan local of the International Woodworkers of America said today most members in that area, except for a few stragglers, were removing pickets and reporting for work.

The filers in the area covered by the Duncan local set up picket lines Tuesday closing about five sawmills and affecting about 1,500 workers.

The pickets began to come down Tuesday night following the LRB's verbal cease and desist order, requested by Forest Industrial Relations, which represents the companies.

Filers belonging to IWA's Victoria local did not set up pickets but about 24 of them chose to book off sick at B.C. Forest Products' sawmill on Garbally Road and at Sooke Forest Products' mill.

The Sooke operation was operating today as it did Tuesday but BCFP was forced to close the sawmill Tuesday afternoon. It reopened this morning but a company spokesman said it would likely close down again if the book-off continues.

A spokesman for the Victoria-area filers said they are waiting for formal word from the LRB and from local union officials that they have to go back to work.

U.S. Skipper Sought In Bizarre Incident

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The FBI has joined the RCMP in the hunt for an American fishboat skipper who sailed off with a Canadian fisheries officer in a bizaare incident in the Juan de Fuca Strait.

The fisheries officer — Butch Mayor, quartermaster of the patrol boat Laurier — was forced to leap from the U.S. seiner Lucky Star when the vessel fled.

Colwood RCMP Sgt. Ed Kokoska said the fishboat, registered at Kodiak, Alaska, is believed somewhere in Washington State waters.

The vessel's unidentified skipper, who warned Mayo if he boarded he'd get a "one-way trip to the U.S.", faces a charge of illegally fishing in Canadian waters.

Also contemplated are charges of obstruction, forcible confinement and abduction.

The incident occurred last Wednesday when the Laurier spotted the seiner fishing in Canadian waters off Port Renfrew.

A spokesman for the federal fisheries service said the seiner had a net out and was "an honest mile within the Canadian boarder."

He said Mayo boarded the seiner to place the captain under arrest and take the vessel into port.

Just prior to the boarding, the seiner and the Laurier collided.

Fisheries officials said the collision occufred when Laurier captain Jack Goss manoeuvred the Laurier in front of the seiner to prevent it from escaping.

Some damage was done to the seiner along its port side.

It was reported the seiner captain felt the Laurier had deliberately rammed his vessel before Mayo stepped aboard.

The seiner, having hauled its net in "sort of jogged towards the boundary," the spokesman said.

When it crossed the line Goss decided, said the spokesman, that discretion was the better part of valor, and launched a rubber lifeboat to retrieve Mayo.

The lifeboat pulled along side the seiner but the captain refused to stop and Mayo had to jump while both boats were moving.

FBI special agent Mike Entler said in Seattle Tuesday the bureau will help the RCMP.

"We'll be co-operating to our full extent just as they (the RCMP) would do for us."

By co-operation, he said he means the FBI will track down the whereabouts of the seiner and take statements from the captain and crew.

"This sort of thing is bad for both sides," he said. "There is no excuse for it. The fishermen themselves don't like to see it happen."

CIVIL WAR IF QUE. GOES?

OTTAWA (UPI) — Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney said today Quebec's attempts to legally separate from the rest of Canada could lead to civil war.

"All very well to say that we can reach agreement in principle on separation," Blakeney told the annual meeting of the Canadian Bar Association. "It may well be that when it comes time for the specific terms, we will not have the goodwill, the wisdom, which would allow this to happen without force of arms."

Air Strike Repeat Looms in U.K.

LONDON (UPI) — British air traffic control assistants voted today to call another strike if the Civil Aviation Authority suspends any worker for taking part in a slowdown.

Heathrow airport officials reported airlines were still operating curtailed flight schedules as they did during a four-day strike that ended Tuesday, with delays of up to five hours common.

British Airways cancelled five flights to the United States.

"There are delays on all routes in and out of Heathrow," a CAA spokesman said.

A meeting of the union's disputes committee today, answering the national executive committee's call for an all-out strike "from the moment the first man is suspended," voted in favor of a walkout whenever necessary.

Airlines warned passengers flights face flight delays up to five times that long.

Million-Dollar Metric Tab Announced by Fraser

It will cost the provincial government about $1 million to get metric on the road in B.C., Highways Minister Alex Fraser said today.

In announcing the start of B.C.'s changeover to metric signs, Fraser said it will cost an estimated $710,000 to switch over the province's 25,000 highway signs.

Municipalities will have to bear their cost of changing local signs.

An additional $350,000 is earmarked for public awareness and education program to ease the province into metrication.

Fraser said he hopes both the changeover of signs and the public awareness campaign can come in a little under budget.

The minister said there are 48,000 signs on B.C.'s highways but only 25,000 will be converted to metric — including 15,000 speed limit warning signs.

All signs dealing with speeds and distances are to be changed. Fraser said a major advertising campaign, organized by the Vancouver firm of Walker, Ricks, Ehrig, is to be launched to win the public's support for metrication.

The campaign includes radio, television and newspaper ads, and distribution of about 900,000 brochures to every household in the province.

Another 500,000 brochures will be distributed to clubs, organizations, and to visitors at border crossings.

Mass Firing of Legislative Pages Rescinded

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

A temporary reprieve was given Tuesday night to 14 young legislative pages who earlier in the day were fired from their jobs with 24-hours notice.

The pages are meeting with Speaker Ed Smith, Sergeant-at-Arms A.M. Hutchinson and concerned MLAs today to discuss the process for terminating the employment of pages.

The results of the meeting may mean the pages will get to finish out the term of the current session.

A storm of controversy arose Tuesday afternoon when the pages' firing was raised in question period, but Smith poured oil on the troubled waters as the legislature adjourned for its dinner break, saying that the firing order had been rescinded for the time being.

Smith told the house "the pages will remain until we can determine the best course of action."

He said the pages had been fired by Hutchinson because the session has lasted longer then usual and with a new school term about to begin, it was a good time to change staff.

Earlier in the day, Hutchinson had little to say except that the pages were being dismissed as part of a "normal rotation".

The Sergeant-at-Arms declined further comment, at one point marching tight-lipped through a circle of reporters, chin up and arms, swinging. NDP house leader Bill King (NDP-Revelstoke-Slocan) said the dismissal was "absolutely inhuman — I'm appalled by it."

King said he believes the pages were fired because they were in the headlines two weeks ago with complaints that their heavy uniforms were too hot in the summer weather.

"This is retaliation against the pages," said King, who failed in an attempt to make a statement on the matter in the house.

As the afternoon session began King asked for unanimous leave to make a statement, but it was denied with shouts of "no," coming from Premier Bill Bennett, Labor Minister Allan Williams and Mines Minister Jim Chabot.

The denial was apparently intended to keep the NDP from making any political yards out of the situation.

Bennett later rose, during question period, to ask Smith about the pages.

"It has come to my attention that there has been some uncertainty over their continued employment," said Bennett in asking Smith for an explanation.

"They were unceremoniously fired," interjected Dennis Cocke (NDP—New Westminster).

CONDOMINIUM POLICY RAPPED

Saanich council was accused Tuesday of treating condominium owners as second class citizens.

Lew Jones, president of the Greater Victoria Strata Corporations Association, raked council's policy of placing townhouses in crowded areas along arterial roads with little access to parks and other green areas.

Jones told the aldermen 90 per cent of condominium owners are older people who have had to sell their single-family homes for various reasons.

He said Victoria and Oak Bay are more advanced in their policy on condominiums, placing them in more attractive areas.

Jones asked the aldermen if they are content to force elderly Saanich residents to move to the city or Oak Bay when they can no longer maintain their large homes.

Both Ald. Davis Paterson and Ald. Ian Cass said it's a fact of life that most Saanich residents do not want high density development in their area.

Cass pointed out North Quadra residents, as an example, turned out en mass to protest such development in that community.

Committee chairman Ald. Fred Severson told Jones it has been the policy to place condominiums on arterial roads so that residents would have easy access to shops, medical buildings, bus stops and other services.

Jones rallied with the observation that very few condominium owners were without cars.

The matter will be debated at a special meeting of the lands, planning and housing committee.

Singing Canaries May Be High on Marijuana

Does your canary sing his little heart out after lunch? Does your budgie daydream after a snack? If so, your pet may be enjoying a little dope with dinner.

Tests are being conducted on a brand of West German birdseed to determine if brown seeds in the product are really marijuana, an RCMP spokesman in Vancouver said Tuesday.

The manufacturer, Vitakraft, is Europe's largest maker of pet foods for birds and small animals. It guarantees its product "promotes singing in canaries and other song birds."

Sing-Song Treat contains among other things, 62.5 per cent rapeseed, 15 per cent radish seed, three per cent honey and 15 per cent Nigerseed.

The National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws in Canada (NORML) says Nigerseed is really cannabis savita or marijuana.

NORML spokesman George Baker said some of his organization's members accidentally discovered and then grew the seeds several weeks ago.

A University of B.C. botany professor confirmed the finding, Baker said. The point NORML is making is that under present drug laws, a lot of stores could be charged with trafficking, an offence where conviction can bring a life sentence.

But a police spokesman said even if the birdseed is laced with marijuana seeds, there has to be intent "and I don't think we have that here."

In Victoria, one pet store spokesman said it's not the Nigerseed but the radish seed which is suspect and there's been a debate about it for years.

The seed, which sells for 35 cents for three-quarters of an ounce, is not particularly poular, he said. Some birds seem to sing more after eating, others don't.

Pyramid Selling Charges

EDMONTON (CP) — A Wetaskiwin, Alta. Couple accused of running a pyramid selling operation took $15,000 out of the operation in three months, a witness testified Tuesday in provincial court.

John and Cheryl Martin, who operated as J and C General Agencies, have denied charges under the lotteries and games of chance section of the criminal code and a charge under the Combines Investigation Act.

Clarence Maimann, an Edmonton accountant appearing as an expert witness for the Crown, said his examination of books seized from the Martins' office showed that between May 21 and August 31, 1976, their operation received $24,908 in income.

He said their expenses for the period, shown by cheques issued, ammounted to $23,193. He said the figure included personal drawings by the Martins of about $15,000.

BEFORE: An afternoon swimming sessions at Crystal Garden in 1930

AFTER: Contributing author Terry Reksten visited the remains Tuesday

Can Nostalgia Save Crystal Garden?

Nostalgia tugs at us all every now and then.

And that obviously is what six Victoria writers and artists are counting on to sell their new book, The Crystal Gardens — West Coast Pleasure Palace.

Not that they stand to make anything themselves, though, for those involved are turning over all profits from the book (the soft-cover version sells at $7.95 a copy and there is a limited hardcover edition at $40) to a fund for the preservation of the old glass building.

Like Pierre Berton, whose introduction "My Love Affair With the Crystal Garden" is nostalgia personified, the six want to see what is now just a shattered shell come to life again.

They want to see the people of Victoria using it and enjoying it once more, and being proud of it as they were when it was a renowned tourist landmark. In the good old days — days of dipping in the heated saltwater pool, of sipping tea and munching crumpets under the palm fronds, of swaying to the dance music of the big bands.

It's a great idea, for it's sad to see the Crystal as it is today, even for a relative newcomer, and must be even more so for those who, like Pierre Berton, spent their 'teens in her embrace. And maybe learned to swim and to dance and fell in love there.

It's a fascinating book, too, although I fear the six plus Pierre are dreamers all.

Now don't get me wrong. It is not a soppy book, merely dripping with nostalgia. It is, in fact, a well-researched, well put-together work blending memories with mountains of photos and facts and figures.

There are diagrams and illustrations showing the layout of the Crystal as it was and all the uses it had.

There's a chapter titled simply The Crystal Garden, by researcher-writer Carolyn Smyly, telling how it all came about and recalling the great days of Bert Zala and his band; of Johnny Weismuller smashing world records and the kids from the corner splashing in its waters.

There is a chapter by writer Terry Reksten, a member of Victoria's Heritage Advisory Committee, on Francis Mawson Rattenbury, who envisioned the Crystal, and another chapter by researcher Alastair Kerr on Percy Leonard James, who took over from "Ratz" as architect.

And there is Iron and Glass, a chapter written by well-known art historian and chairman of the Heritage Advisory Committee, Martin Segger, comparing the Crystal Garden with other similar yet very different buildings throughout the world.

But bound to be the most

memory-provoking are the three pictorial chapters put together by Stuart Stark and Rennie Knowlton, a couple of museum technicians who double as graphic designers and artists. This is where you see the Crystal as it was — the old photos of tea-sipping in the '20s, of people lining up in the '30s, the dances, the dog shows, the gymnastics, and the priceless old advertisements and clippings from the press.

It's an interesting book, sure. Yet it has no answers.

If the Crystal is to be preserved, even restored, then what is to become of it? There have been many suggestions over the years but so far there are no answers. And the six plus Pierre don't offer any.

All agree, though, it must be saved.

Berton calls it irreplaceable. He says that she is "irreplaceable, but, thankfully not irrepairable." And he says "she can be renewed and she must be."

After surveying other countries, Segger concludes the Crystal is "a major and unique landmark in Victoria, the lone survivor of a generation of world class buildings."

And Kerr warns:

"The fate of the Crystal Garden must now be decided. Percy Leonard James was the talented architect who conceived the building's final form, but in the totality of its historical importance, he was only the man who gave shape to a unique architectural and social phenomenon which existed in Victoria during the twenties, and which had its roots in Victorian England.

"What remains is a matchless remnant in the Canadian architectural landscape. Should it be allowed to disappear, the present and future generations would lose an unparalleled part of their heritage: an era that has gone forever."

Eloquent, certainly. Yet, still no one suggests what can be done, how she can be saved.

Earlier in his chapter, Kerr admits that today the roof trusses and the supporting steelwork are lamentably corroded, the valley framing of the roof structure is totally rotten, about 25 per cent of the glass is missing, broken or cracked and nearly all the panes leak.

"If repairs are attempted," writes Kerr, "the entire roof structure would have to be taken down, the condemned steel replaced, existing glass cleaned, damaged glass replaced, and then re-erected, all at a great cost."

Deciding how to save it and what to do with it are really in the "second stage," says Terry Reksten.

"We didn't try to find answers," she explains. "This is a book outlining why the Crystal is an interesting building and why it's important to Victoria's social history.

"This is the first time that anybody has raised any money to try to save the Crystal.

"If all it does is revive a few memories ... then there's nothing wrong with that either."

The End Of Call Boxes

The Victoria fire department next week will disconnect the city's call box fire alarm system.

Chief Eric Simmons said today the system, which has been in operation since 1881, will go out of service around noon Tuesday.

Placards will be placed on the 106 boxes in the system advising they are no longer in use. After that, persons reporting fires will be required to do so by phone.

Simmons said the demise of the call box is the result of soaring maintenance costs and a large number of false alarms.

He said the underground wiring to the boxes needs to be replaced, a job that would cost several thousand dollars.

The chief noted more than 90 per cent of alarms in recent years have been false. In 1976, 152 of the 168 box alarms were false and in 1975, 188 of 210.

Victoria is the only municipality in Greater Victoria with the call box system. The Canadian Forces Base at Esquimalt has one but a spokesman for Dockyard fire department said today the defence ministry is considering abandoning it for the same reasons as the city.

Sooke Mishap Injures Four

Four persons were injured when two cars collided on the West Coast Road about four miles west of Sooke Tuesday.

Sooke RCMP said Sandra Ferguson, 19, of Sooke and two passengers in her car, Terry Edwards, 30, and Tony Young, 25, were taken to Victoria General Hospital where they were treated for head injuries and released.

David Foster, 35, of Sooke, the driver of the other car was treated in Sooke, also for head injuries.

FOOT PATROLS 'IMPRACTICAL'

Calls for Victoria police department to establish foot patrols in residential neighborhoods were discounted as impractical by Victoria police board members today.

Although the matter was left open for further discussion, board members felt that the policemen walking beats would be a less efficient method of combatting crime than the present system of two-man cruisers.

Among those who have recently urged reintroduction of foot patrols are James Bay residents, following a street assault in that neighborhood, Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber and police board member Phil Fawcett.

Fawcett was not at today's board meeting but he submitted a letter saying that in his five years on the board he has become "increasingly persuaded of the need for, and value of, community policing in Victoria."

Noting that Police Chief Jack Gregory has pinpointed a lack of manpower as the main problem, Fawcett said perhaps the answer is to recruit more officers.

He suggested setting up a committee with representatives from the police board, police administration, constables and the community with the object of establishing an experimental community policing program in one Victoria neighborhood.

Board chairman, Mayor Mike Young, said that he doubted such a scheme would be practical.

Young said he explained at a recent meeting of the Community Planning Association of Canada that, with the demands of annual leave, sick leave, training and so on, it is almost impossible to commit a significant proportion of the department to work on exclusively community policing in one area.

Gregory pointed out that the city's geographical area is only 7½ square miles and that two men in a cruiser can cover about a quarter of that area in less than three minutes whereas two men on foot could cover only a relatively small area.

Second Attempt On N.I.P.

A second attempt to obtain Neighborhood Improvement Program funding for rehabilitating parts of downtown will be made by Victoria next week.

When the original application was submitted last year the city was told that 1977 program funds had already been committed, and was advised to apply again for the 1978 program.

If the bid is successful, the area to be designated would stretch from Bay almost to Beacon Hill Park and from Cook to the Inner Harbor.

Among the specific districts earmarked for improved amenities would be Chinatown and View Street.

Three city neighborhoods have already received N.I.P. assistance: James Bay, Victoria West and Fernwood-Spring Ridge.

It was former city alderman Sam Bawlf who first suggested that similar treatment be given to parts of the downtown area.

Victoria Coupon Scheme Bids for Winter Tourists

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victoria will launch a coupon tourist promotion project funded by the travel ministry, it was announced today.

The project, which will start in November, will involve full-page advertisements in Vancouver newspapers offering discounts on a wide variety of hotels, restaurants, stores and tourist attractions in Victoria.

The department of travel will pay all costs of the original advertising.

The project is being co-ordinated locally by the Visitors Information Centre (VIC).

Manager Don Nixon said the promotion could attract large numbers of tourists during the off-season. The discounts would be available from Nov. 1 to Dec. 15.

A second advertising spread may be required about the third week in November, Nixon said, and if so, this would be funded by the VIC.

Nixon said similar advertising is planned for early spring in Seattle.

This will precede but not necessarily replace a passport scheme suggested by Mayor Mike Young. The mayor urged the VIC to offer a tourist passport which would be stamped at every store or attraction visitors patronize.

At the end of the visit, a tourist would present the passport to the VIC Causeway office and receive a cash rebate equal to the cost of the ferry fare.

"We are interested in the passport program but it is difficult to administer. We are still studying it. It hasn't been dropped but it is on hold," Nixon said.

"Meanwhile, we are pushing ahead with this coupon plan which is quite straightforward and something we can do right away."

Nixon is collecting advertising coupons from Victoria merchants and will assemble them into the advertisement, which will cover at least 1½ pages in both Vancouver newspapers.

Because of the government funding, Victoria merchants will not have to pay for their ad but they will be asked to make significant discounts in their offer.

NIXON
. . . Mainland ad blitz

"We like this program because it should encourage visitors when we need them most," Nixon said.

"In addition, the cost to the merchants will be directly related to the benefits the merchant receives."

With the passport scheme, the VIC would have to collect from all the merchants on the passport after the ferry refund had been made. Nixon said it would be difficult to know how much to collect from each merchant because the tourist may have spent $20 at one place and only $3 at another and this would not be indicated on the passport.

Nixon said the coupon scheme would be reviewed after Dec. 15 to see if it should be repeated in Seattle and at that time the passport plan would also get a second look.

Nixon said no coupons would be offered for the summer months.

The VIC may consider a coupon promotion on the prairies during February.

Planning Marathon Ends with Mika Rebuke

Saanich Ald. John Mika's call for a referendum on the municipality's community plan gained no support at Tuesday night's meeting of the lands, planning and housing committee.

Instead, Mika was rebuked for trying to pin down assistant planner Alan Hopper on whether he felt a vote should be held.

The showdown came toward the end of a marathon six-hour meeting after a report from the planning department was read. In the report, the planners cautioned that the Municipal Act only allows a yes or no vote to be taken.

"Is it the position of the planning staff that a plebiscite should not be held?" Mika asked Hopper.

"Under the act council is restricted to asking yes or no. I don't think that's appropriate feedback," Hopper replied.

"I think it's very unfair of any member of council to ask whether he (Hopper) will or will not support a referendum," rebuked committee chairman Ald. Fred Severson. "I don't think it's our position to ask them (staff) what their position is."

Ald. David paterson observed: "All I see is that staff has brought to the attention of the committee the ramifications and restraints of a referendum."

"This is precisely why we should have public hearings. Why are we deferring them?" Ald. Joe Bourque asked Mika.

"We will vote against that kind of thing at the next council meeting."

Earlier in the meeting, Bourque remarked: "We seem to be brewing a very interesting chowder. What kind of soup are we going to make Sept. 6 (the next council meeting)?"

Severson served notice he will call for specific details on the proposed freeze on Sept. 6, asking that "specific areas of concern" be outlined.

"Council must and should take action," he said.

Bourque agreed. "If we uphold that decision (the 120-day freeze on the community plan) we throw them (the planning department) into a cocked hat."

Mika then made an abortive atttempt to introduce a motion without prior notice.

Mika called for studies to be held on the capital and operating costs and other impacts of the proposed Royal Oak industrial park, Broadmead shopping centre, Tillicum-Burnside shopping centre, the arterial Quadra-Munns highway and Minnie Mountain housing project.

He called for administrator Bill Tremayne, municipal planner Gil Laurenson and comptroller-treasurer Roy Broughton to have the studies prepared for the Sept. 6 meeting.

"We keep getting thunderbolts out of the blue. I think it's out of order to produce a long, encompassing motion when we haven't had a chance to study it," Paterson retorted.

While agreeing with Paterson, Ald. Ian Cass said there are "very significant statements that have merit" in Mika's motion.

On a motion from Paterson, the committee agreed the planner's report be circulated to all ratepayers' associations and a series of meetings be set up as early as possible on the controlversial issues raised by the community plan.

Thetis Hit By Thieves

It hasn't been as bad as last year, but thieves are active at Thetis Lake Park this summer with Colwood RCMP reporting 11 incidents so far involving the loss of just over $1,200 cash.

The most recent theft — which was also the biggest — occurred Sunday when an Oregon woman and friend lost $630 between them after the trunk of their car was pried open and their purses taken.

Police said the majority of the 10 other incidents involved locked cars and in two cases trunks were pried open.

Explorers Source Book A Bonanza of Material

Have you ever spent fruitless hours searching for a particular item of outdoor equipment?

Well I did — until a revised edition of The Explorers Ltd. Source Book landed on my desk recently.

Ever since acquiring our Siberian husky, Mark, I've toyed with the idea of exercising him during the winter with a dog sleigh.

Dog-sledding equipment seems to be in rather short supply in the Greater Victoria area and the closest supplier local breeders were able to come up with lives in Prince George.

One other book I managed to scrounge after considerable effort contained a dismal sketch on how to make a portion of the harness.

But in the Source Book, I struck the mother lode.

Not only was there detailed plans for making a good collar harness, but there was even a description on how to construct a sleigh for under $10 that can be converted to a cart for use in the summer.

In addition, there was a list of books and periodicals where further information could be obtained and the names and addresses of various equipment suppliers in both Canada and the United States.

All of the other 33 outdoor pursuits covered by this remarkable book are equally good.

As well as the more usual fields of backpacking, fishing and photography, this book contains information on such diverse subjects as ballooning, caving, falconry, hang gliding, parachuting and horse packing.

Some evaluations have been done on the material listed and most are done with a tongue-in-cheek style of humor which provides a refreshing change from the usual stark putdown.

This book, which is published by Harper and Row in New York and Fitzhenry and Whiteside Ltd. in Toronto, would be worth the asking price of $9.50 even if it contained only the lists of places to get additional information from.

The evaluations and special write-ups on each field are a bonus.

While on the subject of books, I'd like to get something off my chest.

Normally, I don't knock a book unless it's completely hopeless and I sincerely hope the newest item written by Richard and Rochelle Wright doesn't fall into that category.

Canoe Routes: British Columbia is a disappointment as far as the section on Vancouver Island is concerned. I just hope the other six regions aren't covered in as cursory a manner.

The book lists only four general areas for canoeing on the Island — Cowichan Lake-Cowichan River, Quennell Lake, Megin River and the Nitinat Triangle.

Five pages for the entire Island and there is no mention of the superb canoeing one may find off certain portions of the coast or in dozens of lakes more suitable than Quennell, which has "little or no public access."

I'm not sufficiently familiar with the other areas covered in this book to either vouch for or criticize the content. But by the same token, I'm not trying to sell an item which contains insufficient data.

So as far as Vancouver Island canoeing goes, there are definitely better books to consult.

FIFTH TEST DRAW

LONDON (AP) — Max Walker, with an unbeaten 78, spearheaded a remarkable performance by Australia's tailenders who added 133 on the final day of the fifth and final cricket Test at the Oval on Tuesday.

But any Australian hopes of getting England out quickly and scoring an innings victory were frustrated by Geoff Boycott and Derek Randall — and bad light and drizzle. The result was a draw.

When play was halted England had a second-innings score of 57 for two on top of its first-innings score of 214 against Australia's first-innings score of 385 all out.

Campbell Leaves

MONTREAL (CP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League for 31 years, gave up his chair Tuesday with some regret.

"I'd like to take it with me —I've been in it a long time," the 72-year-old dean of professional sports officials said as he gave way to John Ziegler, 43, in a simple ceremony at league headquarters.

Ziegler moved into the seat. "My feet don't touch the ground," he said.

Ziegler's term as the NHL's fourth president officially began last week, but the session gave reporters and photographers another chance to dwell on the Campbell years.

"The first expansion was one . . .", Campbell said in response to questions about his greatest thrills. He pointed to a picture of himself holding six cheques for $2 million, the price paid by each of the teams that joined the league for the 1967-68 season.

"Twelve million bucks—that was quite a move. The Soviet series—the first one. Bringing in the pension plan. Recognition by those people in Las Vegas."

The last was a reference to the Victor Award for humanitarianism.

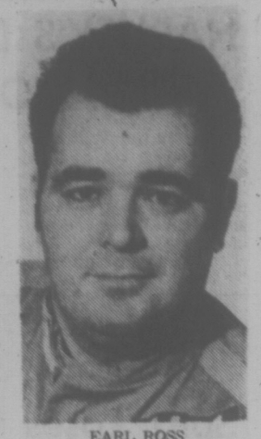
"These were all delightful occasions for me," Campbell said.

And on the other side of the ledger, he said, was the Maurice Richard riot in Montreal on March 17, 1955.

"Obviously, there's no way I can escape the disappointment that went with the riot. It was a dark day for the game really.

"But it quickly turned around completely as far as I was personally concerned. From that time forward, my status as senior executive of the league was never challenged."

Ross Enters '200'; Faces Strong Field



EARL ROSS
. . . to drive Firebird

Earl Ross is this year's featured driver in the Canada 200 stock car race at Western Speedway one week from Saturday, but the smart money is on a regular campaigner, Ron Eaton.

Ross, 1974 NASCAR rookie of the year and the only Canadian to win a major NASCAR race, will make the trip from his home in Ailsa Craig, Ont., north of London, and bring his own car, a 1977 Coca Cola-sponsored Firebird.

Ross' NASCAR appearances have been limited to the Daytona 500 each of the last two years. He becomes the third name driver to compete in the Carling Canada 200 lapper which this year offers purse money of $10,100.

Bobby Allison, winner of 46 NASCAR events, drove in 1975 and Janet Guthrie, first woman to drive the Indianapolis 500, appeared last year. Both drove borrowed cars and finished back in the pack.

Ross hopes to change that with his own car, a 108-inch wheelbase model with a 350-cubic inch engine similar to the Camaro in which Larry Phillips of Missouri won this year's International Drivers Challenge.

Although his NASCAR appearances have been limited, Ross has been busy. He's the current points leader in the Wheelspin Trophy series in Ontario and a week ago swept a three-race tour of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

Ross was slated to drive in the 1975 Canada 200 but was unable to return to Victoria after a pre-season visit because he lost his sponsor.

Eaton, the Tacoma smoothie driving a 1976 Nova, is touted as this year's likely winner on the strength of four victories in his last five NASCAR Northwest series starts. His four-race win string was snapped last Saturday at Spanaway when he hit a crash wall and damaged his suspension, but he'll be ready.

Promoter Reg Midgley has lined up an impressive field to back up Eaton and Ross in the scramble for first-place money of $1,500.

Confirmed entries include Don Dowdy of Yakima, who is leading this year's NASCAR Northwest point derby in his 1976 Plymouth Scamp; Leon Fox of Bremerton, Wash., in a '77 Ventura, last year's NASCAR Northwest champ; Jack Kuper of Tacoma, who piloted his '76 Nova to first place at Tacoma last Saturday in the wake of Eaton's misfortune; Bob Bryson of Aberdeen, Wash., who moved steadily up in the pack in his '74 Camaro during this year's IDC series.

Reg Kennedy of Surrey, winner of the 1975 Western Canada NASCAR series, is back in a '75 Chevelle along with veteran Tom Hamilton, 49, of Campbell River in a '65 Chevelle; IDC campaigner Neil Langan of Eugene, Ore., in a '72 Camaro; George Doonon of Surrey in a well-prepared '74 Nova; George Stuart of Campbell River in another '74 Nova; Roy Smith of Victoria in a '76 Nova and Roy Haslam of Victoria in a '65 Chevelle.

Rick O'Dell of Victoria, former Western Speedway superstock champion, plans to make his first drive of the season in the race. He has a new '77 Ventura put together by Speedway Engineering of Los Angeles.

Haslam, who won the event two years ago, and Eaton were the first to enter this year.

A total of 24 cars will make the starting grid for the feature after four laps of qualifying trials. For the first time in the six-year history of the race, there will be time trials Friday night with the fastest seven guaranteed spots in the top 12 positions for Saturday's race. Qualifiers can, however, elect to go for a faster time in Saturday trials but would forfeit their guaranteed starting spot.

There will be a mandatory pit stop again this year.

Fastest 12 qualifiers will line up in reverse order with the remaining 12 cars straight up.

TEEN MURDERS CHARGE LAID

VANCOUVER (CP)—RCMP said today a 23-year-old Chilliwack man has been charged with four counts of first-degree murder in the July 18 Ferry Island slaying of four teen-agers.

Inspector Les Holmes told a news conference that Walter Murray Madsen was charged in county court in Chilliwack after being arrested without a struggle Tuesday at his home in Chilliwack.

Holmes said Madsen was arrested during a follow-up of a tip from a member of the public.

Train Blaze Contained

HOPE (CP) — A fire that sent poisonous sulphur dioxide fumes billowing across the Trans-Canada Highway at two points near here Tuesday was under control about seven hours after it began, a Canadian National Railways spokesman said Tuesday night.

Al Menard said that the 200 people evacuated by RCMP from the nearby community of Flood in the wake of a fire in two of the open cars carrying sulphur had been allowed to return home by 9:30 p.m. He said the highway, closed during the height of the fire, had been re-opened.

Menard said that 84 cars of the 100-car freight train derailed about five miles west of here at 2:10 p.m. Two caught fire and for a time were burning out of control.

Menard said that the B.C. Forest Service supplied pumps to get water from the nearby Fraser River to the fire, and that the CNR hired air tankers from nearby Abbotsford to dump fire retardant on the blaze.

A total of five passes were made by three aircraft to bring the conflagration under control, Menard said.

He said that the Canadian Forces base in Chilliwack supplied heavy equipment, oxygen, and helped put sand onto the fire.

Menard said the five-member crew on the train was not injured in the derailment, and that there were no injuries fighting the fire.

"They were pretty cautious at the scene," he said, "and sulphur dioxide is easily detectable.

"When you get a whiff, you know when to back off."

Cause of the derailment was unknown. The five locomotives remained on the rail.

Menard said arrangements were being made with CP Rail to detour CNR traffic onto the CP Rail line at Mission. He said it is hoped the CNR line can be used again in two days.

An immediate investigation was launched into the cause of the crash. Damage was expected to be more than $1 million.

Cabinet to Decide On Land Appeals

Legislation to give the provincial cabinet powers of final appeal in Land Commission Act cases was introduced Tuesday by Environment Minister Jim Nielsen.

The amendments will mean a citizen for the first time could appeal to the cabinet for change in a B.C. Land Commission ruling.

The proposed amendments were immediately criticized by NDP environment critic Bob Skelly.

"I think they're a bloody tragedy," he said in an interview.

The amendments would undermine the appeal procedure of the commission because it would introduce a political route to any decision, he added.

The law has as its main intent the preservation of agricultural land in B.C., through an agricultural land reserve.

The minister said the change, one of several introduced, means that cabinet will have the same powers as the land commission now has.

Nielsen said that under the current law, an appellant wishing to have the classification of his land changed must first receive the approval of the land commission to have his appeal heard by the cabinet's Environmental Land Use Committee.

Such a step would be taken after the commission had already ruled on the application.

The amendments provide that within 30 days of having a request for an appeal denied by the commission, an appellant can go directly to the minister to ask that ELUC hear the appeal.

Nielsen said this procedure will soothe complaints of personal conflicts, and will give the appellant the satisfaction of dealing with an elected, rather than an appointed official.

But Skelly said:

"Some developers who were not getting their way appear to be getting their way now."

He also said the current system was widely acclaimed as one that could be free of abuse.

Other provisions contained in the Land Commission Amendment Act, 1977, call for:

—The name of the law to be changed to the "Agriculture Land Commission Act." Nielsen said this is to avoid confusion with other laws dealing with land;

—Municipalities and region-

GIBSON RAISES A FISHY FEAR

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson put the bite on the government Tuesday with a fishy question.

Will the voracious South American man-eating piranha fish one day be nipping at bathers in B.C. waters? he wanted to know.

He asked Recreation Minister Sam Bawlf to look into the situation.

The flesh-eating fish is being sold "in the thousands" in pet stores, Gibson said, and there is some chance the piranha could survive in B.C. waters if it somehow were released into them.

"Or in this House," interjected Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver-East).

Gibson said outside the House later that if the piranhas can survive in B.C. waters, out of their normal tropical element, there are a number of ways they can get there.

When they get too big for home aquariums or owners get tired of them the owners might simply flush them down a toilet or dump them into a stream, despite the fact a permit is mandatory for anyone to put fish in B.C. waters.

"After that it's only a matter of time before boy meets giri," Gibson said.

And when people go wading or swimming "heaven knows what they might nibble at."

Fishing Shut By Fraser Oil Spill

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — Up to 10,000 gallons of heavy bunker oil spilled into the Fraser River Tuesday, fouling a fleet of fishboats near Steveston, coating miles of shoreline and endangering unknown numbers of fish and wildlife.

The spill also forced an emergency closure of fishing in the region where salmon fishing had been scheduled to open today.

The move by the International Pacific Salmon Commission closed the lower Gulf of Georgia near the mouth of the Fraser and part of United States fishing waters near the international border.

Angry fishermen and environmentalists are demanding to know both why the spill occured and why there was a 15-hour delay in the start of clean-up operations.

"The Gulf of Georgia now is being contaminated and there are unconfirmed reports of sightings of oil in American waters," said Lyle Freeman, federal fisheries department spokesman.

The spill into the main channel of the Fraser River is one of the largest spills in Vancouver area waters, a clean-up operations spokesman said.

Desi Sjoquist of Clean Seas Canada, a company specializing in cleaning up oil spills, said it was costing $6,000 a day to remedy the spill. He estimated the job would take a week to 10 days.

He said no more oil was leaking from a tank at the Canadian Fishing Co.

The spill is believed to have occurred late Monday when a six-inch pipeline separated from the main pipe underneath the Canadian Fishing Co. wharf.

It was reported to environmental authorities Tuesday morning, fishing company officials said.

Fishermen docked at the wharf said that small spots of oil were seen in the area Monday morning, adding to the theory that the pipe became unscrewed because of vibrations and age.

Frank Spencer, senior vice-president of Canadian Fishing Co., said he believed the spill was caused when a piece of wood jammed against an oil main under a dock and broke off a valve at high tide.

HYDRO STRIKE THREAT

Negotiations are continuing today in Vancouver in an effort to avert a strike by B.C. Hydro maintenance workers.

The 2,500 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 258, have already voted to strike and business agent Doug Cronk said they may be off the job by the end of the week if there is no settlement.

"A negotiated settlement is possible but we have to get over our hurdles this week for strike action to be avoided," Cronk said.

Money is not a major issue for the Hydro workers, who are seeking better layoff and re-hiring provisions, job protection for partly-disabled employees, pension improvements and training subsidies for steam engineers.

U.S. Skipper Sought In Bizarre Incident

- By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The FBI has joined the RCMP in the hunt for an American fishboat skipper who sailed off with a Canadian fisheries officer in a bizaare incident in the Juan de Fuca Strait.

The fisheries officer — Butch Mayor, quartermaster of the patrol boat Laurier — was forced to leap from the U.S. seiner Lucky Star when the vessel fled.

Colwood RCMP Sgt. Ed Kokoska said the fishboat, registered at Kodiak, Alaska, is believed somewhere in Washington State waters.

The vessel's unidentified skipper, who warned Mayo if he boarded he'd get a "one-way trip to the U.S.", faces a charge of illegally fishing in Canadian waters.

Also contemplated are charges of obstruction, forcible confinement and abduction.

The incident occurred last Wednesday when the Laurier spotted the seiner fishing in Canadian waters off Port Renfrew.

A spokesman for the federal fisheries service said the seiner had a net out and was "an honest mile within the Canadian boarder."

He said Mayo boarded the seiner to place the captain under arrest and take the vessel into port.

Just prior to the boarding, the seiner and the Laurier collided.

Fisheries officials said the collision occurred when Laurier captain Jack Goss manoeuvred the Laurier in front of the seiner to prevent it from escaping.

Some damage was done to the seiner along its port side.

It was reported the seiner captain felt the Laurier had deliberately rammed his vessel before Mayo stepped aboard.

The seiner, having hauled its net in "sort of jogged towards the boundary," the spokesman said.

When it crossed the line Goss decided, said the spokesman, that discretion was the better part of valor, and launched a rubber lifeboat to retrieve Mayo.

The lifeboat pulled along side the seiner but the captain refused to stop and Mayo had to jump while both boats were moving.

FBI special agent Mike Entler said in Seattle Tuesday the bureau will help the RCMP.

"We'll be co-operating to our full extent just as they (the RCMP) would do for us."

By co-operation, he said he means the FBI will track down the whereabouts of the seiner and take statements from the captain and crew.

"This sort of thing is bad for both sides," he said. "There is no excuse for it. The fishermen themselves don't like to see it happen."

CIVIL WAR IF QUE. GOES?

OTTAWA (UPI) — Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney said today Quebec's attempts to legally separate from the rest of Canada could lead to civil war.

"All very well to say that we can reach agreement in principle on separation," Blakeney told the annual meeting of the Canadian Bar Association. "It may well be that when it comes time for the specific terms, we will not have the goodwill, the wisdom, which would allow this to happen without force of arms."

Air Strike Repeat Looms in U.K.

LONDON (UPI) — British air traffic control assistants voted today to call another strike if the Civil Aviation Authority suspends any worker for taking part in a slowdown.

Heathrow airport officials reported airlines were still operating curtailed flight schedules as they did during a four-day strike that ended Tuesday, with delays of up to five hours common.

British Airways cancelled five flights to the United States.

"There are delays on all routes in and out of Heathrow," a CAA spokesman said.

A meeting of the union's disputes committee today, answering the national executive committee's call for an all-out strike "from the moment the first man is suspended," voted in favor of a walkout whenever necessary.

Airlines warned passengers flights face flight delays up to five times that long.

Million-Dollar Metric Tab Announced by Fraser

It will cost the provincial government about $1 million to get metric on the road in B.C., Highways Minister Alex Fraser said today.

In announcing the start of B.C.'s changeover to metric signs, Fraser said it will cost an estimated $710,000 to switch over the province's 25,000 highway signs.

Municipalities will have to bear their cost of changing local signs.

An additional $350,000 is earmarked for public awareness and education program to ease the province into metrication.

Fraser said he hopes both the changeover of signs and the public awareness campaign can come in a little under budget.

The minister said there are 48,000 signs on B.C.'s highways but only 25,000 will be converted to metric — including 15,000 speed limit warning signs.

All signs dealing with speeds and distances are to be changed. Fraser said a major advertising campaign, organized by the Vancouver firm of Walker, Ricks, Ehrig, is to be launched to win the public's support for metrication.

The campaign includes radio, television and newspaper ads, and distribution of about 900,000 brochures to every household in the province.

Another 500,000 brochures will be distributed to clubs, organizations, and to visitors at border crossings.

Filers Return

A majority of wildcatting Vancouver Island sawmill filers today obeyed an informal order from the B.C. Labor Relations Board and returned to work but some in the Victoria area apparently need more convincing.

A spokesman for the Duncan local of the International Woodworkers of America said today most members in that area, except for a few stragglers, were removing pickets and reporting for work.

The filers in the area covered by the Duncan local set up picket lines Tuesday closing about five sawmills and affecting about 1,500 workers.

The pickets began to come down Tuesday night following the LRB's verbal cease and desist order, requested by Forest Industrial Relations, which represents the companies.

Filers belonging to IWA's Victoria local did not set up pickets but about 24 of them chose to book off sick at B.C. Forest Products' sawmill on Garbally Road and at Sooke Forest Products mill.

The Sooke operation was operating today as it did Tuesday but BCFP was forced to close the sawmill Tuesday afternoon. It reopened this morning but a company spokesman said it would likely close down again if the book-off continues.

A spokesman for the Victoria-area filers said they are waiting for formal word from the LRB and from local union officials that they have to go back to work.

Mass Firing of Legislative Pages Rescinded

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

A temporary reprieve was given Tuesday night to 14 young legislative pages who earlier in the day were fired from their jobs with 24-hours notice.

The pages are meeting with Speaker Ed Smith, Sergeant-at-Arms A.M. Hutchinson and concerned MLAs today to discuss the process for terminating the employment of pages.

The results of the meeting may mean the pages will get to finish out the term of the current session.

A storm of controversy arose Tuesday afternoon when the pages' firing was raised in question period, but Smith poured oil on the troubled waters as the legislature adjourned for its dinner break, saying that the firing order had been rescinded for the time being.

Smith told the house "the pages will remain until we can determine the best course of action."

He said the pages had been fired by Hutchinson because the session has lasted longer then usual and with a new school term about to begin, it was a good time to change staff.

Earlier in the day Hutchinson had little to say except that the pages were being dismissed as part of a "normal rotation".

The Sergeant-at-Arms declined further comment, at one point marching tight-lipped through a circle of reporters, chin up and arms swinging. NDP house leader Bill King (NDP-Revelstoke-Slocan) said the dismissal was "absolutely inhuman — I'm appalled by it."

King said he believes the pages were fired because they were in the headlines two weeks ago with complaints that their heavy uniforms were too hot in the summer weather.

"This is retaliation against the pages," said King, who failed in an attempt to make a statement on the matter in the house.

As the afternoon session began King asked for unanimous leave to make a statement, but it was denied with shouts of "no," coming from Premier Bill Bennett, Labor Minister Allan Williams and Mines Minister Jim Chabot.

The denial was apparently intended to keep the NDP from making any political yards out of the situation.

Bennett later rose, during question period, to ask Smith about the pages.

"It has come to my attention that there has been some uncertainty over their continued employment," said Bennett in asking Smith for an explanation.

"They were unceremoniously fired," interjected Dennis Locke (NDP—New Westminster).

POLICEMAN DUCKS

VANCOUVER (CP) — A city policeman is alive today because he ducked at the right moment in a shot-punctuated chase after a credit union robbery.

Four or five shots were fired by the robbers from the fleeing car at the pursuing police car. The passenger in the police car, Constable Warren Smith, 26, was struck twice by bullets in the right arm.

The shooting started when the patrol car closed to within about 30 feet of the robbers. Smith saw one robber poke a handgun out the window of the fleeing car. The policeman ducked as one shot put a hole in the windshield directly in front of where he had been sitting.

Smith was operated on late Tuesday and his condition was reported as good.

The chase developed after a holdup at the Caisse Populaire credit union in which about $6,000 was taken by two masked men carrying handguns. They ordered the staff and three customers to lie face down on the floor and cleared out two tills before fleeing.

Dozens of officers, many carrying shotguns, blanketed the area and quickly found two suspects hiding in bushes. Police later found money believed to be part of the holdup loot.

Police were searching for a third man but no charges had been laid.

Gliders Try the Hang of Grouse

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — The clouds broke, finally, and the Strait of Georgia made a dazzling blue background for the urban sprawl below. But it wasn't Tuesday's atop Grouse Mountain that impressed the hang gliders.

Grouse, overlooking Vancouver, is the site of this weekend's North American hang gliding championship, and those of the 60 competitors who made practice flights raved about the air around the mountain. A non-glider had to ask why.

They talked about thermals, hot-air masses that form over Vancouver and break off like huge bubbles rising up against the mountains. They described coastals, steady sea breezes off the Pacific.

The combination of the two is what makes the drop off Grouse a good ride.

"It's a good, smooth area," said John Duthie of Invermere, B.C. "It doesn't contain any surprises that are anything but pleasant."

Gliders, harnessed beneath dacron sails and aluminum frames, can stay in the air for hours, spiralling up the centre of hot-air bubbles and drifting down the edges.

The ride is not always smooth—12 people killed in British Columbia in the last three years.

Dan Neff of North Vancouver almost became number 13 last Saturday.

Neff took a running start off Vedder Mountain east of here and rode a thermal higher than he's ever been since he graduated to high-flying from groundskimming flights about a month ago.

"When I came out of the thermal, I stalled out," said Neff, 26, from his bed in a Vancouver hospital.

Other gliders told Neff he fell about 600 feet before he hit trees that broke his fall and probably saved his life. Neff's back injury might mean a permanent disability, but he's quick to defend gliding.

"It's a tremendous sport," he said. "If my injury wasn't so serious, I'd do it again."

The Ministry of Transport is investigating the accident, but it is a difficult sport to regulate.

Gliders cost up to $1,700 but the only other thing you need is a take-off spot. Some of them have been rather remote. Imagine police trying to stop Rob Burns of Anchorage, Alaska, who made a 30-minute flight from the 20,300-foot peak of Mount McKinley last summer, or Australian Bill Flewellyn who glided over Japan's Mount Fuji in July.

Control is more likely to come from inside rather than outside.

The Hang Gliding Association of Canada has developed a rating system that it hopes will lead to standard, quality instruction, an approach they prefer to licensing.

"If you're up by yourself in a hang glider, you have as much right to do that as you do to go rock climbing or do any other dangerous sport," said Don Arney, head of the association's B.C. branch.

Arney said most fatalities were a result of bad judgment by inexperienced gliders. He said two people were killed last year in 45-mile-an-hour winds, when most gliders would consider staying home if the winds reached 20.

"That's like rock-climbing with frayed ropes. If a person exercises proper judgment and still gets killed, that's when I get concerned."

As an indication that people are beginning to realize that good training reduces the danger, Arney said the hang-gliding boom is spreading to older men, more women and "married people with a lot of responsibility who've decided it's not really so dangerous."

Competitors in the North American championships must be single males under 30 years of age. They will score points for the length of time they stay in the air to a 40-minute maximum and for the accuracy and control they show when landing as close as possible to a 10-foot bull's eye 3,350 feet below the launching platform.

The ministry of transport has given the gliders clearance and blocked off nine square miles of air space up to 18,000 feet. That might be cutting it a bit tight— the world altitude record is 19,000.

No Application by Ulster For Kennedy's Custody

VANCOUVER (CP) — Lawyers representing suspected Irish terrorist James Kennedy said Tuesday that the Royal Ulster Constabulary has not tried to have Kennedy extradited to its jurisdiction.

The statement was backed up by Chief Inspector Herbert Norris of the RUC.

An unidentified RUC press officer said Monday that the force had applied formally for an extradition warrant to have Kennedy delivered to RUC jurisdiction.

In denying the statement, Norris also said that the RUC had not supplied fingerprints to Canadian authorities, nor had the RUC had any contact with the RCMP regarding Kennedy.

Inspector Lew Dempsey of the RCMP had said Monday that he had not heard of any application by Ulster authorities to obtain custody of Kennedy.

Kennedy, who RCMP says is James Joseph McCann, an Irish Republican Army terrorist, was arrested May 27 and held without bail during a deportation hearing.

RCMP officials said at the hearing that fingerprints of McCann, obtained from New Scotland yard, matched Kennedy's fingerprints.

Kennedy was ordered deported July 14, but the order has been stayed pending an appeal to the immigration appeal board. Kennedy was released Friday on $5,000 bail pending the appeal.

An aide to John Taylor, Kennedy's lawyer, said Tuesday that Kennedy's birth certificate has been received from members of his family in Ireland, and it confirms Kennedy's claim that he was born in Eire in 1940, and that his name is Peter Joseph Kennedy.

The Aide said that "in Ireland, James is sometimes used in place of the name

Safer Landings

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Ministry of Transport announced in a news release this week that distance measuring equipment will be installed and begin operating late this fall at Terrace airport.

The equipment enables pilots to determine the exact distance of their aircraft from an airport. Combining this with other flight data enables pilots to pinpoint their location and maintain a safe altitude during an approach flight.

The equipment will further enhance air safety in the mountainous terrain of the Terrace area, the ministry said.

Cost of the equipment is $72,500.

Que. Eskimos Seek Their 'Independence'

POVUNGNITUK, Que. (CP) — Leaders of three northern Quebec settlements—Povungnituk, Saglouc and Ivujivic—want to form their own regional government which would have legislative powers enabling Inuit poeple to decide their own destiny.

Residents of this Hudson Bay settlement told Quebec government representatives Tuesday they respect Quebec's intent to preserve French language and culture but resent any intrusion from "the South" into the affairs of Quebec's Arctic peoples.

At a news conference held late Tuesday following a public meeting, spokesmen for the three communities said a promised government white paper on culture would not meet their demands for more autonomy.

"It is up to us and us alone to face up to our responsibilities vis-a-vis our language and culture. We cannot go crying to either the federal or provincial government to ask the help of those who don't even know about Eskimo culture," says a statement issued by community organizers.

"We have to start from scratch. We think that the recently passed law concerning language is just, and we have no intention of opposing it.

"But the French people here never asked us to help them develop their culture and we must develop our own."

The Eskimo people here say they have no intention of separating from Quebec and they accuse the Northern Quebec Inuit Association of making moves in that direction.

The Inuit association denies this and says it favors the same type of autonomy sought by these three communities.

David Payne, executive assistant to Cultural Development Minister Camille Laurin and Michel Sparer, who helped write the controversial language law, emerged weary but pleased from a public meeting at which one Eskimo said "It's not right for anyone to make laws for others who have their own language and culture."

The reception Payne and Sparer received here contrasted sharply with the way they were greeted in Fort Chimo, 200 miles east of here, where hostile community leaders have asked provincial government employees and provintial police to leave until language differences are settled.

But Inuit here say they do not care much about a second language, either English or French, and want to concentrate on development of their own language—Inuttituut—and way of life. They told Payne and Sparer that federal and provincial schools here offer children little in the way of Eskimo culture.

Payne said the white paper on cultural development will have special sections dealing with native peoples. He asked Inuit representatives for suggestions on policies.

But at the news conference delegates from the three communities said they "don't want a government department to take care of us. We want a regional government to represent us in in Quebec."

They suggest this regional government would have control over all cultural and language policy in this area.

Povungnituk, Saglouc and Ivujivic are the only communities in the Ungava-Hudson Bay area which rejected the James Bay agreement signed by the federal and provincial goyernments, the Inuit association and the Grand Council of the Cree.

People here, who form one-third of the Inuit population of northern Quebec, say the agreement is a "farce" and that they were "sold out" by the Inuit association.

These communities disagree strongly with pressure tactics under way in Fort Chimo and other settlements to force the province to amend the language law.

At the public meeting Payne said "the government of Quebec has tried to respect the opinion of the Inuit."

Payne said the government shared the opinion that Eskimo language and culture is endangered.

Sparer said that under the law Eskimo organizations communicating with the government or other organizations in the south (territories not covered by the James Bay agreement) will only have to have one person able to express himself in French.

"And this is only after a transitory period to be decided by the government.....

"The government is not going to enforce this article until it sees you are able to comply. Within your own territory you may communicate in Inuttituut, English, French or any other language you de-

In Montreal, Premier Rene Levesque indicated that one reason the Inuits are opposing the Quebec government on the language issue is the fact they are being supported by federal funds.

"You tell me who finances it (the association) and I'll tell you who controls it," the premier said in an interview during a businessmen's conference at the University of Montreal.

There seems to be a "basic misunderstanding" of the language issue on the part of the Inuit association, Levesque said, adding he is willing to meet with Inuit leaders in an effort to defuse the conflict.

BOOT UNION GETS SHOO

BELLEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — The 83-year-old Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, which represents about 2,000 Canadian workers, will lose its separate identity Thursday, says the union's Canadian director.

Ian Reilly said that the union, which also represents about 28,000 workers in the U.S., will become the footwear division of the 7,000-member Retail Clerks' International Union.

Reilly said the move has been caused by declining union membership and decreasing effectiveness of the union because of the footwear industry's deteriorating competitive position in the face of cheaper imports.

The Canadian head office of the union is in Belleville and more than half the Canadian membership is from the surrounding area.
